Soviet Chief Hikes Berlin Peace Price

Demands Allied Troops Get Out, Renews Threats

MOSCOW (UPI) —Premier Nikita Khrushchev, raising the stakes for a Berlin settlement in the wake of Russia's new space feats, demanded Saturday that U.S., British and French troops get out of Berlin. He withdrew an earlier offer to let smaller NATO countries station troops in Berlin.

The jubilant Soviet leader addressing a Red Square rally in honor of the Soviet space twins, also threatened anew to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany, but he did not set a deadline.

SUDDEN SWITCH

For the first time, however, Khrushchev spelled out a refusal to permit NATO troops to participate, even under United Nations auspices.

The refusal was a sudden switch from a proposal made by Khrushchev last month that the Soviet Union would be willing to have a joint NATO-Warsaw Pact force keep the peace in West Berlin.

Khrushchev's switch was taken to mean he now was prepared to concede only a neutral force in the city under U.N. command to replace Western Allied troops under a Berlin settlement.

At the same time, Khrushchev pointed to the recent negotiated settlements of the Laos and Dutch New Guinea controversies and said the Berlin problem should be solved "in a similar fashion."

Authoritative Western sources in London immediately rejected the demand because the Western Allies have made continued presence of their forces in Berlin the major condition for settlement. Officials said the presence of Allied forces in Berlin is "not negotiable."

Airlines Resuming Schedules

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Eastern Air Lines said Saturday full operations, curtailed since July 23 by a strike of flight engineers, would be resumed Sept. 13.

Malcolm MacIntyre, Eastern's president, said his line would resume full jet and piston plane service regardless of a continued strike by the flight engineers and a threatened walkout by machinists.

"If the machinists strike, we would have no alternative but to get an injunction," MacIntyre stated at a news conference.

"Where you have a contract and the machinery for settling grievances, there is no problem in getting an injunction to stop a walkout," MacIntyre said.

MacIntyre pointed out that resumption of what he called "full schedules" did not mean that service would be provided on the same level to all cities as before the strike began.

"The total seat miles will be reduced," MacIntyre said. "There will be a reduction of service to some small cities."

MacIntyre also said that a streamlining of operations would mean that 4,000 to 5,000 employes in all categories would not be recalled Sept. 13.

He said perhaps one or two thousand of these would be recalled about Dec. 15 when the heavy winter traffic is expected. However, MacIntyre said, there are no present plans to return to the full 18,000 employe level which EAL had on June 22.

Blast Disables Boat; 7 Saved

GRAND ISLE, La. (AP) — An explosion and fire aboard a 45-foot pleasure boat disabled the craft and forced its seven occupants, all of Baton Rouge, to abandon it Saturday about 12 miles south of here in the Gulf of Mexico.

The three men, a woman, a teen-ager and two children floated in life jackets about four hours before an Ocean Drilling & Exploration Co. boat rescued them and took them ashore for treatment of minor burns and shock.

The Coast Guard at New Orleans said it was searching for the craft, the Allegro, which was only partially sunken.

A spokesman for the drilling company said he learned there was an explosion in the boat's engine room, which punched holes in the craft's side and bottom.

Humphrey Firm Deal Is Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey was staunchly defended Saturday by a Truman administration official who okayed a nickel stockpiling contract that brought the one-time Eisenhower cabinet member under Senate fire.

Howard I. Young, now president of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company, St. Louis, said Humphrey, multimillionaire Cleveland industralist, "received no greater consideration in the contract award than if he been plain John Jones."

DEFENDS HUMPHREY

At the time the contract was signed, Young, a Republican, was deputy chief of the Defense Minerals Production Administration (DMPA) under then President Harry S. Truman.

"He's one of the finest men in the United States," Young said of Humphrey who served in former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's cabinet for four and a half years. "He's absolutely square in every respect."

"As far as I'm concerned the political situation had no effect whatsoever," he added. "politics never entered into it as far as our shop was concerned. We (the government) needed nickel and needed it damned badly and they had some."

18 Negroes Drown After Boat Sinks

All But One Of Florida Victims Young Children

QUINCY, Fla. (UPI)—A 16-foot fishing boat jammed with Negro children off on a church picnic swamped under the heavy load Saturday and 18 of the 19 persons aboard drowned.

All but one of the victims were children ranging in age from 6 to 12 years.

ONE SURVIVOR

The lone survivor was 11-year-old Jerome Maples, who was saved by a fisherman who managed to push a cane pole within the boy's reach.

The only adult aboard was Joseph Bouie, 25, who was operating the small, green, flat-bottom boat.

Witnesses said the boat had just left Jessie's Landing on nearby Lake Talquin when the heavily-loaded vessel started filling with water in the stern.

Bouie raced the motor in hopes of raising the craft in the water, witnesses said, but instead it caused the water to rush forward and the boat went under.

"It was panic that got them," said highway patrolman Joe Ross of Liberty County.

"The boat was floating right beside where they went down. All they would have had to do was reach out and grab it," he said.

Ross said he personally had raised Bouie's body. "He had a death grip on one little girl he apparently was trying to save," Ross said.

The trooper added that Bouie apparently "was mobbed" by all the children. "Several were still clinging to him when I found him," Ross said.

The boat went down about 100 yards off shore, just beyond a patch of water lilies. Ross said the water was only about seven feet deep at that point, "just over my head."

Weather Scene Remains Same

The Twin Cities have more clear to partly cloudy and warm weather in prospect today, with only variable 5-15 mile - per - hour breezes to offset the high-nineties temperature.

Saturday the mercury rose to 98, recorded there at 3 and 4 p.m. by the FAA at Selman Field.

IN SOUTH VIET NAM

Arms Factories Of Reds Seized

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops seized a field hospital and two primitive arms factories Saturday in a major drive against a Red guerrilla stronghold in the deep south, military sources reported.

The field hospital was a major target of the four-day-old drive by 4,000 Vietnamese troops. Its loss was called as severe a blow to the Viet Cong guerrillas as the capture of their central arms depot on the third day of the operation Friday.

So far, however, the Vietnamese and their U. S. military advisers have made no contact with the main force of 2,000 guerrillas, who control most of An Xuyen Province at the southern tip of Viet Nam.

CASUALTIES

The government reported at least 70 rebels have been killed and 111 captured, with 95 buildings destroyed by air blows. The guerrillas used the buildings for training and recreation, military sources said.

Along with the field hospital, a ton of medicines—prized as much as arms and food by the guerillas—was seized, these sources reported.

Ground forces plowing through the mangrove swamps at the edge of the Gulf of Thailand reported they captured primitive arms factories used by the Viet Cong to fashion muzzle-loading weapons.

Two more ammunition dumps also were reported captured.

Air strikes also destroyed 352 tons of rice stored by the Viet Cong, military sources claimed.

U. S. Marine H34 helicopters kept lifting more troops to various areas of the swamplands in an attempt to flush the Viet Cong from the swamps.

The semiofficial Viet Nam Press Agency reported that government planes in air strikes elsewhere in South Viet Nam killed 81 guerrillas in the past few days.

U.S. Sub Aids Homing Pigeon To Reach Coop

TRENTON, N. J. AP — A weary racing pigeon finally flew into its home coop Saturday after a roundabout journey made partly by submarine.

The bird's troubles started with a wrong turn, said John Dixon, co - owner of the pigeon.

Dixon said the bird, trained as a homing pigeon, had been released from a point near Philadelphia last Tuesday and was heading for Trenton, when it turned right instead of left over Brielle.

The result was a long and exhausting flight out to sea, where the submarine USS Albacore entered the story.

Lt. J. G. Frederick N. Ewalt, said the pigeon landed on the Albacore about 110 miles south of Long Island, N. Y.

The Albacore carried the tired traveler to Portsmouth, N.H. It then flew home.

Bitter Over Shooting Of Boy On Wall

BERLIN (UPI) — Angry West Berliners stoned Soviet army cars and jeered, "American go home" at U. S. army troops Saturday to express their bitterness over the fatal shooting of an 18-year-old youth as he tried to escape over the Berlin wall.

The sullen crowd demonstrated shortly after the U. S. commandant in Berlin protested to the Russians against Friday's Communist killing of the refugee and warned that such "barbaric" incidents could "lead to consequences of the gravest sort."

STONE RED BUS

The crowd of West Berliners marched into the area of the U. S. Army's "Checkpoint Charlie" at the Communist wall and showered stones at a Red army bus taking 15 to 20 guards to the Soviet war memorial in the city's British sector.

One window of the Soviet bus was smashed before West Berlin police surrounded it and escorted it through the jeering mob, ranging in size from 500 to 1,500 persons. A Russian sedan accompanying the bus also was stoned.

At least seven of the demonstrators were arrested.

About a dozen of the West Berlin demonstrators shouted "American go home" at U. S. military policemen standing near the spot where the youth was shot and left to die by Red guards.

The Yankee-go-home call — almost unheard in years here—reflected the bitterness of many West Berliners. They said the Americans should have intervened to rescue the teen - ager who was struck by Communist gunfire when he tried to leap over the wall just a block and a half from checkpoint Charlie.

Freedom 40 Club Plan Is Working

By JIMMY HATTEN
World Staff Writer

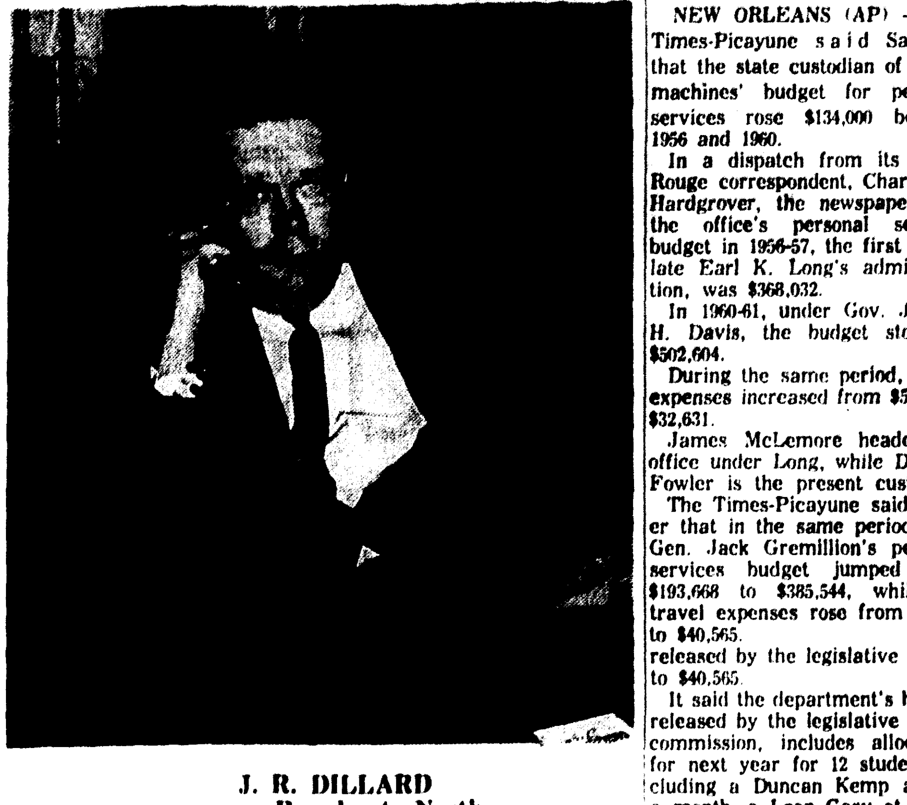
LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — The magnitude of the effect that has been wrought by a modification of the "Reverse Freedom Rider" movement by a local group was beginning to crystalize Saturday.

J. R. Dillard, spokesman for the Freedom 40 Club of Lake Providence is being catapulted into national prominence for hitting on the idea of sending Southern Negroes to rural northern areas instead of to metropolitan areas as was the practice when the rides began as a brainchild of George Singelmann of New Orleans.

Saturday, newsmen from a Columbia Broadcasting System affiliate in Minneapolis, were in Lake Providence to film Dillard and the Freedom 40 Club for a 30 - minute program devoted to the South's feeling on the rides. An equal 30-minute spot was to be given the northern version.

The Freedom 40 Club's aim is to send Negroes to rural areas in the North, such as Redwood Falls, Minn., where they will come in direct contact with white persons. The club pointed out that to send Negroes to large towns would defeat the purpose of the rides, since the riders could "go for months without seeing a white man."

Dillard says the plan "has worked beautifully."



J. R. DILLARD
.... Broadcasts North

PASSMAN APPROVES

The idea has the blessings of U. S. Rep. Otto E. Passman, who said, "for the first time northerners are beginning to realize the problems of the people of the South."

Passman, commenting for the Morning World from Washington, said he would be happy to contribute to the rider movement.

Meanwhile, the Freedom 40 Club expressed concern over the way in which a Negro group of five was moved out of Redwood Falls.

News director Dean Alexander of Radio Station KDWB in St. Paul, Minn., reported that funds of the county welfare board were used to help get the five out of Redwood Falls.

He said other contributors were the NAACP and "well-wishers."

The group, consisting of Betty Beal, 21, her three children and her sister, Barbara, 16, left for Detroit, Mich., Friday to stay with relatives.

So far, six of the seven Negroes have left Redwood Falls. A seventh, has not been heard from.

Dillard accused the Redwood Falls community of indulging in the same tactics that they have so harshly critized the Freedom 40 Club for. He said the trip out of Redwood Falls was no different from the trip out of Lake Providence, and added Redwood Falls is now joining the "Reverse Freedom Ride" movement.

DON'T HUG, FEED

But when the first rider, James Reed, arrived in town, it was a different story, Dillard said. Reed was greeted handsomely, posed with Chamber of Commerce President Palmer Hanson's arm around him, housed and fed in white establishments. Shortly afterward, he hitch - hiked out of town, bound for Arizona.

Dillard chided Redwood Falls. He said the Negroes "need to be fed and put to work, not hugged."

The town, a little larger than Lake Providence, simply doesn't know what to do with the Negroes, Dillard said. He pointed to a page layout in a St. Paul paper, showing Reed in various poses and in various phases of his activities upon arrival.

The Redwood Falls paper also had a big front page spread, complete with banner headlines and pictures. The gist of the attitude was that Redwood Falls would meet the "challenge."

But the press noted that all was not roses. Three men in a conversation laid it down thusly "Why didn't they give him 40 cents and send him on to Marshall (the next town down the highway)."

"NICE GUY"

Other people said, according to the papers, "Look, we're not against integration. We welcome Negroes when they pass through. But its not fair to do this to Redwood Falls. I feel sorry for Jim. He's a nice guy. It's a shame to do this to him."

The attitude is fast switching to alarm as evidenced in newsmen's excited quiries to Dillard about whether he's going to send more, when, where they're going, and at the mention that 14 more are leaving soon, an exasperated, "Fourteen families?"

Meanwhile, the contributions are rolling in, from both North and South, and the "Freedom 40 Club" thinks the role it is playing may have a telling effect on the Northern attitude toward the South's Negro problem — especially since the North may soon be too busy trying to take care of its own Negro problem.

War I Planes Stage Show

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)- The graying survivors of America's revered Lafayette Escadrille and Lafayette Flying Corps watched Saturday an aerial pantomime of their daring World War I exploits.

With stunt pilots at the controls, a french Nieuport 28 and a German Fokker D-2 engaged in a mock dogfight above Kellogg Field, where a crowd estimated at 100,000 gathered to see the air show.

The vast advances of military aviation were awesomely apparent when the Thunderbirds, the U. S. Air Force jet demonstration team, followed the dogfight on the program.

The dogfight—complete with the sound effects of blank ammunition—was staged as a tribute to the Americans who fought as members of the Lafayette Escadrille and Flying Corps and the French Foreign Legion.

The ancient combatants were flown by their owners, Cole Palen, of Rhinebeck, N. Y., in the Nieuport, and Frank Tallman, of Santa Ana, Calif., in the Fokker.

The city of Battle Creek, sponsor of the reunion, is host to more than 40 Americans who served as pilots for the Escadrille, Flying Corps and French Foreign Legion.

The veterans are the survivors of the 209 Americans who offered their services to France after the outbreak of the war in 1914. When the United States entered World War I, many of these aviators joined American units.

One of the former members of the Lafayette Corps, Col. Frederick W. Zinn, later became a Battle Creek civic leader. He died two years ago and was buried near a runway at Kellogg Field.

Three Houston Brothers Die In Gunfights

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Three brothers were killed in gunfights Saturday that erupted in an argument over a woman.

Two men, arrested within hours after the shootings, were charged with murder in the slayings.

Killed were Fred and Larry Garcia, 34 and 24, of Houston, and Martin Garcia, 26, of San Antonio.

Fred Garcia was shot in the chest as he stood in front of the El Rancho night club shortly after midnight.

Police said the shooting followed an argument between Garcia and Benito Espinoza, 29, of Houston, when Espinoza made advances toward a 28-year-old woman who was with the Garcia brothers.

Espinoza has been charged in the slaying.

The two surviving brothers chased Espinoza and during a brief gunfight pistol-whipped him, police said. They then returned to the night club.

There they scuffled with club owner Antonio Ortega, 42, and he drew his automatic pistol and shot Larry twice and Martin once, police said.

Union Removes Pickets At Space Center Under Court's Order

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The space agency — armed with a court order against a strike which has crippled space research projects — Saturday directed contractors to return to work Monday.

Pickets were removed from gates leading into Redstone Arsenal, but a union spokesman declined to say whether the action was a result of the court order. The 1,500 workers who have been either picketing or honoring picket lines since last Tuesday are involved in construction work at the arsenal and are normally off on Saturday.

Thousands of other workers employed at other tasks at the arsenal were not affected by the walkout.

Although the union spokesman declined to comment on whether the court order would be honored, attorneys for the union said they would abide by it.

U. S. Dist. Judge Clarence W. Allgood issued a temporary restraining order against the strike after a Friday night hearing in Birmingham.

He set a hearing date, Aug. 22, on whether to extend the order.

The space agency sent the following telegram to 18 contractors: "The strike involving your company has been enjoined by the federal court, and all pickets have been removed from the Redstone Arsenal gates. You are hereby instructed to man this job with the proper number and types of skills by Monday, Aug. 20, 1962."

The telegram was signed by Harry H. Gorman, deputy director for administration, the Marshall Space Flight Center.

The walkout by members of Local 558, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers Union, AFL-CIO, had idled millions of dollars worth of construction. The local was protesting the use of nonunion workers by Baroco Electrical Construction Co. of Pensacola, Fla., a subcontractor on a construction job.

Allgood's order came on a petition from the National Labor Relations Board which acted on complaints from space agency officials and some construction companies involved.

Three Houston Brothers Die In Gunfights

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Three brothers were killed in gunfights Saturday that erupted in an argument over a woman.

Two men, arrested within hours after the shootings, were charged with murder in the slayings.

Killed were Fred and Larry Garcia, 34 and 24, of Houston, and Martin Garcia, 26, of San Antonio.

Fred Garcia was shot in the chest as he stood in front of the El Rancho night club shortly after midnight.

Police said the shooting followed an argument between Garcia and Benito Espinoza, 29, of Houston, when Espinoza made advances toward a 28-year-old woman who was with the Garcia brothers.

Espinoza has been charged in the slaying.

The two surviving brothers chased Espinoza and during a brief gunfight pistol-whipped him, police said. They then returned to the night club.

There they scuffled with club owner Antonio Ortega, 42, and he drew his automatic pistol and shot Larry twice and Martin once, police said.

Eisenhowers Are Guests Of Kennedys

By EDDY GILMORE

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP)—The Eisenhowers dined Saturday night with the Kennedys.

The former president of the United States and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower drove to Cassillis House, eight miles from here, to have dinner with Archibald David Kennedy, 34, seventh marquess of Ailsa, chief of the far-flung clan Kennedy.

President Kennedy's ancestors are said to have emigrated to America from County Wexford in Ireland. The marquess' ancient ancestor, one John Kennedy, bought large properties here in the 14th Century. Historians say this John Kennedy's ancestors came to Scotland from Ireland but they aren't sure which part of Ireland.

In any case, if it hadn't been for this group of Kennedys, former President Eisenhower probably would not be here now enjoying a golfing holiday. In 1945 the head of the clan Kennedy gave Culzean Castle — then ancestral home of the clan—to the Scottish National Trust. This is a government bureau that administers a great many stately homes and national monuments.

In appreciation for his military leadership in World War II, the people of Scotland—through the national trust—gave Eisenhower a 10-room flat in the castle for life.

Ike planned to go to church at nearby Kirkoswald Sunday morning and then play golf in the afternoon. He played Saturday, shot a 96.

He will leave Scotland Tuesday for a two-day stay in Ireland and then return to the United States, ending his tour of Europe.

IKEDA TO BONN

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Japanese Prime Minister Hayato Ikeda will visit Bonn in late October to confer with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and other West German government officials, it was learned Friday. Chief subject of the talks was expected to be Japan's relations with the European Common Market.

French May Quiz Soustelle

PARIS (AP)—Jacques Soustelle may be picked up for questioning if the former Cabinet minister arrested in Italy shows up on the French border, official sources said Saturday.

Soustelle once was a staunch supporter of President Charles de Gaulle but turned against his policy of independence for Algeria, where Soustelle once served as governor-general.

Police in Milan arrested Soustelle as an undesirable alien Friday night, saying he was traveling on a false passport. They said he would be deported to any country of his choice.

Italian police said the former minister of information under De Gaulle will be expelled Sunday and had asked to go to Switzerland. But in Bern, Swiss police obtained a warrant to question him should he appear, and Swiss officials said it was unlikely he would be given political asylum.

French official sources said there are no charges against Soustelle, but he might be detained for questioning should he show up at any French frontier post.

They said he would be asked about a clandestine tract of the extremist Secret Army Organization last month in which Soustelle was quoted as favoring the so-called National Resistance Council of Secret Army opposition to the French government.

They said this purported statement had never been verified and that there is no proof that Soustelle ever made such a statement.

French newspapers reported the Italians had acted on the basis of an unofficial request from the French Foreign Ministry.

Within the past 36 hours, a series of six holdups or attempted holdups took place in Paris or the Paris region, plus one in Lyon. Officials blamed them on Europeans recently arrived from North Africa.

In one case the robbers got the franc equivalent of $5,000. In another they made off with the equivalent of $4,000. But in the other holdups the men got nothing.

The robbers apparently were trying to use in France the money-raising technique so successful in pre-independence Algeria, when Secret Army gunmen freely raided Algerian banks and business offices for funds.

STATUS SYMBOL

There are two kinds of status symbols. One type has to do solely with financial status: certain makes of cars, mink coats, diamond tiaras and ocean-going yachts.

The other kind — the kind we respect — deals with achievement; things like a degree from a good school, the work of men like the Wright Brothers, Edison and Salk, the heroic acts of our men in uniform.

To become and to remain a member of the Order of the Golden Rule is a status symbol of the second kind. That's why we are truly and pardonably proud to announce that we remain the member of the Order in this community.

UNDER NEW REGULATIONS

Lane-Changers May Find Themselves In Trouble

(EDITOR'S NOTE: — This is part 3 of a series of articles on Louisiana's new highway regulations which are now in effect throughout the state.)

Drivers who zig - zag from one lane to another may be in for trouble under the new highway laws. On multi - lane highways, changing lanes is now considered a turn and, among other things, all turns must be signalled.

Another change is in requiring all vehicles manufactured or assembled after Dec. 31, 1962, and sold in Louisiana to be equipped with electric turn signals in addition to two stop lights.

The new law has the same requirements about making right turns from the right hand part of the road and left turns from the left lane. But safe turning practice is now nailed down in the law by making it mandatory to signal the intention to turn continuously for 100 feet before the turn.

Turning on a curve or the crest of a grade is prohibited if another driver would not be able to see the turn being made 500 feet in either direction.

As with practically all other driving maneuvers, turning has a "catch - all" requirement which overrides almost everything else. A turn cannot be made "unless and until such movement can be made with reasonable safety."

Methods of giving turn signals can be with the arm in the usual manner or by mechanical or electircal turn device which has been approved by the Department of Public Safety.

RIGHT-OF-WAY

Who has the right - of - way and under what conditions is spelled out in Article IV of the regulations.

Generally, the first car in an intersection has the right - of-way. If two cars enter at approximately the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left should yield. This rule is internationally recognized and applies in the air and on the water as well as the road.

There are exceptions to this regulation which covers the fact that cars making a left turn must yield to oncoming traffic, highway signs must be followed and cars entering from a private road, driveway, alley or building must stop and then yield to oncoming traffic.

What to do when an ambulance, police car or other emergency vehicle approaches is detailed and specific

"The driver of every other vehicle shall yield the right of way and shall immediately drive to a position parallel to, and as close as possible to, the right hand edge or curb of the highway clear of any intersection, and shall stop and remain in such position until the authorized emergency vehicle has passed, except when otherwise directed by a police officer."

The new regulations do not stop here, but also prohibit following emergency vehicles closer than 500 feet or parking within a block of where the emergency vehicle has stopped in answer to an official call.

Curiousity seekers who jam up roads to and from fires or on ambulance or police business are apt to find themselves slapped with stiff fines or even jail sentences.

Part four will cover the regulations on parking, standing or stopping.

Mrs. Kennedy Skiis Without Water Dunking

RAVELLO, Italy (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy conquered the water of Salerno Bay Saturday by going water skiing without getting a dunking.

For the first time since she arrived here 10 days ago the first lady managed to ski without tumbling into the water.

She first tried a week ago, but the water won and Mrs. Kennedy took an unscheduled swim. She tried it again, with four-year-old daughter Caroline standing on the skis in front of her.

The result was the same—a splash.

Ducking her head from side to side to avoid the spray that was getting into her eyes, she came in for a perfect landing near the dock of her sister's rented beach house at Conca Dei Marini. Mrs. Kennedy dropped the line to the boat gracefully and swam to the dock.

Afterwards, two other members of the party tried water skiing with equal success.

After a sightseeing visit to the village church, Mrs. Kennedy, her sister and brother-in-law, Prince and Princess Radziwill, and other guests drove to the sea for the day.

Space Twins Get Soviet Homage

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet hierarchy showered flowers, kisses and honors on their space twins Saturday. Premier Khrushchev vowed the Soviet Union will follow up the twins' orbital feats with "still more wonders." Thousands cheered.

Speculation that Khrushchev might use the Red Square celebration as the launching pad for some dramatic new move in earthly power politics proved unfounded. But he reiterated that he is going to push for a Berlin settlement.

Maj. Andrian Nikolayev and Lt. Col. Pavel Popovich, the Soviet Union's newest spacemen, stood beside Khrushchev atop Lenin's red tomb to receive the capital's acclaim. Also on hand were their two Soviet predecessors in space —Maj. Yuri Gagarin and Maj. Gherman Titov.

The Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) bestowed on both Nikolayev and Popovich the title Hero of the Soviet Union and also the title Flier-Cosmonaut of the U.S.S.R. for the group flight, reported to have covered more than a million miles, that ended Wednesday.

They were guests at a big evening reception in the Kremlin.

Nikolayev and Popovich flew into Moscow from a rest station on the Volga.

All the government hierarchy was at the airport to meet them. Khrushchev flew in from his vacation spot on the Black Sea only a few minutes before the astronauts landed and stepped out upon a long red carpet.

Khrushchev greeted them on the reception platform. He hugged them and kissed both repeatedly on the mouth, as did half the Presidium. Such kisses are an old Russian custom.

The festive trimmings, however, were far less than those put up for celebration of May Day and the Bolshevik Revolution. There were fewer flags, fewer banners and even fewer places where pictures of party and government leaders were displayed.

It was a gray day. Clouds moved in after a sunny dawn.

Both astronauts made brief speeches. Both said they were willing to work at any new task for the Communist party and the government.

Khrushchev said: "Today we greet here two new cosmic brothers, space twins. They have accomplished a great feat which marks a new stage in the exploration of outer space."

Mrs. Kennedy Skiis Without Water Dunking

RAVELLO, Italy (UPI)—Jacqueline Kennedy conquered the water of Salerno Bay Saturday by going water skiing without getting a dunking.

For the first time since she arrived here 10 days ago the first lady managed to ski without tumbling into the water.

She first tried a week ago, but the water won and Mrs. Kennedy took an unscheduled swim. She tried it again, with four-year-old daughter Caroline standing on the skis in front of her.

The result was the same—a splash.

Ducking her head from side to side to avoid the spray that was getting into her eyes, she came in for a perfect landing near the dock of her sister's rented beach house at Conca Dei Marini. Mrs. Kennedy dropped the line to the boat gracefully and swam to the dock.

UNDER NEW REGULATIONS

Lane-Changers May Find Themselves In Trouble

(EDITOR'S NOTE: — This is part 3 of a series of articles on Louisiana's new highway regulations which are now in effect throughout the state.)

Drivers who zig - zag from one lane to another may be in for trouble under the new highway laws. On multi - lane highways, changing lanes is now considered a turn and, among other things, all turns must be signalled.

Another change is in requiring all vehicles manufactured or assembled after Dec. 31, 1962, and sold in Louisiana to be equipped with electric turn signals in addition to two stop lights.

The new law has the same requirements about making right turns from the right hand part of the road and left turns from the left lane. But safe turning practice is now nailed down in the law by making it mandatory to signal the intention to turn continuously for 100 feet before the turn.

Turning on a curve or the crest of a grade is prohibited if another driver would not be able to see the turn being made 500 feet in either direction.

As with practically all other driving maneuvers, turning has a "catch - all" requirement which overrides almost everything else. A turn cannot be made "unless and until such movement can be made with reasonable safety."

Methods of giving turn signals can be with the arm in the usual manner or by mechanical or electircal turn device which has been approved by the Department of Public Safety.

RIGHT-OF-WAY

Who has the right - of - way and under what conditions is spelled out in Article IV of the regulations.

Generally, the first car in an intersection has the right - of-way. If two cars enter at approximately the same time, the driver of the vehicle on the left should yield. This rule is internationally recognized and applies in the air and on the water as well as the road.

There are exceptions to this regulation which covers the fact that cars making a left turn must yield to oncoming traffic, highway signs must be followed and cars entering from a private road, driveway, alley or building must stop and then yield to oncoming traffic.

What to do when an ambulance, police car or other emergency vehicle approaches is detailed and specific.

"The driver of every other vehicle shall yield the right of way and shall immediately drive to a position parallel to, and as close as possible to, the right hand edge or curb of the highway clear of any intersection, and shall stop and remain in such position until the authorized emergency vehicle has passed, except when otherwise directed by a police officer."

The new regulations do not stop here, but also prohibit following emergency vehicles closer than 500 feet or parking within a block of where the emergency vehicle has stopped in answer to an official call.

Curiousity seekers who jam up roads to and from fires or on ambulance or police business are apt to find themselves slapped with stiff fines or even jail sentences.

Part four will cover the regulations on parking, standing or stopping.

CONFIRM HER FEARS

Doctors Perform Finkbine Abortion

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Mrs. Sherri Finkbine's arbortion was carried out Saturday and her Swedish doctor said the fear that drove her all the way to Sweden was well founded. Had she given birth, the child would have been deformed by the drug thalidomide, he said.

After a 45-minute operation, the television performer from Phoenix, Ariz., was reported in satisfactory condition in Caroline Hospital.

The surgeon told her husband, Robert Finkbine, that the drug used in the early part of her pregnancy had certain effects on the unborn child. No details were given, but babies born deformed from the drug elsewhere have been without limbs, or with hands or feet attached directly to the body. Some have had internal deformities.

Mrs. Finkbine entered the hospital Friday after the Royal Medical Board approved her application for an abortion. If all goes well, she may be able to start home next week.

The abortion termined a pregnancy that had been a nightmare of more than two months for Mrs. Finkbine, 30, and her 31-year-old husband.

Finkbine bought the tranquilizer thalidomide on a visit to England last year. His wife used about 30 pills during the first stages of her pregnancy.

Through an article in a Phoenix newspaper, they learned of the tragic effect the drug had on the human foetus in many parts of Europe and the Americas.

After their attempts to obtain a legal abortion had been turned down in Arizona, the couple in desperation flew to Sweden, where abortions are legal in some cases.

They arrived Aug.5. Their plea for abortion received enormous publicity and they moved to the villa of Swedish friends to avoid the spotlight.

On their first week in Stockholm they saw two Swedish doctors. After examining Mrs. Finkbine these doctors, a gynecologist and a psychiatrist, supported her case and submitted a formal application to Sweden's medical board, the only Swedish authority to ruie on abortions.

After a long and nervous wait the Finkbines were told that the Board had approved their application on the ground that a childbirth might endanger Mrs. Finkbine's mental health.

The trip to Sweden has cost the Finkbines a great deal of money. To help pay the cost the Finkbines have sold their jointly written story to newspaper syndicates and press agencies in Sweden and other parts of the world.

Mrs. Finkbine is expected to stay at the Caroline Hospital for five or six days. After that she and her husband will return to the United States.

A friend quoted Finkbine as saying: "I think we will go home by way of Paris. This has been a trying time for my wife, and I am sure she needs some distraction."

Lady Churchill Visits Husband

LONDON (AP)—Lady Churchill visited her husband in the hospital Saturday and said when she left: "We very much hope he will be coming out Tuesday."

"He's very well," Lady Churchill added, smiling, "but we won't know until Monday exactly when he is leaving the hospital."

Sir Winston, 87, now well on the mend after breaking his thigh in a fall in a Monte Carlo hotel, has been in Middlesex Hospital since June 29.

Soviet May Attempt New Berlin Move

BERLIN (AP)—Lack of news about Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist leader, has brought speculation that he and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are working out some new move on Berlin.

Whatever the move might be, it probably would be bad news for Berliners. Just the silence about Ulbricht is enough to worry many people.

Ulbright and his No. 2 man, acting Premier Willi Stoph, flew to the Soviet Union Aug. 1. Nobody said just where they were going. Khrushchev was known to be resting then on the shore of the Black Sea.

Three days later a Soviet provincial newspaper—Pravda Ukraina—reported the two Germans had spent the interval at Kiev, on their way to a vacation. But in East Berlin the official Communist daily Neues Deutschland said nothing about any vacation and emphasized they were talking with high Soviet officials.

That could be just vanity on the part of the Red regime. It could also mean that the German Communists were trying to sell some political action and that Khrushchev was less interested.

Since Aug. 4 there has been no word of Ulbricht and Stoph's activities. Now Khrushchev is back in Moscow.

Authoritative predictions have been heard that Khrushchev will go to the United Nations General Assembly meeting this fall. Speculation followed in Moscow that he might sign a separate peace treaty with Ulbricht and then try to get U.N. approval.

Kennedy Speaks At Groundbreaking

LOS BANOS, Calif. (AP)—President Kennedy presided Saturday at groundbreaking for an unique $511 million water project and bestowed a political slap on the back on California's Democratic Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Kennedy said also that the times and the need demand pushing forward vigorously on a six-point program of resources development he began advocating in his 1960 presidential campaign.

The President and the governor shared ceremonial honors and dynamite-firing duties that marked the beginning of the massive San Luis Project to provide vital water for a large area of Central and Southern California.

Kennedy emphasized in a prepared address that "water is man's oldest and most precious natural resource—the key to economic growth, industrial expansion, the living standards of all within its reach."

A quick allusion to Brown's leadership in the field of water development naturally wasn't calculated to injure the governor's bid to capture another term in November and drub former Vice President Richard M. Nixon—his opponent—in the process.

Kennedy said in his prepared remarks:

"Many state administrations in California wrestled with this problem and some gains were made. But I believe that all Californians will long remember the water leadership of Gov. Pat Brown and his associates in the California Legislature."

The San Luis Dam, reservoir and canal project on the western side of the San Joaquin Valley is unique, Kennedy said, because the federal and a state government for the first time are joining hands in a major water project.

"We need more governors—and more state legislatures—who do more about state's responsibilities and talk less about state's rights," Kennedy said.

Speaking up for a broad new conservation effort, to provide an heritage of resources for the next generation, the President again called for:

Creation of national seashore parks at Point Reyes just north of San Francisco and on the Gulf of Texas.

Continued federal funds and basic planning for power development along great rivers.

Here in the home state of Nixon, Kennedy would like to do some more dynamiting—of Nixon's aspirations to become governor and remain in strong political focus.

Isn't That A Ridiculous Question?

You bet! Millions of Americans would rightfully resent being called "Mr. or Mrs. FHA or VA." just because they financed their homes through these federal agencies.

Yet, by some strange twist of logic (so carefully sold to the public) member-owned Electric Co-ops are constantly referred to as "REA" or federal agencies .. because they, too, borrow federal funds to build desperately needed electric lines to serve rural folks.

Just like FHA or VA-financed home-owners and the 20 Commercial Companies in Louisiana who also borrow REA funds, the 13 Electric Co-ops repay the REA loans on strict schedules, plus interest. And, the non-profit cooperatives are doing an indispensible job nobody else can do for ALL rural people at rates ALL can afford. . .a job vital to Louisiana's development and continued progress in Town and Country.

Yes, the "REA" or "federal agency" tag is just as ridiculous as calling an FHA-financed neighbor. "Mr. FHA." Electric Co-ops are private businesses, owned and operated by thousands of your rural friends and neighbors.

After a long and nervous wait the Finkbines were told that the board had approved their application on the ground that a childbirth might endanger Mrs. Finkbine's mental health.

The trip to Sweden has cost the Finkbines a great deal of money. To help pay the cost the Finkbines have sold their jointly written story to newspaper syndicates and press agencies in Sweden and other parts of the world.

Mrs. Finkbine is expected to stay at the Caroline Hospital for five or six days. After that she and her husband will return to the United States.

A friend quoted Finkbine as saying: "I think we will go home by way of Paris. This has been a trying time for my wife, and I am sure she needs some distraction."

Soviet May Attempt New Berlin Move

BERLIN (AP)—Lack of news about Walter Ulbricht, East German Communist leader, has brought speculation that he and Soviet Premier Khrushchev are working out some new move on Berlin.

Whatever the move might be, it probably would be bad news for Berliners. Just the silence about Ulbricht is enough to worry many people.

Ulbright and his No. 2 man, acting Premier Willi Stoph, flew to the Soviet Union Aug. 1. Nobody said just where they were going. Khrushchev was known to be resting then on the shore of the Black Sea.

Three days later a Soviet provincial newspaper—Pravda Ukraina—reported the two Germans had spent the interval at Kiev, on their way to a vacation. But in East Berlin the official Communist daily Neues Deutschland said nothing about any vacation and emphasized they were talking with high Soviet officials.

That could be just vanity on the part of the Red regime. It could also mean that the German Communists were trying to sell some political action and that Khrushchev was less interested.

Since Aug. 4 there has been no word of Ulbricht and Stoph's activities. Now Khrushchev is back in Moscow.

Authoritative predictions have been heard that Khrushchev will go to the United Nations General Assembly meeting this fall. Speculation followed in Moscow that he might sign a separate peace treaty with Ulbricht and then try to get U.N. approval.

Lady Churchill Visits Husband

LONDON (AP)—Lady Churchill visited her husband in the hospital Saturday and said when she left: "We very much hope he will be coming out Tuesday."

"He's very well," Lady Churchill added, smiling, "but we won't know until Monday exactly when he is leaving the hospital."

Sir Winston, 87, now well on the mend after breaking his thigh in a fall in a Monte Carlo hotel, has been in Middlesex Hospital since June 29.

Kennedy Speaks At Groundbreaking

LOS BANOS, Calif. (AP)—President Kennedy presided Saturday at groundbreaking for an unique $511 million water project and bestowed a political slap on the back on California's Democratic Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Kennedy said also that the times and the need demand pushing forward vigorously on a six-point program of resources development he began advocating in his 1960 presidential campaign.

The President and the governor shared ceremonial honors and dynamite-firing duties that marked the beginning of the massive San Luis Project to provide vital water for a large area of Central and Southern California.

Kennedy emphasized in a prepared address that "water is man's oldest and most precious natural resource—the key to economic growth, industrial expansion, the living standards of all within its reach."

A quick allusion to Brown's leadership in the field of water development naturally wasn't calculated to injure the governor's bid to capture another term in November and drub former Vice President Richard M. Nixon—his opponent—in the process.

Kennedy said in his prepared remarks:

"Many state administrations in California wrestled with this problem and some gains were made. But I believe that all Californians will long remember the water leadership of Gov. Pat Brown and his associates in the California Legislature."

The San Luis Dam, reservoir and canal project on the western side of the San Joaquin Valley is unique, Kennedy said, because the federal and a state government for the first time are joining hands in a major water project.

"We need more governors—and more state legislatures—who do more about state's responsibilities and talk less about state's rights," Kennedy said.

Speaking up for a broad new conservation effort, to provide an heritage of resources for the next generation, the President again called for:

Creation of national seashore parks at Point Reyes just north of San Francisco and on the Gulf of Texas.

Enactment of a strong wilderness preservation bill.

Improved and new outdoor recreation areas to be provided through federal-state cooperation.

Continued federal funds and basic planning for power development along great rivers.

Here in the home state of Nixon, Kennedy would like to do some more dynamiting—of Nixon's aspirations to become governor and remain in strong political focus.

"Does anybody know I'm here?"

"Does anybody care?"

These are questions GI's all over the world are asking themselves. For many, the only evidence they see that Main Street, U. S. A., does care is their nearby USO. The USO offers GI's its vital measure of home—when and where it's needed most.

But, with our military buildup, the USO hasn't been able to keep pace. More USO's are needed for the relaxation and spiritual uplift so urgently required by our sons in service.

Let every GI know that you care, so that he'll never have to wonder,

Isn't That A Ridiculous Question?

You bet! Millions of Americans would rightfully resent being called "Mr. or Mrs. FHA or VA." just because they financed their homes through these federal agencies.

Yet, by some strange twist of logic (so carefully sold to the public) member-owned Electric Co-ops are constantly referred to as "REA" or federal agencies . . because they, too, borrow federal funds to build desperately needed electric lines to serve rural folks.

Just like FHA or VA-financed home-owners and the 20 Commercial Companies in Louisiana who also borrow REA funds, the 13 Electric Co-ops repay the REA loans on strict schedules, plus interest. And, the non-profit cooperatives are doing an indispensible job nobody else can do for ALL rural people at rates ALL can afford. . .a job vital to Louisiana's development and continued progress in Town and Country.

Yes, the "REA" or "federal agency" tag is just as ridiculous as calling an FHA-financed neighbor, "Mr. FHA." Electric Co-ops are private businesses, owned and operated by thousands of your rural friends and neighbors.

BATON ROUGE (Special)—The late E. M. Berry, formerly Asphalt Reconstruction foreman in this area, who resided at 113 Westwood Dr., West Monroe, will be recognized posthumously at a Baton Rouge dinner Tuesday, Aug. 21, for his 25 years of meritorious service with the Highway Department.

The dinner will be held at the Oak Manor Motel, beginning at 7 p.m. and Highway Director Ray W. Burgess will present to Berry's survivors a citation and service pin for the many years of devoted service.

Thirty other 25, 30 and 35 year awards will be presented to Highway Department employees from other parts of the state. The total years of service of all those receiving service pins comes to 875 years.

Civil Service Group Upholds Edwards Firing

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Louisiana Civil Service Commission upheld Friday the second firing of Arsene Edwards as Lake Charles district manager for the Department of Conservation.

But the day Edwards returned to his job, the department notified he was dismissed again. Gill gave new reasons, some of which were ruled valid by the Civil Service Commission.

Edwards was accused of discriminating in the issuance of oil and gas allowables in a dozen instances, among other things.

Communist police shot and captured a man fleeing to West Berlin through barbed wire, but a young woman made it to the West safely.

Eyewitnesses reported a young man was struck by machine pistol bullets and dragged away from the border by Communist police along the line between the British sector's Spandau district and East Germany.

The bitter crowd put up two crosses and laid wreaths and flowers at the site of the killing, while the Communists sent guards armed with machine pistols to the roofs of war-scarred buildings along the other side of the wall.

Choudrant Man Dies Of Wounds

RUSTON (Special) — A 56-year - old Choudrant man died Friday afternoon as the result of self - inflicted wounds, according to Lincoln Parish coroner Dr. J. J. Bennett.

The victim was identified as Claude B. Smith, who was fishing on Choudrant Creek with some friends.

Persons on the excursion with him told officials Mr. Smith walked into the water and cut a vein in his left arm, then stabbed himself in the heart area with a knife.

He was taken to Farmerville, then to Ruston Lincoln General Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

The body was taken to Hixson Brothers Funeral Home in Monroe.

Negro Held For Murder Of His Wife

A 27 - year - old Monroe Negro woman was dead on arrival Saturday night at E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital and her husband was charged with attacking and stabbing her in the heart with a pocketknife. A neighbor who tried to intercede was stabbed in the shoulder.

Dead was Teresa Taylor of 4-B Roy Drive in Carver Homes, a Negro housing project. Henry Taylor, 30, whose address police records showed as Baton Rouge, was booked with murder and transferred to Ouachita Parish jail.

The neighbor, H. P. Webb, stabbed in the shoulder blade as he struggled to free the Taylor woman from her husband outside their apartment, was undergoing emergency treatment at St. Francis Hospital.

Monroe police offered no explanation last night as to what precipitated the attack on the woman. She suffered several stab wounds.

Deputy Coroner Dr. C. U. Johnson attributed death to a stab through the chest wall and into the heart. The woman apparently died in the ambulance enroute to the hospital.

The attack occurred around 7:30 p.m. Taylor was apprehended by Monroe police hiding in undergrowth at the corner of Texas Avenue and Short Street at 8:50 p.m.

Taylor and his wife evidently became involved in an altercation inside their home, alarming a cousin of the woman who rushed out to tell neighbors to summon police. Neighbor women told how they struggled with Taylor, causing him to drop the knife. With one of them holding his arm, they said, he got the weapon with his free hand, drew the blade with his teeth and began brandishing it, frightening them back. He then chased his wife outside, the story went, where he encountered Webb.

Taylor, of Baton Rouge, was seen in the Monroe area only rarely. He arrived sometime Saturday afternoon.

The Taylor woman's body was taken to Miller's Funeral Home.

Anniversary

Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Cantrell will observe their golden wedding anniversary on August 29 at their home, 605 E. California in Ruston.

Rev. Cantrell was pastor of Central Baptist Church in Monroe from 1935-1944. He is presently retired.

Visiting

Two former residents of the Monroe area, Mr. and Mrs James R. Johnson, who have migrated to Cajun country are back visiting friends and relatives in Monroe and Ruston. Mrs. Johnson is the former Jessie Ormand of Ruston. The pair are on a short vacation, taking a break from studies at the University of Southwestern Louisiana at Lafayette and from home life in that city.

Although the couple likes to cruise the lakes with fishing poles, they haven't been able to take advantage of the local ponds — too much visiting.

Check-Up

Here's wishing a speedy recovery to West Monroe Superintendent of Sanitation, W. R. "Slim" Townson, who checked into the St. Francis Hospital Saturday morning. Something about high blood pressure and a need to take it easy for awhile, Slim reports. He's undergoing a full battery of tests that may last anywhere from a few days to a week and the city department head isn't certain exactly when he can get back to business.

At any rate, he's got a week of vacation coming and he's decided to take it now, regardless of how long the tests run. Slim says he's never seen so many needles and other unpleasant equipment in his life. We're sure he'd be happier to see his many friends. He's in room 679.

Crash Injures Woman Outside West Monroe

Recently married, both are natives of California. They were passing through on the way to Rowe's duty station with the U. S. Army at Fort Benning.

Investigating state police said Mrs. Rowe apparently had fallen asleep at the wheel, slicing first off the right corner of the road, then back across and up a steep nearby embankment. From there, the little car rolled several times in coming back down. It was listed a total loss.

No charges were expected to be filed.

The accident occurred at approximately 3:45 p.m. Mrs. Rowe was rushed to the St. Francis Hospital by an ambulance of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe.

She reportedly lost a great deal of blood and was confined at the hospital last night for an undetermined period.

Mrs. McDougle, 69, Succumbs

Mrs. McDougle is survived by a son, Richard Jones, Odessa, Tex.; a daughter, Mrs. Edna Sharpe, Wilmington, Calif.; a sister, Mrs. Ida Bowen, Farmerville; and seven grandchildren.

Bitter Over Shooting Of Boy On Wall

Communist police shot and captured a man fleeing to West Berlin through barbed wire, but a young woman made it to the West safely.

Eyewitnesses reported a young man was struck by machine pistol bullets and dragged away from the border by Communist police along the line between the British sector's Spandau district and East Germany.

The bitter crowd put up two crosses and laid wreaths and flowers at the site of the killing, while the Communists sent guards armed with machine pistols to the roofs of war-scarred buildings along the other side of the wall.

Choudrant Man Dies Of Wounds

RUSTON (Special) — A 56-year - old Choudrant man died Friday afternoon as the result of self - inflicted wounds, according to Lincoln Parish coroner Dr. J. J. Bennett.

The victim was identified as Claude B. Smith, who was fishing on Choudrant Creek with some friends.

Persons on the excursion with him told officials Mr. Smith walked into the water and cut a vein in his left arm, then stabbed himself in the heart area with a knife.

He was taken to Farmerville, then to Ruston Lincoln General Hospital and pronounced dead on arrival.

The body was taken to Hixson Brothers Funeral Home in Monroe.

Negro Held For Murder Of His Wife

A 27 - year - old Monroe Negro woman was dead on arrival Saturday night at E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital and her husband was charged with attacking and stabbing her in the heart with a pocketknife. A neighbor who tried to intercede was stabbed in the shoulder.

Dead was Teresa Taylor of 4-B Roy Drive in Carver Homes, a Negro housing project. Henry Taylor, 30, whose address police records showed as Baton Rouge, was booked with murder and transferred to Ouachita Parish jail.

The neighbor, H. P. Webb, stabbed in the shoulder blade as he struggled to free the Taylor woman from her husband outside their apartment, was undergoing emergency treatment at St. Francis Hospital.

Monroe police offered no explanation last night as to what precipitated the attack on the woman. She suffered several stab wounds.

Deputy Coroner Dr. C. U. Johnson attributed death to a stab through the chest wall and into the heart. The woman apparently died in the ambulance enroute to the hospital.

The attack occurred around 7:30 p.m. Taylor was apprehended by Monroe police hiding in undergrowth at the corner of Texas Avenue and Short Street at 8:50 p.m.

Taylor and his wife evidently became involved in an altercation inside their home, alarming a cousin of the woman who rushed out to tell neighbors to summon police. Neighbor women told how they struggled with Taylor, causing him to drop the knife. With one of them holding his arm, they said, he got the weapon with his free hand, drew the blade with his teeth and began brandishing it, frightening them back. He then chased his wife outside, the story went, where he encountered Webb.

Taylor, of Baton Rouge, was seen in the Monroe area only rarely. He arrived sometime Saturday afternoon.

The Taylor woman's body was taken to Miller's Funeral Home.

Anniversary

Rev. and Mrs. D. D. Cantrell will observe their golden wedding anniversary on August 29 at their home, 605 E. California in Ruston.

Rev. Cantrell was pastor of Central Baptist Church in Monroe from 1935-1944. He is presently retired.

Visiting

Two former residents of the Monroe area, Mr. and Mrs James R. Johnson, who have migrated to Cajun country are back visiting friends and relatives in Monroe and Ruston. Mrs. Johnson is the former Jessie Ormand of Ruston. The pair are on a short vacation, taking a break from studies at the University of Southwestern Louisiana at Lafayette and from home life in that city.

Although the couple likes to cruise the lakes with fishing poles, they haven't been able to take advantage of the local ponds — too much visiting.

Check-Up

Here's wishing a speedy recovery to West Monroe Superintendent of Sanitation, W. R. "Slim" Townson, who checked into the St. Francis Hospital Saturday morning. Something about high blood pressure and a need to take it easy for awhile, Slim reports. He's undergoing a full battery of tests that may last anywhere from a few days to a week and the city department head isn't certain exactly when he can get back to business.

At any rate, he's got a week of vacation coming and he's decided to take it now, regardless of how long the tests run. Slim says he's never seen so many needles and other unpleasant equipment in his life. We're sure he'd be happier to see his many friends. He's in room 679.

Crash Injures Woman Outside West Monroe

Recently married, both are natives of California. They were passing through on the way to Rowe's duty station with the U. S. Army at Fort Benning.

Investigating state police said Mrs. Rowe apparently had fallen asleep at the wheel, slicing first off the right corner of the road, then back across and up a steep nearby embankment. From there, the little car rolled several times in coming back down. It was listed a total loss.

No charges were expected to be filed.

The accident occurred at approximately 3:45 p.m. Mrs. Rowe was rushed to the St. Francis Hospital by an ambulance of Kilpatrick's Funeral Home in West Monroe.

She reportedly lost a great deal of blood and was confined at the hospital last night for an undetermined period.

DUE TO ESTES HEARINGS

Sources Claim Freeman To Shakeup Farm Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well-placed sources said Saturday the Agriculture Department plans some high-level staff changes as a result of evidence unfolding in the Billie Sol Estes hearings.

Two Congress members friendly to the Kennedy administration and to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman say Freeman is convinced some of his men must be replaced and some demoted because they are too inept for the jobs they hold.

The two Democratic sources, speaking in separate interviews and declining to be quoted by name, said some of Freeman's decisions are tentative, some firm, and that he has not yet indicated how soon he will drop the boom.

The secretary, through Horace P. Godfrey, head of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), already has disclosed plans to ask Congress for more authority to protect the federal farm-aid program from exploitation in shady deals such as those described at hearings of the Senate Investigations subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

McClellan charged at hearings this week that the evidence seems clear that trusted aides kept Freeman in the dark about cotton-acreage allotment juggling which made a fortune for wheeler-dealer Estes before the department cracked down on him last spring.

The senator plans to resume hearings Tuesday, with more testimony from John C. Bagwell, Agriculture Department general counsel. Bagwell has denied allegations by Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., that Bagwell withheld from Freeman vital information concerning Estes' deals until the secretary demanded a report.

Bagwell insisted he gave Freeman a complete fill-in last April 11 on what the Estes case involved, and that it took Freeman only about 48 hours to put into the works orders which resulted in cancellation of Estes' disputed cotton contracts and a subsequent $554,000 fine.

This was not until after Estes had been arrested, however, on fraud and theft charges which had nothing to do with any investigation by the Agriculture Department.

McClellan told newsmen subsequent hearings will center on what happened in Washington to efforts from Texas designed to nip the Eestes cotton schemes as far back as early 1961.

DUE TO ESTES HEARINGS

Sources Claim Freeman To Shakeup Farm Staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — Well-placed sources said Saturday the Agriculture Department plans some high-level staff changes as a result of evidence unfolding in the Billie Sol Estes hearings.

Two Congress members friendly to the Kennedy administration and to Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman say Freeman is convinced some of his men must be replaced and some demoted because they are too inept for the jobs they hold.

The two Democratic sources, speaking in separate interviews and declining to be quoted by name, said some of Freeman's decisions are tentative, some firm, and that he has not yet indicated how soon he will drop the boom.

The secretary, through Horace P. Godfrey, head of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), already has disclosed plans to ask Congress for more authority to protect the federal farm-aid program from exploitation in shady deals such as those described at hearings of the Senate Investigations subcommittee headed by Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.

McClellan charged at hearings this week that the evidence seems clear that trusted aides kept Freeman in the dark about cotton-acreage allotment juggling which made a fortune for wheeler-dealer Estes before the department cracked down on him last spring.

The senator plans to resume hearings Tuesday, with more testimony from John C. Bagwell, Agriculture Department general counsel. Bagwell has denied allegations by Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., that Bagwell withheld from Freeman vital information concerning Estes' deals until the secretary demanded a report.

Bagwell insisted he gave Freeman a complete fill-in last April 11 on what the Estes case involved, and that it took Freeman only about 48 hours to put into the works orders which resulted in cancellation of Estes' disputed cotton contracts and a subsequent $554,000 fine.

This was not until after Estes had been arrested, however, on fraud and theft charges which had nothing to do with any investigation by the Agriculture Department.

McClellan told newsmen subsequent hearings will center on what happened in Washington to efforts from Texas designed to nip the Eestes cotton schemes as far back as early 1961.

JFK Aides Seek To Salvage Tight Grain Controls In Omnibus Farm Bill

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration fought Saturday to salvage tight controls over wheat production in the omnibus farm bill the Senate begins debating Monday in a charged political atmosphere.

Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the deputy Democratic leader conceded that the administration is abandoning its previous attempt to slap similar controls on feed grains.

But he said "we've got the votes" to retain in the battered measure the tough, mandatory controls on wheat which the Senate approved 42-38 last May but which were rejected in the House.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said in a separate interview he didn't know about that. He said, however, that Republicans are withdrawing their threats to talk at length against the bill.

As it was reported to the Senate by the Agriculture Committee, the measure would provide for a one-year extension of the voluntary corn and feed grain program previously approved by the House.

But by a narrow margin the committee inserted a domestic quota certificate plan for wheat including some of the tougher controls asked by the administration. It is this section which is certain to cause a floor fight.

American Art Paradox

By MILES A. SMITH
Associated Press Arts Editor

America is arts conscious as never before. New cultural centers are going up across the nation, and new records in public interest are being set. But while arts in general flourish, the individual artist struggles for a livng. This report spotlights the problem and the many solutions proposed.

Through history, the life of a creative artist has seldom been happy.

Michelangelo got a permanent crick in his back from crouching on those scaffolds in the Sistine Chapel. Rembrandt went bankrupt in his old age. Modigliani was an undernourished tubercular. Van Gogh lived on pittances furnished by his brother.

But there's glaring paradox in the plight of the artist in America today.

The arts are flourishing. Culture is prime. Art galleries and cultural centers are springing up all over the land. Symphony concerts are well attended.

MOST PROSPEROUS

But for the most part the individual creator — the man who in agony or ecstasy captures inspiration and materializes it on a musical scale, a swatch of canvas, or fixes it in the memory of an enthralled audience — has holes in his soles.

Symphony violinists settle their grocery bills by drilling little monsters in the fiddle. Painters become housepainters to pay for their bacon and beans.

If you question the vitality and breadth of the cultural explosion that began shortly after World War II, note this evidence:

American concert music has grown nearly 50 per cent faster than the whole economy in the past two decades. Americans spend more for recordings and high fidelity equipment than for ALL spectator sports.

For several weekends after New York's Metropolitan Museum bought a Rembrandt masterpiece for $2.3 million at a Parke-Bernet auction, there were fantastic traffic jams near the museum. And art museums all around the country report new attendance records.

The sale of books in this country has more than doubled between 1952 and 1961. Not counting textbooks, the public bought nearly half a billion dollars worth of books in 1962, compared with less than a quarter of a billion in 1952.

More than half the 2,000 symphonies in the world (including the semi-professional) are in the United States.

Or listen to William A. Bostick, a painter, designer and illustrator, who since 1946 has been secretary of the Detroit Institute of Arts:

"Thirty years ago there were about three art galleries in Detroit and they showed hardly any contemporary art. Now there are about 20 and they all handle contemporary art. . .

You used to be able to count the number of local artists on the fingers of both hands. Now we send out about 1,900 invitations for the Michigan artists' show.

THE MODERN PARADOX

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, who arbitrated last winter a labor dispute that had threatened the 1961-62 season of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, summed up the situation for all the arts when he said of the one which called on him as a mediator:

The problems of the performing arts in America today are not the problems of decline. They are the problems of growth.

There's the paradox. In the midst of plenty, caught up in impressive national cultural expansion, the individual artist finds he can't make a living with his art.

Henry Cowell is said to be one of the eight most financially successful living composers of serious music in this country. Now in his mid-60s, he has composed about 1,000 works. At a recent conference he put his income statistics on the table.

In 1961 he made $3,500 from radio and television performances of his records. From sales of records and sheet music, and from live performances, he received $2,000. Total $5,500.

LEAN LIVING

"I could live on what I make from music," said Cowell, but not as I care to live—and so I am a professor."

James Michener, Pulitzer prize-winning author (and incidentally an art collector), was at the same conference. He commented that it was scandalous that "a writer with one-tenth the skill of Mr. Cowell can make $150,000 a year."

Few writers do make that much.

Consider the case of an earnest novelist named Raymond De Capite, 38, of Cleveland, a son of Italian immigrants, who has a flat - top haircut and snapping black eyes.

"It took me 10 years to get my first novel published," he said. "It took me two years to write a book, and I wrote two books before I had one published."

So what happens? His second novel, "A Lost King," after being on the stands about five months had netted some $2,800.

De Capite has worked at all sorts of jobs between books. He finds he doesn't have the strength to write at night after a hard day's work.

Examine the lot of the professional musician.

"There is a cultural boom, but it's only on the outside," says Hans Schwieger, the volatile, energetic perfectionist who conducts the Kansas City Philharmonic.

"More records are being sold and there is better attendance at concerts than ever before. It shows a desire for culture and music, but never have musicians been so hard put to make a living."

GOOD SALARIES RARE

There are 26 "major" symphonies in this country — meaning the ones that have annual budgets ranging from $260,000 to $2-million. They employ 2,300 musicians, mostly from 25 to 33 weeks a year.

But in only six of them — New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Los Angeles —are the average annual salaries of the musicians in the range from $5,000 to $10,000. Elsewhere the average drops as low as $2,000 or less.

And the competition for symphony jobs is terrific. Henry Schmidt, violinist and personnel manager of the Phildalephia Orchestra, explains what happens:

"Suppose we have a vacancy in the fiddles. We'll get at least 65 to 70 applications for the job. Out of these we may pick 30 for a trial.

"Each of these has 10 minutes to lay his stuff on the line, 10 minutes to be better than 29 others, in circumstances certainly not the most favorable. And the lucky one will be hired at a minimum salary and can count on only a limited income."

So in Philadelphia, for example, Keith Brown, 28-year-old assistant first trombone, sells stocks and bonds to help support his wife and child.

Herbert Pierson, 28, fourth horn, father of two, paints houses in the summers.

MOONLIGHTING MUSICIANS

The pattern is true elsewhere. In St. Louis, where most of the symphony players get $115 a week (take-home pay about $85) for a 25-week season, extra jobs are needed.

First violinist Rudolph Schwartz, 46-year-old bachelor, plays in dance orchestras and night clubs. Trombonist Melvin J. Jernigan, 25, one of the few paid above scale, gives music lessons and works as an airline clerk.

Opera is another example of the rocky road to stardom. This country has about 250 companies that present opera. But only a handful of them have a real "season." Operating deficits are common among the professional groups.

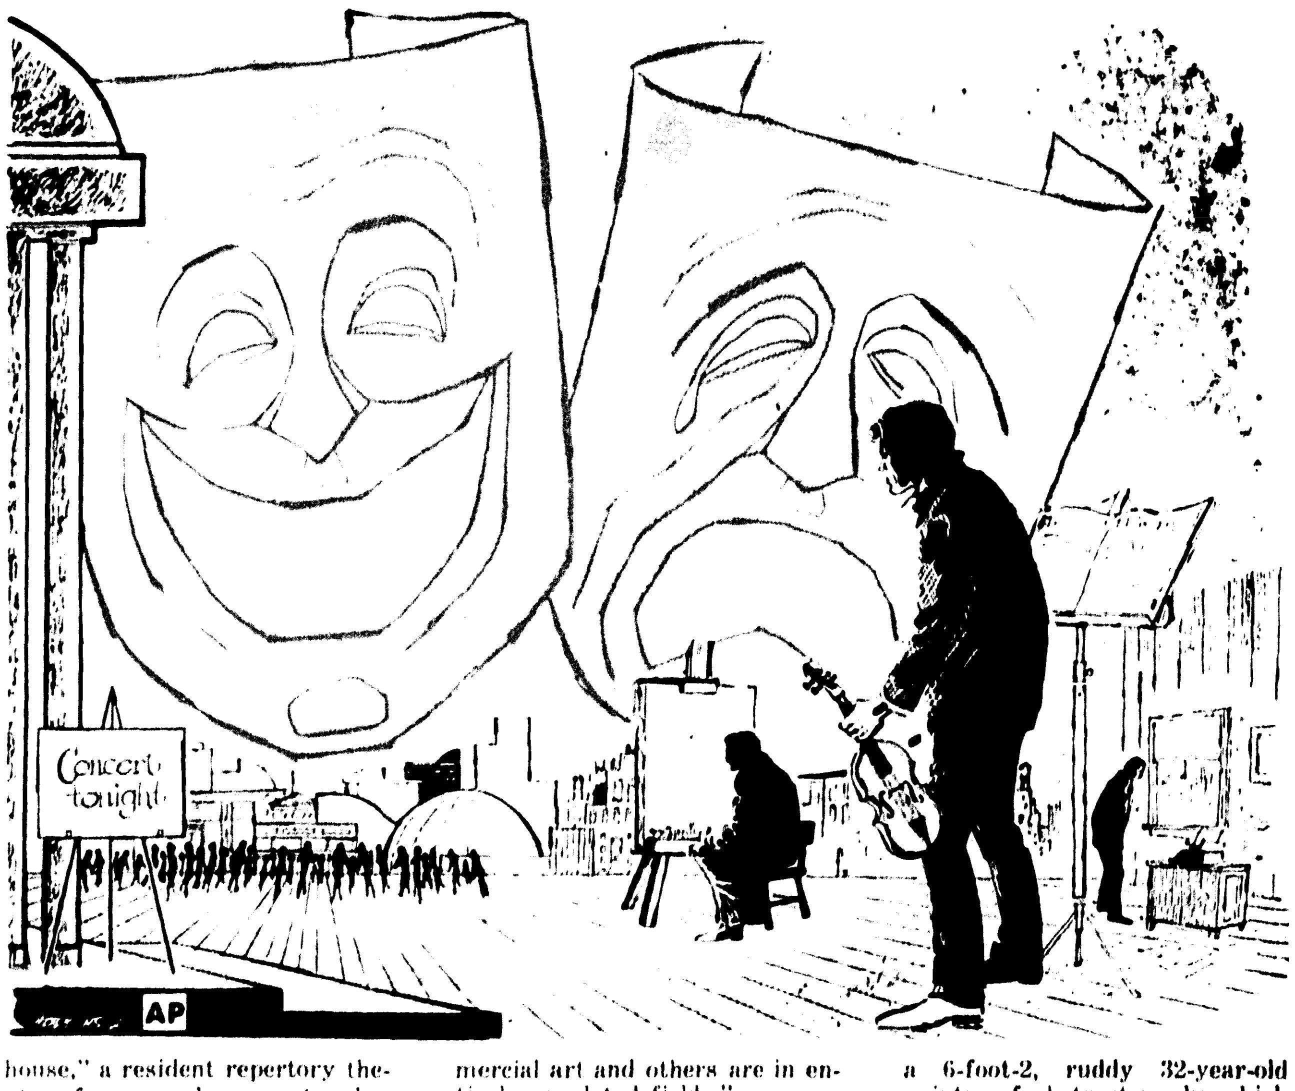
At the Metropolitan in New York the chances of a beginner to break in are pretty small. Dozens of singers turn to European opera houses, and some of them have reached "the Met" on the basis of the experience they have gained on the European circuit. Examples — Phyllis Curtin and Teresa Stitch-Randall.

Baritone George London sailed for Europe in 1949 and one week after his arrival had been hired by the Vienna State Opera.

"Since then, close to 200 American singers have been engaged in European opera houses," he told a government hearing. "They were forced to go abroad because they lacked opportunities in their own country."

The situation with actors and actresses is pretty much the same as with musicians and singers.

As training grounds there remain a good many resident companies scattered across the land. Cleveland has had "The Playhouse," a resident repertory theater, for a good many decades, as well as "Karamu House," the experimental theater connected with an interracial settlement house.



In Detroit there is the "Vanguard Playhouse," Michigan's only resident company, which has staged 27 shows since Dr. William A. Gregory, 37, a drama teacher, became managing director in 1960. It had had donations of $20,000 to keep it going in a 422-seat theater leased from the Detroit Institute of Technology.

Sally Collier, 19, whose parents were in show business, has played bit parts with this company and for $20 a week has worked 12 or 13 hours a day, seven day a week.

The director's brother, 35-year-old John Gregory, gets $65 a week for acting or singing in most of the productions and for teaching classes. He supplements his income by appearing in television commercials and industrial films.

DEDICATION DEMANDED

Next a consideration of painting and the graphic arts.

In almost every case, the painter has an extra job, a working wife, or both.

Bostick, of the Detroit Institute, says, "I don't know of any artist in Michigan who — over a long period of time — has supported himself on his work. Most of them teach. Some are in commercial art and others are in entirely unrelated fields."

There comes an echo from Iowa. Stanley Hess, an associate professor of art at Drake University, says:

"No artist that I know about in Iowa can support himself through art alone. Every serious artist I know — I'm not, of course, talking about commercial artists — is a teacher or a carpet salesman or holds some other job.

It is supposed to contain anywhere from two-thirds to four-fifths of America's artists. It has more than 400 art galleries listed in its telephone books. The guesses as to the number of artists run as high as 35,000.

SIDELINES REQUIRED

Thomas B. Hess, executive editor of Art News, wrote recently, "I reckon that today there are about 25 abstract-expressionists making what any 40-year-old college graduate would call 'a living' in New York."

Some of those who are struggling for recognition do part-time work as carpenters, truck drivers, waiters, barbers, salesmen, etc., and typical cross section of them gain only $300 to $4,900 a year from painting. One abstractionist has been economizing by using rags and newspapers instead of paint brushes.

In San Francisco Keith Boyle, a 6-foot-2, ruddy 32-year-old painter of abstract works which have strong landscape connotations, has had one-man shows in Chicago and San Francisco, "with good years and not so good years in selling."

To support his wife and two small daughters, he works full time as supervisor of children's education in art at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

In Sausalito, Calif., Barney West, 39, who carves giant sculptures in redwood, frequently uses his trade as a banquet chef to support his family. They live on a houseboat to keep expenses down.

Artists often turn to barter. In New York a dentist, Dr. Mile[s] Forst, has assembled an interesting art collection by fixing the teeth of several well known painters. In Athens, Ga., Mr. and Mr[s]. Sam Wood have been landlords to a succession of students and accept their paintings in lieu of rent.

ENTER PHILANTHROPY

In response to growing awareness of the artist's practical problems, there has been a rising tide of sentiment in the last few years for government support of the arts at various levels. The usual word is "subsidy," as contrasted with what the philanthrophic foundations call a "grant" or "fellowship."

Fabled Land

By E. W. PLUMMER
Correspondent

The call of the wild absorbed in early youth in LaSalle Parish becomes quite pronounced at the age of retrospection, reports Correspondent E. W. Plummer, in an account about a retreat in his area where there is an atmosphere of quietude and repose. The name of the place is fictitious, but the account adheres closely to the idyllic tone of the area.

JENA — Those who are beset with frayed nerves and pent-up tensions from the hurry-scurry that is the way of the world today often daydream about some secluded spot where they can get away from conventionalities, alarm clocks, and schedules and relax for a spell.

Such a place is Jock's boat landing. The very atmosphere of quietude and repose that pervades the whole of this sequestered retreat in the deep recesses of the unspoiled forest makes one feel that he has entered the fabled Never-Never Land where the hands of the clock stand still and time is cherished like an old and valued friend.

CONTEMPLATION

When one arrives at Jock's place, he gives way to the urge to stop for awhile in silent contemplation of the scene, then yield to the admonition, "Let busy care awhile forbear," for here, Mother Nature has the answer to man's inherent desire for the primitive.

One sees Jock's time-mellowed cabin with moss-covered clapboard roof and daubed chimney, a flea-bitten hound dog with paws outspread wagging his tail in a gesture of welcome, great spreading trees whose cool shade invites the visitor to rest and breathe deeply of the leaf-filtered air, a placid river where game fish respond to the angler's lure flows gently by, a lazy lagoon whose fringe of button willows are overhung by giant cypress trees and slow-winged cranes protest man's intrusion of their sanctuary with rasping voices, and where is heard the sweet, plaintive song of the hermit thrush in a nearby shady dell—all these and more.

PART AND PARCEL

And Jock is part and parcel of his surroundings. Guests usually find him with his long, lanky frame half-sitting, half-reclining in the arched spur of a tree near his cabin, his flopped hat pulled low over his eyes. (A question often discussed around camp fires, but never settled, by those who have known him in this place for 30-odd years, is whether Jock's back arched to fit the spur, or the spur arched to fit Jock's back).

When guests arrive, Jock slowly turns his head toward them, shuffles his feet slightly and greets them with, "Howdy folks, I'm glad to see you; come over here in the shade and rest for awhile."

SEE BEYOND

It is then that guests see something beyond their host's rustic apparel and week-old beard. Like the Ancient Mariner, "He holds you with his eye," and enchants you with his homey wisdom and at - ease mannerisms.

He was severely "gassed" while slogging in the trenches during World War One and while recuperating in the hospital dreamed this site for a camp, a place where he could spend the remainder of his life resting in peace and quiet. Boat rentals and game and fish provided him a livelihood, for his material wants are few.

Although "innocent of books," Jock is, in a sense, an educated man. When a fish splashes the water in the river, he can tell by the sound what species of fish it is, and whether it is going up or downstream. He knows the places where fish are biting best and what baits to use, and he can direct you to the best deer stands and the places where squirrels are plentiful. Most important of all, Jock knows that "To enjoy is to obey," and that if one is to enjoy life, he must quit fighting time, quit wanting everything he sees, and learn to live.

American concert music has grown nearly 50 per cent faster than the whole economy in the past two decades. Americans spend more for recordings and high fidelity equipment than for ALL spectator sports.

For several weekends after New York's Metropolitan Museum bought a Rembrandt masterpiece for $2.3 million at a Parke-Bernet auction, there were fantastic traffic jams near the museum. And art museums all around the country report new attendance records.

The sale of books in this country has more than doubled between 1952 and 1961. Not counting textbooks, the public bought nearly half a billion dollars worth of books in 1962, compared with less than a quarter of a billion in 1952.

More than half the 2,000 symphonies in the world (including the semi-professional) are in the United States.

Or listen to William A. Bostick, a painter, designer and illustrator, who since 1946 has been secretary of the Detroit Institute of Arts:

"Thirty years ago there were about three art galleries in Detroit and they showed hardly any contemporary art. Now there are about 20 and they all handle contemporary art. . .

You used to be able to count the number of local artists on the fingers of both hands. Now we send out about 1,900 invitations for the Michigan artists' show.

THE MODERN PARADOX

Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, who arbitrated last winter a labor dispute that had threatened the 1961-62 season of the Metropolitan Opera in New York, summed up the situation for all the arts when he said of the one which called on him as a mediator:

The problems of the performing arts in America today are not the problems of decline. They are the problems of growth.

There's the paradox. In the midst of plenty, caught up in impressive national cultural expansion, the individual artist finds he can't make a living with his art.

Henry Cowell is said to be one of the eight most financially successful living composers of serious music in this country. Now in his mid-60s, he has composed about 1,000 works. At a recent conference he put his income statistics on the table.

In 1961 he made $3,500 from radio and television performances of his records. From sales of records and sheet music, and from live performances, he received $2,000. Total $5,500.

LEAN LIVING

"I could live on what I make from music," said Cowell, but not as I care to live—and so I am a professor."

James Michener, Pulitzer prize-winning author (and incidentally an art collector), was at the same conference. He commented that it was scandalous that "a writer with one-tenth the skill of Mr. Cowell can make $150,000 a year."

Few writers do make that much.

Consider the case of an earnest novelist named Raymond De Capite, 38, of Cleveland, a son of Italian immigrants, who has a flat-top haircut and snapping black eyes.

"It took me 10 years to get my first novel published," he said. "It took me two years to write a book, and I wrote two books before I had one published."

So what happens? His second novel, "A Lost King," after being on the stands about five months had netted some $2,800.

De Capite has worked at all sorts of jobs between books. He finds he doesn't have the strength to write at night after a hard day's work.

Examine the lot of the professional musician.

"There is a cultural boom, but it's only on the outside," says Hans Schwieger, the volatile, energetic perfectionist who conducts the Kansas City Philharmonic.

"More records are being sold and there is better attendance at concerts than ever before. It shows a desire for culture and music, but never have musicians been so hard put to make a living."

GOOD SALARIES RARE

There are 26 "major" symphonies in this country — meaning the ones that have annual budgets ranging from $260,000 to $2-million. They employ 2,300 musicians, mostly from 25 to 33 weeks a year.

But in only six of them — New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Los Angeles —are the average annual salaries of the musicians in the range from $5,000 to $10,000. Elsewhere the average drops as low as $2,000 or less.

And the competition for symphony jobs is terrific. Henry Schmidt, violinist and personnel manager of the Phildalephia Orchestra, explains what happens:

"Suppose we have a vacancy in the fiddles. We'll get at least 65 to 70 applications for the job. Out of these we may pick 30 for a trial.

"Each of these has 10 minutes to lay his stuff on the line, 10 minutes to be better than 29 others, in circumstances certainly not the most favorable. And the lucky one will be hired at a minimum salary and can count on only a limited income."

So in Philadelphia, for example, Keith Brown, 28-year-old assistant first trombone, sells stocks and bonds to help support his wife and child.

Herbert Pierson, 28, fourth horn, father of two, paints houses in the summers.

MOONLIGHTING MUSICIANS

The pattern is true elsewhere. In St. Louis, where most of the symphony players get $115 a week (take-home pay about $85) for a 25-week season, extra jobs are needed.

First violinist Rudolph Schwartz, 46-year-old bachelor, plays in dance orchestras and night clubs. Trombonist Melvin J. Jernigan, 25, one of the few paid above scale, gives music lessons and works as an airline clerk.

Opera is another example of the rocky road to stardom. This country has about 250 companies that present opera. But only a handful of them have a real "season." Operating deficits are common among the professional groups.

At the Metropolitan in New York the chances of a beginner to break in are pretty small. Dozens of singers turn to European opera houses, and some of them have reached "the Met" on the basis of the experience they have gained on the European circuit. Examples — Phyllis Curtin and Teresa Stitch-Randall.

Baritone George London sailed for Europe in 1949 and one week after his arrival had been hired by the Vienna State Opera.

"Since then, close to 200 American singers have been engaged in European opera houses," he told a government hearing. "They were forced to go abroad because they lacked opportunities in their own country."

The situation with actors and actresses is pretty much the same as with musicians and singers.

As training grounds there remain a good many resident companies scattered across the land. Cleveland has had "The Playhouse," a resident repertory theater, for a good many decades, as well as "Karamu House," the experimental theater connected with an interracial settlement house.

In Detroit there is the "Vanguard Playhouse," Michigan's only resident company, which has staged 27 shows since Dr. William A. Gregory, 37, a drama teacher, became managing director in 1960. It had had donations of $20,000 to keep it going in a 422-seat theater leased from the Detroit Institute of Technology.

Sally Collier, 19, whose parents were in show business, has played bit parts with this company and for $20 a week has worked 12 or 13 hours a day, seven day a week.

The director's brother, 35-year-old John Gregory, gets $65 a week for acting or singing in most of the productions and for teaching classes. He supplements his income by appearing in television commercials and industrial films.

DEDICATION DEMANDED

Next a consideration of painting and the graphic arts.

In almost every case, the painter has an extra job, a working wife, or both.

Bostick, of the Detroit Institute, says, "I don't know of any artist in Michigan who — over a long period of time — has supported himself on his work. Most of them teach. Some are in commercial art and others are in entirely unrelated fields."

There comes an echo from Iowa. Stanley Hess, an associate professor of art at Drake University, says:

"No artist that I know about in Iowa can support himself through art alone. Every serious artist I know — I'm not, of course, talking about commercial artists — is a teacher or a carpet salesman or holds some other job.

It is supposed to contain anywhere from two-thirds to four-fifths of America's artists. It has more than 400 art galleries listed in its telephone books. The guesses as to the number of artists run as high as 35,000.

SIDELINES REQUIRED

Thomas B. Hess, executive editor of Art News, wrote recently, "I reckon that today there are about 25 abstract-expressionists making what any 40-year-old college graduate would call 'a living' in New York."

Some of those who are struggling for recognition do part-time work as carpenters, truck drivers, waiters, barbers, salesmen, etc., and typical cross section of them gain only $300 to $4,900 a year from painting. One abstractionist has been economizing by using rags and newspapers instead of paint brushes.

In San Francisco Keith Boyle, a 6-foot-2, ruddy 32-year-old painter of abstract works which have strong landscape connotations, has had one-man shows in Chicago and San Francisco, "with good years and not so good years in selling."

To support his wife and two small daughters, he works full time as supervisor of children's education in art at the San Francisco Museum of Art.

In Sausalito, Calif., Barney West, 39, who carves giant sculptures in redwood, frequently uses his trade as a banquet chef to support his family. They live on a houseboat to keep expenses down.

Artists often turn to barter. In New York a dentist, Dr. Miles Forst, has assembled an interesting art collection by fixing the teeth of several well known painters. In Athens, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wood have been landlords to a succession of students and accept their paintings in lieu of rent.

ENTER PHILANTHROPY

In response to growing awareness of the artist's practical problems, there has been a rising tide of sentiment in the last few years for government support of the arts at various levels. The usual word is "subsidy," as contrasted with what the philanthropic foundations call a "grant" or "fellowship."

This week, West Monroe will play host to the annual Dixie World Series of the Little Boys' Baseball League. Championship teams from seven southern states —and a team from the host city of West Monroe—will participate in what might turn out to be the biggest sports event ever held in the Twin Cities.

The Morning World wishes to take this occasion to welcome members of participating teams, their managers and coaches, league officials and the many guests who will visit West Monroe and Monroe during the series. We hope your stay will be a happy one.

Marvin Smith, manager of the West Monroe Little Boys' League and also head of the Louisiana state league, estimated as many as 20,000 guests may visit the Twin Cities to attend some or all of the games during the week.

Players will be housed in the new air-conditioned dormitory at Northeast State College. Northeast has been established as the official headquarters for the series, with a sub-headquarters located at the Penn Hotel.

The first game of the series has been called for 1 p.m. Monday, when the Louisiana and Mississippi champions will meet. The host team will play the Tennessee champions at 8 p.m. Eliminations will continue throughout the week with the championship playoff set for 1 p.m. Saturday.

A barbecue at Camp Kiroli set for 6 p.m. today and a parade through the Twin Cities at 10 a.m. Mondy are among the highlights of the occasion in addition to the games themselves.

But the focal point of the occasion will be the arena of competition where the 1962 Dixie World Series championship games will be played — the Little Boys' League park on North 7th Street in West Monroe.

So, along with the local fans and those from throughout the South, we issue a hearty "Batter Up!" and may the best team be yours.

Not A Loophole

Possible tax reduction and tax reform grip the headlines. Inevitably, a part of the discussion centers around ways to eliminate tax loopholes.

However, some of the alleged loopholes are not loopholes at all. They're present instead, widely misunderstood tax policies of long-standing which are essential to this country's growth, employment, living standards, and defense.

The prime example here is the 27-½ per cent depletion allowance oil producers (and producers only). That amounts to a credit against federal income taxes. Here, say its critics, is a loophole of huge magnitude. So — what are the facts?

Fact one, which no one can conceivably dispute, is that this country must keep on searching for more oil to compensate for the enormous consumption.

Fact two is that oil wells are wasting assets, which wear out and must be replaced if our vital underground reserves are to be maintained at a safe level.

Fact three is that searching for oil is an exceedingly risky business. Only about three out of 100 wildcat wells are successful producers.

What this adds up to is that men must be offered an inducement if they are to take such long risks. And that explains the why and wherefore of the depletion allowance. Even so, depletion provides only about $1 out every $4 which is spent in developing production.

Still another fact—if depletion goes out the window, something must take its place as an essential economic force. That something would have to be higher prices for oil products. Estimates say, for instance, the motorists would be forced to pay some 5 cents a gallon more for gasoline.

So the story goes. Depletion isn't a tax loophole, and it doesn't represent tax favoritism. Instead, it performs a necessary role in sustaining the country's economic stature. And it is more important now than ever before, in this era of an intensifying cold war, and ever-tougher competition for trade and prestige both here and abroad.

Still Capable

Numbers of members of Congress, say Washington reports, were amazed, even dumbfounded, at the public response to the proposal to apply a withholding tax of 20 per cent on income from dividends and interest. The volume of Congressional mail soared — and the overwhelming majority of the writers were 100 per cent opposed.

That fact brought an interesting comment from the Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette: "One thing the volume of protests over the proposed withholding tax on interest and dividends has done is to point out how widespread capitalism is in the United States today."

Apparently a good many of us fail to realize that ownership of of stock, for instance, is no longer the providence of the few but of the many. Stockholders in American corporations now number about 16 million. Most of them are in the middle-income bracket and many are in the lower income brackets. Ahese people would have been hit hardest by the 20 per cent withholding. Their effective tax rate—which is the proportion of total income paid in federal income taxes—is far below 20 per cent. They would have been deprived of important income, and would have had to wait for protracted periods before obtaining overpayment refunds.

On top of that, something like 127 million people have interest bearing savings accounts — and again, a substantial portion of lower income families are in this category.

The American people are still capable of kicking up their heels when a manifestly unfair legislative proposal is made. That was the case, happily, with the withholding scheme.

The People Pay

What idea, what philosophy, dominated the minds of the men who founded this country, and laid down the principles they meant it to abide by?

Thomas Jefferson expressed a fundamental thought perfectly when he said: "I am for a government that is rigourously frugal and simple, and not for one that multiplies offices to make partisan debt under the guise of being a public benefit."

Admittedly, there have been vast changes in the nation and the world since the great Jefferson's day. But this does not excuse the development of an attitude which makes the attraction of votes the paramount objective of great numbers of government officials who show small concern for the value of the dollar and who seek more

Liberals Blast Telstar Plan

Idea That Private Business Might Have Hand Stirred Wrath

The United States is the land of free enterprise. But you wouldn't recognize it as such from the statements of certain senators during the recent filibuster over the Telstar space communications bill.

This angry outpouring of words by the Senate's ultra-liberals resulted in a furious assault on capitalism. The very idea that private business might have a hand in development of space communication actually horrified the band of liberal debaters. Some of the rhetoric heard in the Senate chamber seemed wholly out of place for an American forum; it would have been quite suitable, however, in socialist countries across the seas.

The proposed Telstar bill was a strictly American plan. Rather than setting up a government monopoly, it was agreed that a corporation would be established in which private companies could own 50 per cent of the stock and individuals 50 per cent, and that the corporation would be government regulated.

But use of the free enterprise system enraged ultra - liberals. Senator Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), for instance, introduced a bill providing for a federal monopoly of the Telstars.

Senator Ralph Yarborough (D-Texas) compared the proposed corporation with the British East India Company and the Dutch East India Company.

Senator Albert Gore (D-Tenn) spoke in the debate of the American profit system as having "ugly and unattractive commercial aspects." He professed to be concerned about what foreigners would say. "If we enact this bill," he declared, "the U. S. participation in international communications will be braded by many people in the world as an act of dollar imperialism." Was he thinking of those foreign peoples who are so eager to get U. S. foreign aid dollars? Are U. S. dollars to be dumped in faraway lands where there is no hope of profit, but private investment of dollars in great national enterprises forbidden?

Senator Maurine Neuberger (D-Ore) went so far as to say that "there is no doubt" that big business retards research so as to profit from obsolete instruments.

This liberal filibuster proved instructive in that it revealed more about the intellectual dimensions of the senators who dub themselves liberals. The anti-capitalist mentality was exposed in Senate speeches.

This evident distaste for free enterprise and enthusiasm for state controls of science and technology is hard to understand. America leads in scientific developments and in industry. This leadership is the result of research, planning and production in hundreds of private companies. Private enterprise is the goose that lays golden eggs for America. Why should intelligent persons want to destroy it or limit its activity? Socialism, on the other hand, is a synonym for a second-class method of industrial control and development. It is another word for bureaucratic inefficiency combined with totalitarian regimentation.

Whatever the psychological reasons for certain senators opposing the Telstar legislation, they do not excuse such opposition. Foes of private enterprise involvement in space communications program in effect are foes of progressive utilization of the country's brainpower and know-how.

As a side note it is interesting to observe that to some members of Congress a filibuster is neither right nor wrong — it just all depends upon which side of the question you are on. For instance, Senator Wayne Morse (D-Oregon), who has been masterminding this liberal talkathon against the space satellite bill, remarked on May 6, 1946 (during a civil rights controversy) "The fundamental trick of the obstructionist is the filibuster which the public must learn is not funny, but a disgraceful and contemptible procedure." Thus does a man get hoisted on his own petard!

Views Of Our Readers

Explains Position

To the Editor:

Upon my return from The World Conference of Seventh - day Adventists, held in San Francisco, California, my attention was called to certain A. P. articles that appeared in your paper, regarding the proceedings of the Conference, which I feel do not represent the true spirit of the meetings, in San Francisco, or the ideals and purpoes of our church. Seventh-day Adventists are a world organization, operating in 189 countries and in 928 languages and the church has to work for and deal with many races of the earth.

The general rule of the denomination, in its relationships with all peoples and races, is the "Golden Rule." The church deals with racial problems, only, as these problems relate to individual situations, within the frame work of the church. It is the policy of the church to leave political and racial problems to the civil governments concerned. Seventh - day Adventist members, as individuals, are urged to be good citizens, regard local customs, obey law and order, at all times, where it does not require the violation of conscience, or the law of God.

The mission of the church, as understood by Seventh - day Adventists, is to preach the gospel of salvation, uplift the Lord Jesus Christ, and thereby bring salvation, hope, and the Love of Christ to all who will accept. The New Testament teaching that, "God is no respector of persons, But in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted with Him." Acts 10:34, 35, we accept. All are precious in His sight and are to have the gospel preached to them. Experience has proved that, generally, those of like race and language are able to work for their own people with greater efficiency and freedom than others.

To help provide national and native workers and leaders, Seventh - day Adventists have established schools in many lands to train leaders as fast as possible, to work for their own peoples and - language areas. This has been the plan of the church since launching its world - wide church that a world vice president was elected to represent and work for the Negro race, in the person of Frank L. Peterson. He is one of five general vice presidents, and has held this position for years. The present agitation for intergration had nothing to do with this action — neither did any action of a small group, within the organization change the general plan of church organization. The church has sought to lay broad plans that will meet the needs of as many peoples as possible.

For years, both white and colored churches, in the United States, were all in the same conferences and under the same general leadership. it was only at the request of the Negro leaders and members that Regional Conferences were established with Negro officials and leaders.

The principles and plan of the church have not always been understood or followed. As the result, in the words of the General Conference President, Reuben R. Figuhr, "Sometimes a small group creates a situation that is not at all representative of an organization's point of view."

It is unfortunate that some stows made it appear that Seventh - day Adventist were "split" or in "general disagreement" on segregation or intergration, for this is untrue. I was in attendance at the World Conference for the larger part of the meetings and I did not hear the question mentioned other than the one statement made by the General Conference President, as previously mentioned. The general tone of the Conference was one of loyalty, unity of spirit, purpose and plan.

The instruction and spirit of the meeting was, "Press together. Press together" quoting one of the pioneers of years gone by. It is recognized that Satan will strive to bring in discord and dissention, to hinder the purpose and work of the Gospel and the plan of God. We feel no burden and have no purpose to enter into the controversy over intergration. However, we will seek God for wisdom, Guidance and love to be helpful, wherever possible.

Sincerely yours,
J. S. Jameson, Pastor

President Kennedy's contentions that no new labor legislation is needed becomes easier to understand when you recognize the degree to which the New Frontier is operating outside the law in the handling of industrial disputes.

Let me review three recent examples of the administration's extra - legal approach to labor-management problems.

First, of course, we have the government acting as a full third party in the recent steel negotiations. Following the signing of the government - induced contract in that industry, the President thought his work was done. But when the steel companies, acting upon the mistaken belief that they were free to manage their own affairs, raised their prices, the President immediately reasserted the government's role. And that entire chain of events took place without reference to the Taft - Hartley Act or any other law, with the notable exception of the anti - trust laws which were trotted out as part of the attack on the steel industry.

Second, we have the prolonged dispute in the airline industry concerning the flight engineers. In this, the President and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg have seen fit to operate outside restrictions of the applicable law, the Railway Labor Act, on a number of occasions. Once again the use of "ad hoc" boards — the device President Kennedy decried so vigorously during the 1960 campaign — became a favorite device of the administration.

Finally, in an effort to stave off a strike in the vital aerospace industry, the President and his Secretary of Labor reached into their bag of tricks and came up with what they called a "board of distinguished citizens" and a 60 - day postponement of the walkout on the part of the unions. Once again, the solution was completely "'ad hoc," and once again the established procedures found in the law — in this case, the Taft - Hartley Act —were completely ignored.

To these examples we must add the operations of the present National Labor Relations Board. One of the most avid New Frontiersmen on the board, Gerald Brown, has stated publicly that the NLRB "is unquestionably a policy - making tribunal." And this view is apparently shared by the other two administration men who — with Mr. Brown — have been turning out precedent-breaking decisions at a relentless pace.

In other words, the NLRB is now taking part in the administration's extra - legal approach to setting national policy. The judicial functions, which many of us in Congress thought were of primary importance, have been downgraded by the administrations's own admission.

It is worthy to note that in resorting to extra - legal jerry built procedures to cope with the seemingly endless labor crises the administration has been careful not to antagonize any significant element in the labor movement.

Of course, operating outside established law gives much more flexibility to the administration efforts. And it is a convenient area for an Executive who has dramatically demonstrated that he won't hesitate to use the full force of the government's coercive power to enforce his wishes.

It isn't at all surprising that management and labor groups jump to accept "ad hoc" White House suggestions while the experience of the steel industry is fresh in their minds.

Worth The Price?

Cost Of Landing On Moon In Dollars, Life Discussed

Why is the United States so far behind the Soviet Union in outer space?

Can this country hope to catch up, and is it worth while to spend the money to compete in the race for the moon?

Those are questions which have as many varied answers as why the United States let Cuba slip under the Communist thumb and who was responsible for the Soviet theft of our atomic secrets.

There are plausible answers to both questions but they are sufficient only for the moment. The United States is behind the USSR in outer space because we started too late, have not had the concentrated effort the Russians have directed so successfully, and have divided our outer space program.

This country will eventually catch up, but by then the race for mastery of outer space may be much less important than it seems at the moment. Circuiting the earth in orbit, no matter how many times, is it viewed by American scientists to be an achievement which does not necessarily forecast that the Communists will be first to land men on the moon.

The cost of a landing on the moon in dollars, not to mention the loss of lives and the possibility that the whole project may result in failure, have long been discussed by space experts. The hope that either the United States or its Soviet rival will complete successfully a round trip to the moon within five years is regarded by some space scientists as most unlikely.

While the Soviet army and the Soviet nation were being battered by the Germans during World War II, the United States was devoting all of its scientific resources in complete secrecy to development of the atom bomb, entirely under government control, and with the top priority that only wartime pressure can give.

After the war when Soviet thefts of United States atomic data and the recruitment of German scientists, and the use of their ability under compulsion had given the Communists the same advantage the U. S. had had in developing atomic force during the war, the USSR first caught up with, then forged ahead of this country.

While the U. S. went back to peace time production and for several years abandoned any further development of its nuclear program, let alone any experiments with penetration of outer space, the Russians began to build up the big lead they now have.

That is not the whole story. When that can be put together it will reveal, in the opinion of authorities in the government and scientific fields, that free enterprise under the democratic process cannot hope to compete on equal terms with the totalitarian program of concentration, with huge rewards from the top for successful effort. In pulling so far ahead of the U. S. in the field of outer space, the USSR has used a formula comparable to that by which the U. S. produced the atom bomb in approximately three years.

Such concentration is not possible in this country in peace time. There are regulations, control of government appropriations, divided direction and all of the factors which slow emergency projects to be contended with, together with grave questions whether the keenest and most skilled

Government contracts and contracts allotted among score companies and the delay w results must also be taken account. The USSR has no concerns. It is more succe in bringing together its sma men and asserting governm authority in the form of h pressure to achieve results. dles which slow progress in United States are swept asid the Reds.

Unquestionably the adva the Soviets have obtained in er space now makes a treme impression the world over the Communist world will u maximum advantage for p ganda purpose. What the pra advantage will be however, the future to determine. The overlords have denied their higher living standards, r food better wages and many benefits in their frenzied of control of outer space.

U. S. Senator From Arizona

President Kennedy's contentions that no new labor legislation is needed becomes easier to understand when you recognize the degree to which the New Frontier is operating outside the law in the handling of industrial disputes.

Let me review three recent examples of the administration's extra - legal approach to labor-management problems.

First, of course, we have the government acting as a full third party in the recent steel negotiations. Following the signing of the government - induced contract in that industry, the President thought his work was done. But when the steel companies, acting upon the mistaken belief that they were free to manage their own affairs, raised their prices, the President immediately reasserted the government's role. And that entire chain of events took place without reference to the Taft - Hartley Act or any other law, with the notable exception of the anti - trust laws which were trotted out as part of the attack on the steel industry.

Second, we have the prolonged dispute in the airline industry concerning the flight engineers. In this, the President and Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg have seen fit to operate outside restrictions of the applicable law, the Railway Labor Act, on a number of occasions. Once again the use of "ad hoc" boards — the device President Kennedy decried so vigorously during the 1960 campaign — became a favorite device of the administration.

Finally, in an effort to stave off a strike in the vital aerospace industry, the President and his Secretary of Labor reached into their bag of tricks and came up with what they called a "board of distinguished citizens" and a 60 - day postponement of the walkout on the part of the unions. Once again, the solution was completely '"ad hoc," and once again the established procedures found in the law — in this case, the Taft - Hartley Act —were completely ignored.

To these examples we must add the operations of the present National Labor Relations Board. One of the most avid New Frontiersmen on the board, Gerald Brown, has stated publicly that the NLRB "is unquestionably a policy - making tribunal." And this view is apparently shared by the other two administration men who — with Mr. Brown — have been turning out precedent-breaking decisions at a relentless pace.

In other words, the NLRB is now taking part in the administration's extra - legal approach to setting national policy. The judicial functions, which many of us in Congress thought were of primary importance, have been downgraded by the administrations's own admission.

It is worthy to note that in resorting to extra - legal jerry-built procedures to cope with the seemingly endless labor crises, the administration has been careful not to antagonize any significant element in the labor movement.

Of course, operating outside established law gives much more flexibility to the administration's efforts. And it is a convenient area for an Executive who has dramatically demonstrated that he won't hesitate to use the full force of the government's coercive power to enforce his wishes.

It isn't at all surprising that management and labor groups jump to accept "ad hoc" White House suggestions while the experience of the steel industry is fresh in their minds.

How do you stand, sir?

Not A Loophole

Possible tax reduction and tax reform grip the headlines. Inevitably, a part of the discussion centers around ways to eliminate tax loopholes.

However, some of the alleged loopholes are not loopholes at all. They're present instead, widely misunderstood tax policies of long-standing which are essential to this country's growth, employment, living standards, and defense.

The prime example here is the 27-½ per cent depletion allowance oil producers (and producers only). That amounts to a credit against federal income taxes. Here, say its critics, is a loophole of huge magnitude. So — what are the facts?

Fact one, which no one can conceivably dispute, is that this country must keep on searching for more oil to compensate for the enormous consumption.

Fact two is that oil wells are wasting assets, which wear out and must be replaced if our vital underground reserves are to be maintained at a safe level.

Fact three is that searching for oil is an exceedingly risky business. Only about three out of 100 wildcat wells are successful producers.

What this adds up to is that men must be offered an inducement if they are to take such long risks. And that explains the why and wherefore of the depletion allowance. Even so, depletion provides only about $1 out every $4 which is spent in developing production.

Still another fact—if depletion goes out the window, something must take its place as an essential economic force. That something would have to be higher prices for oil products. Estimates say, for instance, the motorists would be forced to pay some 5 cents a gallon more for gasoline.

So the story goes. Depletion isn't a tax loophole, and it doesn't represent tax favoritism. Instead, it performs a necessary role in sustaining the country's economic stature. And it is more important now than ever before, in this era of an intensifying cold war, and ever-tougher competition for trade and prestige both here and abroad.

Still Capable

Numbers of members of Congress, say Washington reports, were amazed, even dumbfounded, at the public response to the proposal to apply a withholding tax of 20 per cent on income from dividends and interest. The volume of Congressional mail soared — and the overwhelming majority of the writers were 100 per cent opposed.

That fact brought an interesting comment from the Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette: "One thing the volume of protests over the proposed withholding tax on interest and dividends has done is to point out how widespread capitalism is in the United States today."

Apparently a good many of us fail to realize that ownership of stock, for instance, is no longer the providence of the few but of the many. Stockholders in American corporations now number about 16 million. Most of them are in the middle-income bracket and many are in the lower income brackets. Ahese people would have been hit hardest by the 20 per cent withholding. Their effective tax rate—which is the proportion of total income paid in federal income taxes—is far below 20 per cent. They would have been deprived of important income, and would have had to wait for protracted periods before obtaining overpayment refunds.

On top of that, something like 127 million people have interest bearing savings accounts — and again, a substantial portion of lower income families are in this category.

The American people are still capable of kicking up their heels when a manifestly unfair legislative proposal is made. That was the case, happily, with the withholding scheme.

The People Pay

What idea, what philosophy, dominated the minds of the men who founded this country, and laid down the principles they meant it to abide by?

Thomas Jefferson expressed a fundamental thought perfectly when he said: "I am for a government that is rigourously frugal and simple, and not for one that multiplies offices to make partisans, that is, to get votes, and by every device increases the public debt under the guise of being a public benefit."

Admittedly, there have been vast changes in the nation and the world since the great Jefferson's day. But this does not excuse the development of an attitude which makes the attraction of votes the paramount objective of great numbers of government officials who show small concern for the value of the dollar and who seek more and more monolithic and dictatorial power.

THURMAN SENSING

Liberals Blast Telstar Plan

Idea That Private Business Might Have Hand Stirred Wrath

The United States is the land of free enterprise. But you wouldn't recognize it as such from the statements of certain senators during the recent filibuster over the Telstar space communications bill.

This angry outpouring of words by the Senate's ultra-liberals resulted in a furious assault on capitalism. The very idea that private business might have a hand in development of space communication actually horrified the band of liberal debaters. Some of the rhetoric heard in the Senate chamber seemed wholly out of place for an American forum; it would have been quite suitable, however, in socialist countries across the seas.

The proposed Telstar bill was a strictly American plan. Rather than setting up a government monopoly, it was agreed that a corporation would be established in which private companies could own 50 per cent of the stock and individuals 50 per cent, and that the corporation would be government regulated.

But use of the free enterprise system enraged ultra - liberals. Senator Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn), for instance, introduced a bill providing for a federal monopoly of the Telstars.

Senator Ralph Yarborough (D-Texas) compared the proposed corporation with the British East India Company and the Dutch East India Company.

Senator Albert Gore (D-Tenn) spoke in the debate of the American profit system as having "ugly and unattractive commercial aspects." He professed to be concerned about what foreigners would say. "If we enact this bill," he declared, "the U. S. participation in international communications will be braded by many people in the world as an act of dollar imperialism." Was he thinking of those foreign peoples who are so eager to get U. S. foreign aid dollars? Are U. S. dollars to be dumped in faraway lands where there is no hope of profit, but private investment of dollars in great national enterprises forbidden?

Senator Maurine Neuberger (D-Ore) went so far as to say that "there is no doubt" that big business retards research so as to profit from obsolete instruments.

This liberal filibuster proved instructive in that it revealed more about the intellectual dimensions of the senators who dub themselves liberals. The anti-capitalist mentality was exposed in Senate speeches.

This evident distaste for free enterprise and enthusiasm for state controls of science and technology is hard to understand. America leads in scientific developments and in industry. This leadership is the result of research, planning and production in hundreds of private companies. Private enterprise is the goose that lays golden eggs for America. Why should intelligent persons want to destroy it or limit its activity? Socialism, on the other hand, is a synonym for a second-class method of industrial control and development. It is another word for bureaucratic inefficiency combined with totalitarian regimentation.

Whatever the psychological reasons for certain senators opposing the Telstar legislation, they do not excuse such opposition. Foes of private enterprise involvement in space communications program in effect are foes of progressive utilization of the country's brainpower and know-how.

As a side note it is interesting to observe that to some members of Congress a filibuster is neither right nor wrong — it just all depends upon which side of the question you are on. For instance, Senator Wayne Morse (D-Oregon), who has been masterminding this liberal talkathon against the space satellite bill, remarked on May 6, 1946 (during a civil rights controversy): "The fundamental trick of the obstructionist is the filibuster which the public must learn is not funny, but a disgraceful and contemptible procedure." Thus does a man get hoisted on his own petard!

Views Of Our Readers

To the Editor:

Upon my return from The World Conference of Seventh - day Adventists, held in San Francisco, California, my attention was called to certain A. P. articles that appeared in your paper, regarding the proceedings of the Conference, which I feel do not represent the true spirit of the meetings, in San Francisco, or the ideals and purpoes of our church. Seventh-day Adventists are a world organization, operating in 189 countries and in 928 languages and the church has to work for and deal with many races of the earth.

The general rule of the denomination, in its relationships with all peoples and races, is the "Golden Rule." The church deals with racial problems, only, as these problems relate to individual situations, within the frame work of the church. It is the policy of the church to leave political and racial problems to the civil governments concerned. Seventh - day Adventist members, as individuals, are urged to be good citizens, regard local customs, obey law and order, at all times, where it does not require the violation of conscience, or the law of God.

The mission of the church, as understood by Seventh - day Adventists, is to preach the gospel of salvation, uplift the Lord Jesus Christ, and thereby bring salvation, hope, and the Love of Christ to all who will accept. The New Testament teaching that, "God is no respector of persons, But in every nation he that feareth Him and worketh righteousness is accepted with Him." Acts 10:34, 35, we accept. All are precious in His sight and are to have the gospel preached to them. Experience has proved that, generally, those of like race and language are able to work for their own people with greater efficiency and freedom than others.

To help provide national and native workers and leaders, Seventh - day Adventists have established schools in many lands to train leaders as fast as possible, to work for their own peoples and language areas. This has been the plan of the church since launching its world - wide mission program. It is in harmony with the general plan of the church that a world vice president was elected to represent and work for the Negro race, in the person of Frank L. Peterson. He is one of five general vice presidents, and has held this position for years. The present agitation for intergration had nothing to do with this action — neither did any action of a small group, within the organization change the general plan of church organization. The church has sought to lay broad plans that will meet the needs of as many peoples as possible.

For years, both white and colored churches, in the United States, were all in the same conferences and under the same general leadership. it was only at the request of the Negro leaders and members that Regional Conferences were established with Negro officials and leaders.

The principles and plan of the church have not always been understood or followed. As the result, in the words of the General Conference President, Reuben R. Figuhr, "Sometimes a small group creates a situation that is not at all representative of an organization's point of view."

It is unfortunate that some stows made it appear that Seventh - day Adventist were "split" or in "general disagreement" on segregation or intergration, for this is untrue. I was in attendance at the World Conference for the larger part of the meetings and I did not hear the question mentioned other than the one statement made by the General Conference President, as previously mentioned. The general tone of the Conference was one of loyalty, unity of spirit, purpose and plan.

The instruction and spirit of the meeting was, "Press together. Press together" quoting one of the pioneers of years gone by. It is recognized that Satan will strive to bring in discord and dissention, to hinder the purpose and work of the Gospel and the plan of God. We feel no burden and have no purpose to enter into the controversy over intergration. However, we will seek God for wisdom, Guidance and love to be helpful, where-ever possible.

Worth The Price?

Cost Of Landing On Moon In Dollars, Life Discussed

Why is the United States so far behind the Soviet Union in outer space?

Can this country hope to catch up, and is it worth while to spend the money to compete in the race for the moon?

Those are questions which have as many varied answers as why the United States let Cuba slip under the Communist thumb and who was responsible for the Soviet theft of our atomic secrets.

There are plausible answers to both questions but they are sufficient only for the moment. The United States is behind the USSR in outer space because we started too late, have not had the concentrated effort the Russians have directed so successfully, and have divided our outer space program.

This country will eventually catch up, but by then the race for mastery of outer space may be much less important than it seems at the moment. Circuiting the earth in orbit, no matter how many times, is it viewed by American scientists to be an achievement which does not necessarily forecast that the Communists will be first to land men on the moon.

The cost of a landing on the moon in dollars, not to mention the loss of lives and the possibility that the whole project may result in failure, have long been discussed by space experts. The hope that either the United States or its Soviet rival will complete successfully a round trip to the moon within five years is regarded by some space scientists as most unlikely.

While the Soviet army and the Soviet nation were being battered by the Germans during World War II, the United States was devoting all of its scientific resources in complete secrecy to development of the atom bomb, entirely under government control, and with the top priority that only wartime pressure can give.

After the war when Soviet thefts of United States atomic data and the recruitment of German scientists, and the use of their ability under compulsion had given the Communists the same advantage the U. S. had had in developing atomic force during the war, the USSR first caught up with, then forged ahead of this country.

While the U. S. went back to peace time production and for several years abandoned any further development of its nuclear program, let alone any experiments with penetration of outer space, the Russians began to build up the big lead they now have.

That is not the whole story. When that can be put together it will reveal, in the opinion of authorities in the government and scientific fields, that free enterprise under the democratic process cannot hope to compete on equal terms with the totalitarian program of concentration, with huge rewards from the top for successful effort. In pulling so far ahead of the U. S. in the field of outer space, the USSR has used a formula comparable to that by which the U. S. produced the atom bomb in approximately three years.

Such concentration is not possible in this country in peace time. There are regulations, control of government appropriations, divided direction and all of the factors which slow emergency projects to be contended with, together with grave questions whether the keenest and most skilled personnel are being used to best advantage.

Government contracts and subcontracts allotted among scores of companies and the delay which results must also be taken into account. The USSR has no such concerns. It is more successful in bringing together its smartest men and asserting government authority in the form of heavy pressure to achieve results. Hurdles which slow progress in the United States are swept aside by the Reds.

Unquestionably the advantage the Soviets have obtained in outer space now makes a tremendous impression the world over which the Communist world will use to maximum advantage for propaganda purpose. What the practical advantage will be however, is for the future to determine. The Soviet overlords have denied their people higher living standards, more food better wages and many other benefits in their frenzied dream of control of outer space.

The United States, first in most everything for the first half of the 20th century, feels a keen chagrin at being forced into second place in this latest world rivalry. Fiction writers and imaginative artists have given the space age a possible overemphasis and have made it difficult to apply sound common sense to national thinking on the importance of reaching and exploring the other planets.

The biggest factor has hardly been discussed. That is the cost now running close to $4 billion a year. To reach the moon in a slightly crazy competition which may be barren of real results, which could be achieved more gradually, and possibly as effectively by studying the Communists progress is viewed with not much enthusiasm at the moment by many critics. And so is the cost which estimates place as high as 50 billion dollars.

World Spotlight: A Look Behind the Headlines

Facts On All Purpose Army

EDITOR'S NOTE: The military policy of the Kennedy administration emphasizes conventional warfare and counter-guerrilla operations in the underdeveloped nations of the world. How well is the U.S. Army adjusting to the new emphasis? AP Newsfeatures writer Bem Price visited the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga., to find out.

By BEM PRICE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—The U.S. Army must be prepared to fight any kind of war, anywhere, anytime—in theory, at least.

It must be trained to fight a war, nuclear or nonnuclear, against the highly mechanized forces of the Soviet Union and its satellites in Europe.

It also must be trained and equipped to fight a war, nuclear or nonnuclear, in the arctic, the deserts, the jungles, the mountains, and on the beaches of the world.

Since the Kennedy administration took office, there has been a shift in national military policy.

The policy assumes that nonnuclear wars are far more likely to occur than the big holocaust; that the Communists will seek world domination through a series of little "wars of liberation"—to use Soviet Premier Khrushchev's words.

It further assumes that the most likely areas of conflict are in the weak nations with underdeveloped economies.

Thus, the reasoning goes, the United States must be prepared to come to the aid of those nations which appeal for help against Communist-inspired guerrillas.

So it is startling, at first, to arrive here and find the Army training its combat leaders as if they were going to fight a highly mechanized war in Europe.

Ft. Benning is the home of the Infantry School. Here are trained the men who will lead the companies and battalions in a shooting war of any kind.

Out in the fields, tanks and armored personnel carriers go clattering across the landscape, followed by charging infantry, in classic demonstrations of the foot soldier in the assault.

One officer was asked if he could run this same armor-infantry demonstration in Viet Nam, or any of the other world hot-spots, excepting Germany. The answer: "Well, maybe, in some places."

In a firepower demonstration, the Army brought all its infantry-support weapons together for an awesome display of flying metal and flame-throwing tanks.

It even fired a Davy Crockett, a new and small, jeep-mounted ballistic missile of short range, which can carry an atomic warhead.

This is precisely the type of war of big gun against big gun, tank against tank, rocket against rocket that national policy assumes is most unlikely to occur.

Is the Army placing too much emphasis on mechanized warfare and not paying enough attention to training for the type of warfare most likely to occur?

The U.S. Army gives its young career officers here a course that embraces 1,147 hours of instruction. While a good many hours are devoted to subjects which would have a bearing on guerrilla suppression, only 49 hours are given to what is called cold-war-counterinsurgency operations.

At its basic school at Quantico, Va., the U.S. Marine Corps gives its junior officers 100 hours of instruction on guerrilla suppression out of a total course of 1,062 hours.

The Marine commandant Gen. David M. Shoup, last February ordered the Marine schools to increase emphasis on guerrilla and antiguerrilla operations.

There has been no comparable increase in emphasis within the Army school structure, though considerable publicity has been given to the Army's special forces who are not so much antiguerrilla forces as they are guerrilla forces.

This question was put to several officers at the Infantry School here: "Would you argue the premise that the Army is continuing to equip and train as if it planned to fight only in Europe against an enemy with an equal technology, whereas the most likely areas of conflict are underdeveloped countries where the roads are few and the enemy is lightly armed?"

"I think that would be putting it too strongly," said Col. J. G. Cornett, chief of the Infantry School academic staff, who has just returned from three years of detached duty with the British in Singapore.

"The bulk of the training has been as you say. But it is now in transition."

Hasn't this transition been a bit slow?

"At the end of World War II," Cornett said, "there was no visible enemy in sight except in the civilized areas.

"The Japanese were gone, and the Chinese didn't then exist as a force. There was only this other fellow (the Soviet Union).

"You must have a potential enemy in sight for this determines your training and equipment."

And, the colonel added, the the Russians are still in sight.

Cornett estimated that a good 75 per cent, or better, of the men now in training in the Infantry School will sooner or later serve with the highly mechanized 7th Army now in Europe with North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

There are, the colonel added, certain fundamental skills in the infantry which are applicable to any theater of operations — familiarity with basic weapons, field sanitation, scouting and patrolling, how to take advantage of concealment and terrain.

This is all true. But there are also techniques and tactics peculiar to potential trouble areas. Why not give the men more training for the areas in which they are likely to fight against an enemy far different from the Soviet forces in Europe?

"I guess that takes money," the colonel replied. "I guess I am not really in a position to answer that. But the transition is being made, and it is my guess that the training in unconventional warfare will be increased between 20 and 35 per cent."

The Army is only now beginning to recover from the lean years between the end of the Korean War in 1953 and the end of 1960.

Recognizing the diversity of war problems, the Army is beginning to use its increase in funds to train selected units for operations in particular theaters of potential trouble.

The 25th Division in Hawaii, for example, is being oriented more intensively toward possible operations in the underdeveloped areas of the Pacific.

Four battle groups in this country have been picked to undergo specialist training in counter insurgency operations. They are in the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky.; the 82nd Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N.C.; the 2nd Infantry Division here; and the 32nd National Guard Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

This all adds up to the fact that the United States will have three Marine divisions, one Army division and four Army battle groups oriented to war in underdeveloped nations, not counting forces in Korea.

HOSTILITY IS GROWING

Between Viet Nam, And U. S. Troops

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Simmering hostility between American and Vietnamese forces is imperiling joint efforts against the Viet Cong, the militant Communists who seek to take over Viet Nam.

Guerrilla troops of the U.S. Army's Special Forces are being withdrawn from certain exposed jungle outposts near the Laos frontier because of fear they will not have sufficient backing against Viet Cong onslaughts. The Viet Cong has made the Americans special targets.

One Vietnamese unit refused to provide an armored convoy for Americans planning to evacuate wounded mountain tribesmen. Joint operations in some areas bog down for lack of cooperation.

Racial tension is part of the problem.

"There's a continuous ethnological clash here in Viet Nam," A high-ranking U.S. officer said. "There is tension between Vietnamese and American, between Vietnamese and tribesman, and between the various mountain tribes themselves."

An Associated Press man was riding in a U.S. Army jeep past a Vietnamese army compound 370 miles northeast of here several days ago. A rock was thrown from the compound at the American jeep ahead, cracking the windshield. The jeeps did not stop.

Rock throwing happens fairly often at the spot, the AP man was told. He was barred from the Vietnamese compound.

In Saigon, a Special Forces officer said, "Throwing stones is nothing especially unusual. It happens all the time. We've had stones thrown right here in Saigon.

Part of the problem, Special Forces men say, is American efforts to enlist the help of the 20-odd mountain tribal groups populating Viet Nam's vital high plateau.

Special Forces men consider some of the tribes the most efficient killers in Viet Nam, and they feel they should be used—as mercenaries if necessary — to track down the Communist enemy.

Until several weeks ago, Special Forces troops were paying a warlike tribe called the Nungs to fight the Viet Cong. The Nungs, mostly refugees from the border region of North Viet Nam and China, are known as the Gurkhas of Viet Nam because of lethal skills as jungle fighters.

The government, objecting that this recruiting of Nung mercenaries infringed on the republic's sovereignty, insisted the tribesmen be taken off the U.S. Army payroll. Now some near Da Nang are under contract to the Vietnamese armed forces but are restricted to guard duty.

Special Forces men say this is an irregular war that sometimes has to be fought in irregular ways.

Solutions have been found in some areas. A force of 1,200 irregulars under command of the Rev. Nguyen Lac Hoa hammers at the Viet Cong in the deep south.

Father Hoa's "Sea Swallows" have the seal of technical legitimacy — the government assigned them to the National Civil Guard or the Self Defense Corps. The Roman Catholic priest retains absolute command. His little army is virtually autonomous.

In the north, however, the situation is virtually out of hand.

Near Da Nang, six racial groups are represented in one central compound. Friction among all six is never-ending.

Special forces men complain they cannot persuade Vietnamese units to venture a few miles into the highland jungle to attack Viet Cong strongholds. Vietnamese army units sometimes disdain American helicopter support.

A Vietnamese antiguerrilla agent operating in jungles near Da Nang used harsher words: "The Americans there give orders. They don't advise. They command in dictatorial tones, and have managed to offend a lot of people."

A responsible American official cites continuous efforts to indoctrinate men in the Da Nang area but concedes some have stepped on Vietnamese toes.

Foreign Workers In W. Germany

By GEOFFREY ATKINS

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A Greek fisherman, a Turkish carpenter, a Spanish farm laborer and an Italian bricklayer raised glasses of cold German beer.

"Let's drink a toast," said the Italian. "Let's hope there will be work here in Germany for a long time."

It was 6 p.m. in a Frankfurt bar.

It could have been in any of a dozen cities in West Germany as thousands of foreign workers poured out of factories, mills and building sites.

They are West Germany's gast arbeiter (guest workers), imported to make up shortages of labor in this booming land.

There are over 650,000 foreign workers in West Germany. Most come from poor, workless towns and villages in southern Europe and the Balkans. For them the streets of West Germany, with its prosperity and high wages, are paved with gold.

SAVE MONEY

"We have money in our pockets and get on well with the girls," said Georgios Lattis, 24, who comes from a Greek village near Salonika. He sends money home to his family, and is saving to buy a motor scooter.

For some of the older workers, the picture is not so rosy. They still have deep roots in their own countries. Homesickness is common.

They are also less able to adapt themselves to Germany's northern climate. Thoughts of their sun-drenched homelands make their longing to return even stronger. Even so, most are prepared to stick it out for a year, until they have saved up a small capital, or the economic situation in their own countries has improved.

The German government has agreements with Italy, Spain, Greece and Turkey for quotas of labor to meet the specific requirements of individual companies. The workers are guaranteed a minimum term of employment.

One big construction company in Frankfurt houses 1,000 foreign workers in gaily painted wooden huts, each well-furnished and with its own garden. They are free. The workers also get free laundry service, free language instruction, free medical attention, with television and radio sets provided in recreation rooms.

They have sports fields and can buy a substantial meal in a canteen for one mark (25 cents).

This all costs the company a lot of money, but one of its chief administrative officers, Rudolf Schaefer, says he is satisfied with the efficiency of the foreign workers.

Americans Surprised, Shocked Over Space Feat Of Communist Russia

Americans were surprised and shocked.

But in the skies two manned space ships chased one another around the globe day after day, leaving the efficient, technology-minded United States far behind.

How could they do it? How could Soviet science, once so far behind, leap ahead so swiftly?

A land of enormous contradictions, the Soviet Union has had its share of scientific genius. Names like Mendeleyev, Lomonosov and many others are known around the world. The space age probably will make the name of Konstantin Edvardovitch Tsiolkovsky just as celebrated.

TEACHER

Tsiolkovsky was a half-starved school teacher in Kaluga, a town 90 miles from Moscow. Fascinated by problems of rocketry and flying, he began as early as 1890 to work on a theory of jet propulsion. By 1929 he was working on plans for a multistage rocket. Pravda has credited him with solving basic problems in the searching for fuels to combat the earth's gravity. He was only one of many Russian scientists absorbed in such studies, even in the days of the czars.

The Russians claim that in 1933, two years before Tsiolkovsky died, they sent a research rocket with a liquid fuel engine to a height of several miles. There is no evidence to dispute this.

The strange thing is that scientists in Stalin's time lived amid suspicion and terror. Scientists went to prison. Some faced firing squads during the purges. A. N. Tupelov, noted aircraft designer, was jailed. Soviet forces depended on U.S. supplies to a great extent in World War II.

Even so, Soviet scientists under A. G. Kostyukov produced the Katyusha rockets, still remembered with awe by German soldiers.

What was the role of German scientists captured during the war? The evidence seems to be that more and possibly abler German scientists wound up in the United States, France and elsewhere in the West. But Germans contributed to both sides in the nuclear and space races, and the Russians profited from captured German rocket models and blueprints. Secret police teams scoured Germany to track down usable material.

MUCH

Spies and defectors, too, probably contributed much. It is impossible to calculate the help given by Dr. Klaus Fuchs, convicted by Britain as a spy in 1951, and Italian-born Bruno Pontecorvo, the nuclear physicist who defected from Britain the same year and now is a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. Both probably contributed to the first Soviet atomic explosion in 1949, four years behind the United States, and the first H-bomb explosion announced by the Soviet Union in 1953.

Even then, many in the United States, confident of American know-how, felt secure in the notion that the Soviet Union was a vast, backward slum.

The American sense of security was bolstered by Stalin himself. He made a mockery of Soviet achievement by claiming practically every invention in history as a Russian first. Under Stalin, nuclear research was controlled by the secret police, the dread MVD. Biologists had to toe the line laid down by Stalin's favorite, Trofim Lysenko.

But even in that era, Soviet interest in space flight was evident. In 1951 the Russians reported rocketing two dogs 60 miles into the atmosphere and returning them.

In November, 1953, 10 months after Stalin died, the Russians announced they intended to create an artificial satellite and later shoot for the moon. Few in the West paid much attention.

In the academy, science won skirmish after skirmish until hard-line ideologists were routed. The scientists set up an agency to co-ordinate their space program, calling it the Interdepartmental Commission on Interplanetary Communications.

In August 1955 L. S. Sedov gave the International Astronautical Federation Congress a prediction which was right on the nose. Reported Sedov: "Of late, much attention in the U.S.S.R. has been devoted to research problems respecting interplanetary communication, primarily problems relating to an artificial earth satellite. In my opinion it will be possible to launch an artificial earth satellite within the next two years."

This was reported in the West. Again little public attention was paid to it.

In 1956 Khrushchev told Soviet scientists not to fear foreign ideas but to use everything they could from the West.

This, too, was a key chapter. It meant the restraints were off. It was go, go, go for scientists like Pyotr Kapitsa, Nicolai Semyonov, Viktor Ambastumyan, and many others. Lt. Gen. Anatoli Blagonravov, an artillery officer and scientist, praised the government for its encouragement.

The Communist party retained its grip on the political, social and economic sciences affecting Soviets' everyday lives. But things moved swiftly when science involved military might and world prestige. By May, 1957, the academy said the Soviet Union was ready to launch a satellite. The Soviet press told the radio frequency to be used.

Soon after, scientist Ivan Bardin told International Geophysical year headquarters the U.S.S.R. planned to launch satellites in a few months. The Soviet press described the first projected sputnik. President A. N. Nesmeyanov of the academy wrote in Pravda on problems of creating an artificial earth satellite.

Apparently all these hints were passed on to high officials in Washington. Just what was done about the reports is not clear. The Western public, at any rate, showed little interest.

Then—surprise!

On Oct. 4, 1957, the Soviets threw Sputnik I, weighing 184 pounds, into orbit at 18,000 miles an hour. It stayed up 94 days.

Sputnik II, carrying the doomed dog Laika and weighing 1,120 pounds, went into orbit a month later. It burned out after 163 days. A third satellite went up in May 1958, and the West was jolted by the announcement it weighed 2,295 pounds. It stayed up 691 days.

The Soviets talked openly about manned space flights, eventual moon shots, sectional rockets, nuclear reaction engines, use of nuclear disintegration to achieve fantastic speeds, of new alloys to resist high temperatures.

On Jan. 7, 1958, the Soviet public was told that within three years a rocket would launch a manned sputnik. Another prediction on the nose.

But in 1958, Americans were in the act with several small satellites in space, and the U.S. public was feeling better about things.

Still, scoffing at Soviet capabilities went out of fashion. The Soviets did not publicize their failures, which must have been many, but their successes were glittering.

The Soviet people paid a price, but today there is exhilaration for them—an intensely prideful people—in knowing that Soviets are blazing the path into space. Perhaps most do not grudge the cost.

At any rate, the choice was made for them. After Stalin died, at a nervous moment in Soviet history, the regime promised them abundance in all sorts of consumer goods "within two or three years."

It was not to be that way.

Khrushchev turned the economy in the other direction—all for heavy industry, all for Soviet prestige, all for Soviet might. If they would be patient, he implied, Soviets one day would dominate the earth—and even the unknown beyond it.

Laos Has Fallen Into 'Old Ways'

By ANTOINE YARED

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Laos at peace has fallen back into its happy-go-lucky ways.

A month after the Geneva peace accords pledging this Southeast Asian kingdom to independence and neutrality, only the politicians show any impatience.

The easy-going 2½ million Laotians are content that things are much like they were before their strategic landlocked nation was plunged into civil war in the East-West struggle.

Prince Souvanna Phouma, neutralist premier of the new coalition government, returned, all smiles, from the Geneva conference and a visit to the United States and other countries.

"Well, gentlemen, how are things going?" he asked his Cabinet ministers.

"Nothing has been done," came the reply. "We have been waiting for your return."

While the premier was away, informants say, supporters of pro-Communist Prince Souphanouvong and right-wing Gen. Phoumi Nosavan maneuvered for positions of strength in the new administration.

Most of the people seem unaware of the political undertones still prevalent in the capital.

"We expected it will take them (coalition Cabinet ministers) at least a year to be able to achieve something concrete," said one civil servant.

"We are happy the war is ended and Laotians are not being killed any more," said a businessman. "Now our politicians can have as much time as they want to make the coalition function properly."

Life goes on as usual with few complaints among a people who frown on hard work, love festivals and even make gay at funerals.

Government employes and other workers in the cities report to their jobs daily—afoot, on bicycles or tricycles. Saffron-robed Buddhist priests at sunset make their rounds to collect donations. Villagers till their land without concern about things political.

The average Laotian lives on a modest diet of rice, vegetables and fruit. About 80 per cent of the population is self-sufficient. There are some shortages in the cities but no noticeable hardship.

"We Laotians have been accustomed to eat what is available from our natural resources, so whatever happens we will never die of hunger," said a Vientiane bank employe.

The mixed cease-fire commission set up to supervise the peace is playing a token role.

Premier Souvanna's coalition regime confronts a big task in merging the three armies involved in the civil war—Pathet Lao, neutralist, and rightwing.

Each leader seems determined to keep his troops under his control and spread out as much as possible, hoping to gain support of the local population for the eventual general elections.

The Three Princes pact that preceded formation of the coalition provided that the three factions maintain autonomous control over the areas they command, with the coalition government having over-all authority over the country.

The economic outlook has created apprehension among business circles in Vientiane. The illicit trade in opium, which has grown abundantly in the northern regions, is flourishing.

Return Of Painting Expected By Expert

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP)—"When the fuss dies down," said Sir Philip Hendy, "I think the painting will come back."

Sir Philip, the gallery's director, continued, "It's too embarrassing for anyone to keep. I think the cranks who took it are not sadistic and are not likely to destroy it."

Sir Philip thinks publicity in England stirs up the cranks—"There have been three incidents recently in the National Gallery."

One was the action of a deranged man in throwing an ink bottle at a Leonardo da Vinci drawing which Britain is buying for the National Gallery at a cost of $2.24 million.

The Goya theft remains as mystifying today as it has been since the night of Aug. 21, 1961, when it disappeared.

Scotland Yard has checked letters, telephone calls and tips.

"They all proved fruitless,' said a Yard spokesman. "They never led us anywhere. We have no idea at all who took the painting."

Scotland Yard leans to the belief that it was not a professional job, however. Indications are that someone stayed in the gallery after the public had left, took the picture and escaped through a window.

What makes the theft the more mystifying is why anyone would want to steal the world-famous Goya. There's no hope of collecting ransom. The government, which owns the painting, won't be shaken down.

The British government bought the Goya from an American, Charles Wrightsman, after he bought it at a Sotheby auction for $392,000. It is so famous there seems no chance the thief could sell it.

MORAL RIGHTS

At a recent meeting of the Sales Caravan sponsored annually by the Louisiana Association of Life Underwriters which features outstanding speakers from various sections of the country, one of the speakers dropped some very thought-provoking concepts and philosophies into our laps. Two of these thoughts in particular made a profound impression on me and I should like to share them with my readers.

First, he said that man should provide his family with enough income to give him the MORAL RIGHT TO DIE. I wonder how many of us have ever thought about the estate that we will leave for our families in just that way. I wonder, too, how many of us have done something about preparing properly for our families with an adequate life insurance program so that we do have the moral right to die. The statistics show that a good many have not done so. Think about it. Do you have this right?

Second, he stated that we in the life insurance industry have no argument or objection to a man investing or speculating in the stock market so long as he has EARNED THE RIGHT to do so by first preparing for his family's protection when he dies. Even the stock brokerage firms advocate this philosophy. I have seen so many cases of people who are speculating in the stock market without having first earned the right to do so. After all, we are selling security not securities. If you are taking chances in the stock market, have you earned the right?

World Spotlight; A Look Behind the Headlines

Facts On All Purpose Army

EDITOR'S NOTE: The military policy of the Kennedy administration emphasizes conventional warfare and counter-guerrilla operations in the underdeveloped nations of the world. How well is the U.S. Army adjusting to the new emphasis? AP Newsfeatures writer Bem Price visited the Infantry School at Ft. Benning, Ga., to find out.

By BEM PRICE
AP Newsfeatures Writer

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP)—The U.S. Army must be prepared to fight any kind of war, anywhere, anytime—in theory, at least.

It must be trained to fight a war, nuclear or nonnuclear, against the highly mechanized forces of the Soviet Union and its satellites in Europe.

It also must be trained and equipped to fight a war, nuclear or nonnuclear, in the arctic, the deserts, the jungles, the mountains, and on the beaches of the world.

Since the Kennedy administration took office, there has been a shift in national military policy.

The policy assumes that nonnuclear wars are far more likely to occur than the big holocaust; that the Communists will seek world domination through a series of little "wars of liberation"—to use Soviet Premier Khrushchev's words.

It further assumes that the most likely areas of conflict are in the weak nations with underdeveloped economies.

Thus, the reasoning goes, the United States must be prepared to come to the aid of those nations which appeal for help against Communist-inspired guerrillas.

So it is startling, at first, to arrive here and find the Army training its combat leaders as if they were going to fight a highly mechanized war in Europe.

Ft. Benning is the home of the Infantry School. Here are trained the men who will lead the companies and battalions in a shooting war of any kind.

Out in the fields, tanks and armored personnel carriers go clattering across the landscape, followed by charging infantry, in classic demonstrations of the foot soldier in the assault.

One officer was asked if he could run this same armor-infantry demonstration in Viet Nam, or any of the other world hotspots, excepting Germany. The answer: "Well, maybe, in some places."

In a firepower demonstration, the Army brought all its infantry-support weapons together for an awesome display of flying metal and flame-throwing tanks.

It even fired a Davy Crockett, a new and small, jeep-mounted ballistic missile of short range, which can carry an atomic warhead.

This is precisely the type of war of big gun against big gun, tank against tank, rocket against rocket that national policy assumes is most unlikely to occur.

Is the Army placing too much emphasis on mechanized warfare and not paying enough attention to training for the type of warfare most likely to occur?

The U.S. Army gives its young career officers here a course that embraces 1,147 hours of instruction. While a good many hours are devoted to subjects which would have a bearing on guerrilla suppression, only 49 hours are given to what is called cold-war-counterinsurgency operations.

At its basic school at Quantico, Va., the U.S. Marine Corps gives its junior officers 100 hours of instruction on guerrilla suppression out of a total course of 1,062 hours.

The Marine commandant Gen. David M. Shoup, last February ordered the Marine schools to increase emphasis on guerrilla and antiguerrilla operations.

There has been no comparable increase in emphasis within the Army school structure, though considerable publicity has been given to the Army's special forces who are not so much antiguerrilla forces as they are guerrilla forces.

This question was put to several officers at the Infantry School here: "Would you argue the premise that the Army is continuing to equip and train as if it planned to fight only in Europe against an enemy with an equal technology, whereas the most likely areas of conflict are underdeveloped countries where the roads are few and the enemy is lightly armed?"

"I think that would be putting it too strongly," said Col. J. G. Cornett, chief of the Infantry School academic staff, who has just returned from three years of detached duty with the British in Singapore.

"The bulk of the training has been as you say. But it is now in transition."

Hasn't this transition been a bit slow?

"At the end of World War II," Cornett said, "there was no visible enemy in sight except in the civilized areas.

"The Japanese were gone, and the Chinese didn't then exist as a force. There was only this other fellow (the Soviet Union).

"You must have a potential enemy in sight for this determines your training and equipment."

And, the colonel added, the Russians are still in sight.

Cornett estimated that a good 75 per cent, or better, of the men now in training in the Infantry School will sooner or later serve with the highly mechanized 7th Army now in Europe with North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces.

There are, the colonel added, certain fundamental skills in the infantry which are applicable to any theater of operations — familiarity with basic weapons, field sanitation, scouting and patrolling, how to take advantage of concealment and terrain.

This is all true. But there are also techniques and tactics peculiar to potential trouble areas. Why not give the men more training for the areas in which they are likely to fight against an enemy far different from the Soviet forces in Europe?

"I guess that takes money," the colonel replied. "I guess I am not really in a position to answer that. But the transition is being made, and it is my guess that the training in unconventional warfare will be increased between 20 and 35 per cent."

The Army is only now beginning to recover from the lean years between the end of the Korean War in 1953 and the end of 1960.

Recognizing the diversity of war problems, the Army is beginning to use its increase in funds to train selected units for operations in particular theaters of potential trouble.

The 25th Division in Hawaii, for example, is being oriented more intensively toward possible operations in the underdeveloped areas of the Pacific.

Four battle groups in this country have been picked to undergo specialist training in counter insurgency operations. They are in the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky.; the 82nd Airborne at Ft. Bragg, N.C.; the 2nd Infantry Division here; and the 32nd National Guard Division at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

This all adds up to the fact that the United States will have three Marine divisions, one Army division and four Army battle groups oriented to war in underdeveloped nations, not counting forces in Korea.

Between Viet Nam, And U. S. Troops

By MALCOLM W. BROWNE

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Simmering hostility between American and Vietnamese forces is imperiling joint efforts against the Viet Cong, the militant Communists who seek to take over Viet Nam.

Guerrilla troops of the U.S. Army's Special Forces are being withdrawn from certain exposed jungle outposts near the Laos frontier because of fear they will not have sufficient backing against Viet Cong onslaughts. The Viet Cong has made the Americans special targets.

One Vietnamese unit refused to provide an armored convoy for Americans planning to evacuate wounded mountain tribesmen. Joint operations in some areas bog down for lack of cooperation.

Racial tension is part of the problem.

"There's a continuous ethnological clash here in Viet Nam." A high-ranking U.S. officer said. "There is tension between Vietnamese and American, between Vietnamese and tribesman, and between the various mountain tribes themselves."

An Associated Press man was riding in a U.S. Army jeep past a Vietnamese army compound 370 miles northeast of here several days ago. A rock was thrown from the compound at the American jeep ahead, cracking the windshield. The jeeps did not stop.

Rock throwing happens fairly often at the spot, the AP man was told. He was barred from the Vietnamese compound.

In Saigon, a Special Forces officer said, "Throwing stones is nothing especially unusual. It happens all the time. We've had stones thrown right here in Saigon.

Part of the problem, Special Forces men say, is American efforts to enlist the help of the 20-odd mountain tribal groups populating Viet Nam's vital high plateau.

Special Forces men consider some of the tribes the most efficient killers in Viet Nam, and they feel they should be used—as mercenaries if necessary —to track down the Communist enemy.

Until several weeks ago, Special Forces troops were paying a warlike tribe called the Nungs to fight the Viet Cong. The Nungs, mostly refugees from the border region of North Viet Nam and China, are known as the Gurkhas of Viet Nam because of lethal skills as jungle fighters.

The government, objecting that this recruiting of Nung mercenaries infringed on the republic's sovereignty, insisted the tribesmen be taken off the U.S. Army payroll. Now some near Da Nang are under contract to the Vietnamese armed forces but are restricted to guard duty.

Special Forces men say this is an irregular war that sometimes has to be fought in irregular ways.

Solutions have been found in some areas. A force of 1,200 irregulars under command of the Rev. Nguyen Lac Hoa hammers at the Viet Cong in the deep south.

Father Hoa's "Sea Swallows" have the seal of technical legitimacy — the government assigned them to the National Civil Guard or the Self Defense Corps. The Roman Catholic priest retains absolute command. His little army is virtually autonomous.

In the north, however, the situation is virtually out of hand.

Near Da Nang, six racial groups are represented in one central compound. Friction among all six is never-ending.

Special forces men complain they cannot persuade Vietnamese units to venture a few miles into the highland jungle to attack Viet Cong strongholds. Vietnamese army units sometimes disdain American helicopter support.

A Vietnamese antiguerrilla agent operating in jungles near Da Nung used harsher words: "The Americans there give orders. They don't advise. They command in dictatorial tones, and have managed to offend a lot of people."

A responsible American official cites continuous efforts to indoctrinate men in the Da Nang area but concedes some have stepped on Vietnamese toes.

Foreign Workers In W. Germany

By GEOFFREY ATKINS

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—A Greek fisherman, a Turkish carpenter, a Spanish farm laborer and an Italian bricklayer raised glasses of cold German beer.

"Let's drink a toast," said the Italian. "Let's hope there will be work here in Germany for a long time."

It was 6 p.m. in a Frankfurt bar.

It could have been in any of a dozen cities in West Germany as thousands of foreign workers poured out of factories, mills and building sites.

They are West Germany's gast arbeiter (guest workers), imported to make up shortages of labor in this booming land.

There are over 650,000 foreign workers in West Germany. Most come from poor, workless towns and villages in southern Europe and the Balkans. For them the streets of West Germany, with its prosperity and high wages, are paved with gold.

SAVE MONEY

"We have money in our pockets and get on well with the girls," said Georgios Lattis, 24, who comes from a Greek village near Salonika. He sends money home to his family, and is saving to buy a motor scooter.

For some of the older workers, the picture is not so rosy. They still have deep roots in their own countries. Homesickness is common.

They are also less able to adapt themselves to Germany's northern climate. Thoughts of their sun-drenched homelands make their longing to return even stronger. Even so, most are prepared to stick it out for a year, until they have saved up a small capital, or the economic situation in their own countries has improved.

The German government has agreements with Italy, Spain, Greece and Turkey for quotas of labor to meet the specific requirements of individual companies. The workers are guaranteed a minimum term of employment.

One big construction company in Frankfurt houses 1,000 foreign workers in gaily painted wooden huts, each well-furnished and with its own garden. They are free. The workers also get free laundry service, free language instruction, free medical attention, with television and radio sets provided in recreation rooms.

They have sports fields and can buy a substantial meal in a canteen for one mark (25 cents).

This all costs the company a lot of money, but one of its chief administrative officers, Rudolf Schaefer, says he is satisfied with the efficiency of the foreign workers.

Americans Surprised, Shocked Over Space Feat Of Communist Russia

Most of the people seem unaware of the political undertones still prevalent in the capital.

"We expected it will take them (coalition Cabinet ministers) at least a year to be able to achieve something concrete," said one civil servant.

"We are happy the war is ended and Laotians are not being killed any more," said a businessman. "Now our politicians can have as much time as they want to make the coalition function properly."

Life goes on as usual with few complaints among a people who frown on hard work, love festivals and even make gay at funerals.

Government employes and other workers in the cities report to their jobs daily—afoot, on bicycles or tricycles. Saffron-robed Buddhist priests at sunset make their rounds to collect donations. Villagers till their land without concern about things political.

The average Laotian lives on a modest diet of rice, vegetables and fruit. About 80 per cent of the population is self-sufficient. There are some shortages in the cities but no noticeable hardship.

"We Laotians have been accustomed to eat what is available from our natural resources, so whatever happens we will never die of hunger," said a Vientiane bank employe.

The mixed cease-fire commission set up to supervise the peace is playing a token role.

Premier Souvanna's coalition regime confronts a big task in merging the three armies involved in the civil war—Pathet Lao, neutralist, and rightwing.

Each leader seems determined to keep his troops under his control and spread out as much as possible, hoping to gain support of the local population for the eventual general elections.

The Three Princes pact that preceded formation of the coalition provided that the three factions maintain autonomous control over the areas they command, with the coalition government having over-all authority over the country.

The economic outlook has created apprehension among business circles in Vientiane. The illicit trade in opium, which has grown abundantly in the northern regions, is flourishing.

Return Of Painting Expected By Expert

By MILTON MARMOR

LONDON (AP)—"When the fuss dies down," said Sir Philip Hendy, "I think the painting will come back."

Sir Philip, the gallery's director, continued, "It's too embarrassing for anyone to keep. I think the cranks who took it are not sadistic and are not likely to destroy it."

Sir Philip thinks publicity in England stirs up the cranks—"There have been three incidents recently in the National Gallery."

One was the action of a deranged man in throwing an ink bottle at a Leonardo da Vinci drawing which Britain is buying for the National Gallery at a cost of $2.24 million.

The Goya theft remains as mystifying today as it has been since the night of Aug. 21, 1961, when it disappeared.

Scotland Yard has checked letters, telephone calls and tips.

"They all proved fruitless,' said a Yard spokesman. "They never led us anywhere. We have no idea at all who took the painting."

Scotland Yard leans to the belief that it was not a professional job, however. Indications are that someone stayed in the gallery after the public had left, took the picture and escaped through a window.

What makes the theft the more mystifying is why anyone would want to steal the world-famous Goya. There's no hope of collecting ransom. The government, which owns the painting, won't be shaken down.

The British government bought the Goya from an American, Charles Wrightsman, after he bought it at a Sotheby auction for $392,000. It is so famous there seems no chance the thief could sell it.

MORAL RIGHTS

At a recent meeting of the Sales Caravan sponsored annually by the Louisiana Association of Life Underwriters which features outstanding speakers from various sections of the country, one of the speakers dropped some very thought-provoking concepts and philosophies into our laps. Two of these thoughts in particular made a profound impression on me and I should like to share them with my readers.

First, he said that man should provide his family with enough income to give him the MORAL RIGHT TO DIE. I wonder how many of us have ever thought about the estate that we will leave for our families in just that way. I wonder, too, how many of us have done something about preparing properly for our families with an adequate life insurance program so that we do have the moral right to die. The statistics show that a good many have not done so. Think about it. Do you have this right?

Second, he stated that we in the life insurance industry have no argument or objection to a man investing or speculating in the stock market so long as he has EARNED THE RIGHT to do so by first preparing for his family's protection when he dies. Even the stock brokerage firms advocate this philosophy. I have seen so many cases of people who are speculating in the stock market without having first earned the right to do so. After all, we are selling security not securities. If you are taking chances in the stock market, have you earned the right?

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Book To Be Popular

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An outstanding and significant new book of fiction and one which I predict will be extremely popular with our readers is "A Family's Affairs" by Ellen Douglas. This book is the saga of a town, a church and a family. Best of all it has a southern setting in the Mississippi town of Homochitto. It is the kind of book which all of us who were raised in small Southern towns will love and enjoy from the first page to the last. It is the sort of book that I would like to write, if I ever wrote one.

A book which will interest all owners of small animals is "Park Avenue Vet" written by Dr. Louis J. Camuti, who has a large practice among the pets of the fashionable apartment area in New York City. Always eagerly awaited is the selection of the Prize stories for each year, the volume which make up the O. Henry awards. The one for 1962 has just arrived. It contains a variety of material. First prize went to Katherine Anne Porter for HOLIDAY second prize to Thomas Phychon for UNDER THE ROSE and third prize to Tom Cole for FAMILIAR USAGE IN LENINGRAD. Other writers represented are Shirley Ann Grau, David Jackson and John Updike.

Tibet is the land of mystery about which very little is known. The memoirs of his holiness, the Dalai Lama of Tibet, called "My Land and my People" is certain to shed new light on this country and will interest many readers. A perfectly lovely new book is "One Hundred Years of Music in America" edited by Paul Henry Lang. This book was purchased to fill a special request, and we are very happy to have it in our collection. Everyone interested in railroads will want to see a very lovely book called "Steam, Steel and Limiteds" which is an excellent history of railroading in the United States. Sent to the Library as a gift from our Congressman, Mr. Otto Passman were four copies of the 1962 Yearbook of Agriculture. This year it is devoted to a history and evaluation of the United States Department of Agriculture after 100 years of operation.

A fascinating book because of the vistas it opens up is "The Thinking Machine" by John Pfeiffer. The author, who is one of our outstanding writers in the field of science has given us a picture of the wonderful things that are now done by machines and what we can expect from the future. This is a book which the informed layman should read, for it discusses the world of cybernetics in non - technical language.

Three outstanding books have been added to the reference collection of the Library this past week. One is "Annals of English Literature, 1475-1950" which is a bibliography listing the outstanding publications of each year. It should be invaluable to students of literature. Another is "Electronics Buyers Guide and Reference Issue" which comes to the library as a part of our subscription to the Electronics magazine. If you need to purchase anything in that field. This book is invaluable. Third we have the New Century Classical Handbook" edited by Catherine B. Avery. This book is a gold mine of information for students of Latin, Greek, or any literature. Copies of this chita Parish.
better serve the people of Ouachita Each week the library collection is expanding into new fields to book may be found at the Main Library, the West Monroe Library or the Anna Meyer Library.

Orleans Crash Fatal For Two

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two young men, believed to be servicemen, were killed Saturday and a third seriously injured when their small, foreign-made sports car smashed head-on into another vehicle on U.S. 90 in eastern New Orleans.

The victims were identified by police as Jerry Mace Lane, 19, of Panama City, Fla., and Roger R. Smythe, 21, of Wayne, N.J.

The injured man, reported in serious condition at Charity Hospital, was identified from one of three duffle bags in the car as Edward J. Ulrich Jr., 19, of Kingston, N.Y.

The driver of the other car, Mrs. Louis M. Vinsanau, 64, was taken to Hotel Dieu with fractured arms and legs. Her husband, 65, the St. Bernard Parish tax assessor, was not listed in serious condition.

BOOKS

A TIME IN THE SUN. By Jane Barry. Doubleday. $4.95.

"Every man has his time in the sun, and that is all he has."

That bit of advice is given by an Indian chief to one of the principal characters in this story of the Apache wars. It was his way of saying that when fate beckons, it must be obeyed.

There are some curious twists of fate in Mrs. Barry's novel.

The setting is a military post near Tucson, Territory of Arizona, shortly after the Civil War, when the westward migrations of the settlers have pushed the Apaches into desperate last - ditch raids.

The story begins with the Indians capturing Anna, the 19-year-old orphan who was en route to marry Lt. Linus Degan, son of the post commander. Captured in the same exploit was an aristocratic Mexican beauty named Ysabel.

The dilemma was that the use of force in effecting a rescue probably would result in the deaths of the captives. Old Col. Degnan had to turn to a wandering Texan named John Shafter, who was friendly with the Indians, as a negotiator.

Ysabel was ransomed for 40 horses, 20 blankets, some ammunition and silver. But because soldiers from the post had killed the leader of an Apache party their chief refused to set a price on Anna.

So it took time to get Anna back. And meanwhile she had fallen in love with the young son of a white man and a squaw. As Joe Mitchell, he had been scorned when he tried to live among the whites, so he had joined the Indians as Joaquin. Anna's eventual return and her renunciation of Linus and civilization lead to a further climax.

The book is more than "just western." Once the reader has accepted the idea of Ann's love for Joaquin — and some readers may feel some qualms about this — it is a story of the eternal triangle.

But it also is a story of the frontier — of Indians, soldiers, Mexicans and the American civilians; of the doomed Apaches, a few white men who kept their promises and many who did not. Mrs. Barry's portrayal of Indian life steers a middle course between the idealized "noble Red Man" and the stupid, vicious aborigine living in filth and squalor.

The most memorable figure in the book is Shafter, friend of both Linus and Jaoquin. His exterior is like that of the tight-lipped lone wolf of much western fiction, but his character goes deeper.

Grain Futures Pushed Higher By Speculation

CHICAGO (AP) — Speculative activity dominated the grain futures market last week and it pushed most commodities substantially higher on the Board of Trade.

Gains ran to more than seven cents a bushel in old crop soybeans and to more than three cents in corn. Advances of two cents or more were numerous, although wheat finished about unchanged from a week ago despite some broad shifts.

Trade was fairly active most of the time as alternate surges of buying and selling hit the pits. The government's monthly crop report appeared to have exerted little influence in the trade, except possibly soybeans. Brokers said it was slightly bullish in view of the estimate of about 703 million bushels, well below other predictions.

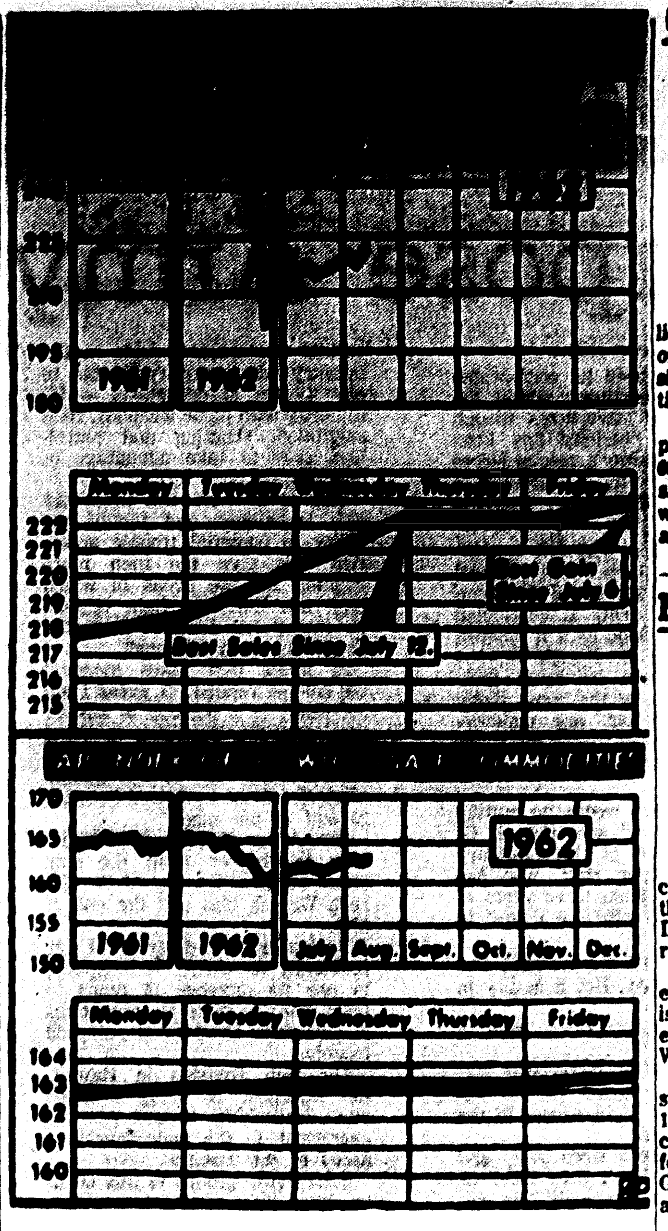
Wheat trade was influenced largely by prospects of congressional action on the 1963 farm program. Consideration of the measure was deferred for debate on the communications satellite measure and raised some doubt among at least a few speculators as to whether any action would be forthcoming.

Many speculators said they doubted that Congress will adjourn without at least extending the 1961-62 program another year but the possibility of a lapse and reversion to the 1958 law induced heavy liquidation at times.

Wheat was affected most because the winter crop must be planted within the next few weeks and any acreage restrictions hardly would become fully effective after that time, dealers said.

Factors in the trade for old crop soybeans, particularly the August delivery, were linked principally to evening up commitments in the pit. Opinion varied as to whether circumstances favored the short or long side of the trade, since the government sold virtually all the supplies received in Chicago during the week.

Wheat closed ¼ cent a bushel lower to ¼ higher, September $2.07; corn 1⅜-3⅛ higher, September $1.08⅜; oats ⅛-1½ higher, September 62 cents; rye 1½-2⅜ higher, September $1.21¾-⅞; soybeans 1⅞-7¼ higher, August $2.50-50¼.



VOLUME SPURTS UP

Stocks Hit Highest Since End Of May

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week reached its highest level since immediately after the May 28 sell-off. Volume was almost one-third higher than the previous week.

Only on Thursday, when profit-taking set in, did the list fail to advance. Prices closed at the highest of the week for the third gain in the last four weeks.

Measured by the Associated Press 60-stock average, the advance of 5 points was the best since July 2-7, when the gain was 5.4 points. This average closed Friday at 222.9, the highest since 225.4 June 1.

The Dow Jones industrial average hurdled a barrier on Tuesday—the psychological and technical wall created by the 600 level. Once past that point,' "the magic wand of 600," as one broker called it, helped prices to move higher.

This average closed the week at 610.02, its highest since 611.05 June 1. The gain for the week was 17.7 points. Wednesday's gain was the best for any day since July 2.

Also helping the market were President Kennedy's sizeup of the economy and the market Monday night; a number of higher economic indicators for July, and the Senate's vote to limit debate on the administration's communications satellite bill.

Motors and aerospace issues (the aircrafts and electronics) were the week's leaders. They ignited the market during both Wednesday's and Friday's sessions.

Although the market had anticipated that there would be no tax cut this year, the President's report was considered reassuring and cleared the air.

The Senate's decision to limit debate was encouraging to the market, some analysts said, because it made clear most senators have confidence in the free enterprise system. The bill, approved by the Senate late Friday, calls for a communications satellite corporation owned by the international carriers and the public equally.

Among the economic indicators pointing upward for July were: A record high in the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, second quarter increase in gross national product, higher cash dividend payments than a year earlier and higher new orders and sales by durable goods manufacturers.

Thursday, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board said the July improvement in business continued in August and he saw no recession in the near future.

All these things helped restore some investor confidence, Wall Street felt. Trading responded by increasing to 18,808,440 shares for the week from 14,329,402 the previous week and compared with 18,029,090 in the like week a year ago. Wednesday's 4.88 million shares traded was the busiest day since July 12.

The autos responded to predictions of a good 1963 model year and higher production schedules for the fourth quarter. The aircrafts and electronics were helped by reports of a new multibillion dollar space booster program. In addition, many people thought Russia's success with twin orbital flights would eventually mean more U.S. spending in this field.

For the week there were 1,443 issues traded with 987 advancing, 312 declining and 144 unchanged. There were 16 new highs and 40 lows for 1962.

The list of 20 most active stocks showed 17 higher, 2 lower and 1 unchanged. Gains ranged up to 8 points with 8 amounting to 2 points or more.

The bond market, shaking the midsummer doldrums, marched up hill at a more or less steady gait. The pace of trading picked up in the middle of the week as the trend gained momentum, then fell back as the upward price movement lost some of its steam.

U.S Treasury bond were strong on the over-the-counter market, somewhat paralleling the pattern of corporates, and finished the week Friday with their eighth consecutive daily advance.

Corporate volume for the week on the New York Stock Exchange rose to about 22.3 million par value. Turnover in the preceding week was a little over $19 million.

Larco Sets Mississippi Casing Run

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A casing production run is reported scheduled by Larco Drilling Co. and Brame, et al, in a Jones County wildcat, the Walker No. 1, sec. 8-7n-11w.

The venture is scheduled to be drilled to 15,000 feet. However, salt has been encountered at 14,077 feet. The wildcat is located approximately four miles east of Ellisville and 16 miles west of the recently discovered Wausau field in Wayne County.

In northwestern Amite County, Dorris Ballew, Inc., is drilling below 10,000 feet in a wildcat, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 18-4n-2e, a scheduled 11,500 foot test. Also in Amite, Larco Drilling Co., Best and Unius have location staked for a wildcat, the Whittington No. 1, sec. 4-2n-5e, located about three miles south of the East Fork field. The test has contract depth of 11,500 feet.

In the Maxie Gas Condensate Field of Forrest County, Humble Oil & Refining Co. is drilling below 10,000 feet in its unit SE61, sec. 18-1s-12w, first deep test to be drilled on the upthrown side of the major fault in the field. Jefreys are below 9,700 feet and nearing the interesting stage in their wildcat, the Anderson No. 1, sec. 29-10n-4q, a 10,400 foot try. The try is located about a mile and one-half near a wildcat test drilled several years ago and abandoned.

Field drilling during the past week saw five new oilers and two gas condensate wells completed.

Deep-Water Offshore Drilling Rigs Planned

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Millions of dollars are being spent on new drilling equipment designed to push offshore oil operations into deeper water.

One project calls for a floating platform to operate at depths of 600 feet or more. Its developers say experiments indicate it will withstand hurricane force waves and winds.

Preparations for a boom in offshore operations have moved rapidly since a March lease sale brought a record $445 million for 402 tracts off Louisiana and 10 off Texas.

While the Louisiana coast dominates most of the offshore operations, there is considerable activity in California and in such widespread areas as Alaska, Venezuela, Persian Gulf, Africa, Gulf of Suez, Mexico, and Borneo.

Recent tests have been made in the North Sea off the coast of Holland. Exploration surveys are being made off the coast of England and Scotland.

The August edition of Offshore Magazine said Alaska could easily move ahead of Texas and California and rank second only to Louisiana in offshore operations. Alaska has obtained $30 million from offshore lease sales this year.

The floating platform for operations at depths of 600 feet is a project of International Marine Development Ltd., London. A buoyancy chamber beneath the platform is sunk to a depth of about 50 feet where wave action is at a minimum. A series of spaced anchors hold the platform on location.

Shell Oil Co. and the Blu Water Drilling Corp. have had a all-weather floating platform in operation off the Louisiana coas the past year. The rig now is drilling in nearly 300 feet of water the deepest depth so far for the Gulf of Mexico.

Shell announced this week th 242-foot vessel operated success fully through winter storms wi waves of 28 feet and winds of miles an hour.

Shell also announced the drilli vessel is using a new method completing offshore wells by r mote control from the surfac The new technique was develop by Shell at a cost in excess $7 million.

Shell officials said the floati platform and the remote cont equipment make it possible find and produce oil from the o sea regardless of distance fr land and depth of water.

Other offshore drilling rig velopments:

Offshore Co. is designing a million, 320-foot floating rig will be held in place by an anc system that will permit the ve to turn 360 degrees without h ing drilling operations.

Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, I is building a $6½ million tr submersible rig for drilling depths of 175 feet.

Western Offshore Drilling Exploration Co. is combating severe currents and high tide Alaska's Cook Inlet with a 280-foot barge designed to to depths of 20,000 feet.

Ocean Drilling & Explor Co. plans to complete next at $5 million, 360-foot structu operate on a submersible ba shallow water and as a flo rig in deeper water.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

New Book To Be Popular

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An outstanding and significiant new book of fiction and one which I predict will be extremely popular with our readers is "A Family's Affairs" by Ellen Douglas. This book is the saga of a town, a church and a family. Best of all it has a southern setting in the Mississippi town of Homochito. It is the kind of book which all of us who were raised in small Southern towns will love and enjoy from the first page to the last. It is the sort of book that I would like to write, if I ever wrote one.

A book which will interest all owners of small animals is "Park Avenue Vet" written by Dr. Louis J. Camuti, who has a large practice among the pets of the fashionable apartment area in New York City. Always eagerly awaited is the selection of the Prize stories for each year, the volume which make up the O. Henry awards. The one for 1962 has just arrived. It contains a variety of material. First prize went to Katherine Anne Porter for HOLIDAY second prize to Thomas Phychon for UNDER THE ROSE and third prize to Tom Cole for FAMILIAR USAGE IN LENINGRAD. Other writers represented are Shirley Ann Grau, David Jackson and John Updike.

Tibet is the land of mystery about which very little is known. The memoirs of his holiness, the Dalai Lama of Tibet, called My Land and my People" is certain to shed new light on this country and will interest many readers. A perfectly lovely new book is "One Hundred Years of Music in America" edited by Paul Henry Lang. This book was purchased to fill a special request, and we are very happy to have it in our collection. Everyone interested in railroads will want to see a very lovely book called "Steam, Steel and Limiteds" which is an excellent history of railroading in the United States. Sent to the Library as a gift from our Congressman, Mr. Otto Passman were four copies of the 1962 Yearbook of Agriculture. This year it is devoted to a history and evaluation of the United States Department of Agriculture after 100 years of operation.

A fascinating book because of the vistas it opens up is "The Thinking Machine" by John Pfeiffer. The author, who is one of our outstanding writers in the field of science has given us a picture of the wonderful things that are now done by machines and what we can expect from the future. This is a book which the informed layman should read, for it discusses the world of cyberneticsin non - technical language.

Three outstanding books have been added to the reference collection of the Library this past week. One is "Annals of English Literature, 1475-1950" which is a bibliography listing the outstanding publications of each year. It should be invaluable to students of literature. Another is "Electronics Buyers Guide and Reference Issue" which comes to the library as a part of our subscription to the Electronics magazine. If you need to purchase anything in that field. This book is invaluable. Third we have the New Century Classical Handbook" edited by Catherine B. Avery. This book is a gold mine of information for students of Latin, Greek, or any literature. Copies of this chita Parish.

Orleans Crash Fatal For Two

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Two young men, believed to be servicemen, were killed Saturday and a third seriously injured when their small, foreign-made sports car smashed head-on into another vehicle on U.S. 90 in eastern New Orleans.

The victims were identified by police as Jerry Mace Lane, 19, of Panama City, Fla., and Roger R. Smythe, 21, of Wayne, N.J.

The injured man, reported in serious condition at Charity Hospital, was identified from one of three duffle bags in the car as Edward J. Ulrich Jr., 19, of Kingston, N.Y.

The driver of the other car, Mrs. Louis M. Vinsanau, 64, was taken to Hotel Dieu with fractured arms and legs. Her husband, 65, the St. Bernard Parish tax assessor, was not listed in serious condition.

BOOKS

A TIME IN THE SUN. By Jane Barry. Doubleday. $4.95.

"Every man has his time in the sun, and that is all he has."

That bit of advice is given by an Indian chief to one of the principal characters in this story of the Apache wars. It was his way of saying that when fate beckons, it must be obeyed.

There are some curious twists of fate in Mrs. Barry's novel.

The setting is a military post near Tucson, Territory of Arizona, shortly after the Civil War, when the westward migrations of the settlers have pushed the Apaches into desperate last - ditch raids.

The story begins with the Indians capturing Anna, the 19-year-old orphan who was en route to marry Lt. Linus Degan, son of the post commander. Captured in the same exploit was an aristocratic Mexican beauty named Ysabel.

The dilemma was that the use of force in effecting a rescue probably would result in the deaths of the captives. Old Col. Degnan had to turn to a wandering Texan named John Shafter, who was friendly with the Indians, as a negotiator.

Ysabel was ransomed for 40 horses, 20 blankets, some ammunition and silver. But because soldiers from the post had killed the leader of an Apache party their chief refused to set a price on Anna.

So it took time to get Anna back. And meanwhile she had fallen in love with the young son of a white man and a squaw. As Joe Mitchell, he had been scorned when he tried to live among the whites, so he had joined the Indians as Joaquin. Anna's eventual return and her renunciation of Linus and civilization lead to a further climax.

The book is more than "just western." Once the reader has accepted the idea of Ann's love for Joaquin — and some readers may feel some qualms about this — it is a story of the eternal triangle.

But it also is a story of the frontier — of Indians, soldiers, Mexicans and the American civilians; of the doomed Apaches, a few white men who kept their promises and many who did not. Mrs. Barry's portrayal of Indian life steers a middle course between the idealized "noble Red Man" and the stupid, vicious aborigine living in filth and squalor.

The most memorable figure in the book is Shafter, friend of both Linus and Jaoquin. His exterior is like that of the tight-lipped lone wolf of much western fiction, but his character goes deeper.

Here is interesting fiction with a factual ring.

VOLUME SPURTS UP

Stocks Hit Highest Since End Of May

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market last week reached its highest level since immediately after the May 28 sell-off. Volume was almost one-third higher than the previous week.

Only on Thursday, when profit-taking set in, did the list fail to advance. Prices closed at the highest of the week for the third gain in the last four weeks.

Measured by the Associated Press 60-stock average, the advance of 5 points was the best since July 2-7, when the gain was 5.4 points. This average closed Friday at 222.9, the highest since 225.4 June 1.

The Dow Jones industrial average hurdled a barrier on Tuesday—the psychological and technical wall created by the 600 level. Once past that point,' "the magic wand of 600," as one broker called it, helped prices to move higher.

This average closed the week at 610.02, its highest since 611.05 June 1. The gain for the week was 17.7 points. Wednesday's gain was the best for any day since July 2.

Also helping the market were President Kennedy's sizeup of the economy and the market Monday night; a number of higher economic indicators for July, and the Senate's vote to limit debate on the administration's communications satellite bill.

Motors and aerospace issues (the aircrafts and electronics) were the week's leaders. They ignited the market during both Wednesday's and Friday's sessions.

Although the market had anticipated that there would be no tax cut this year, the President's report was considered reassuring and cleared the air.

The Senate's decision to limit debate was encouraging to the market, some analysts said, because it made clear most senators have confidence in the free enterprise system. The bill, approved by the Senate late Friday, calls for a communications satellite corporation owned by the international carriers and the public equally.

Among the economic indicators pointing upward for July were: A record high in the Federal Reserve Board's index of industrial production, second quarter increase in gross national product, higher cash dividend payments than a year earlier and higher new orders and sales by durable goods manufacturers.

Thursday, the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board said the July improvement in business continued in August and he saw no recession in the near future.

All these things helped restore some investor confidence, Wall Street felt. Trading responded by increasing to 18,808,440 shares for the week from 14,329,402 the previous week and compared with 18,029,090 in the like week a year ago. Wednesday's 4.88 million shares traded was the busiest day since July 12.

The autos responded to predictions of a good 1963 model year and higher production schedules for the fourth quarter. The aircrafts and electronics were helped by reports of a new multibillion dollar space booster program. In addition, many people thought Russia's success with twin orbital flights would eventually mean more U.S. spending in this field.

For the week there were 1,443 issues traded with 987 advancing, 312 declining and 144 unchanged. There were 16 new highs and 40 lows for 1962.

The list of 20 most active stocks showed 17 higher, 2 lower and 1 unchanged. Gains ranged up to 8 points with 8 amounting to 2 points or more.

The bond market, shaking the midsummer doldrums, marched up hill at a more or less steady gait. The pace of trading picked up in the middle of the week as the trend gained momentum, then fell back as the upward price movement lost some of its steam.

U.S. Treasury bond were strong on the over-the-counter market, somewhat paralleling the pattern of corporates, and finished the week Friday with their eighth consecutive daily advance.

Corporate volume for the week on the New York Stock Exchange rose to about 22.3 million par value. Turnover in the preceding week was a little over $19 million.

Grain Futures Pushed Higher By Speculation

CHICAGO (AP) — Speculative activity dominated the grain futures market last week and it pushed most commodities substantially higher on the Board of Trade.

Gains ran to more than seven cents a bushel in old crop soybeans and to more than three cents in corn. Advances of two cents or more were numerous, although wheat finished about unchanged from a week ago despite some broad shifts.

Trade was fairly active most of the time as alternate surges of buying and selling hit the pits. The government's monthly crop report appeared to have exerted little influence in the trade, except possibly soybeans. Brokers said it was slightly bullish in view of the estimate of about 703 million bushels, well below other predictions.

Wheat trade was influenced largely by prospects of congressional action on the 1963 farm program. Consideration of the measure was deferred for debate on the communications satellite measure and raised some doubt among at least a few speculators as to whether any action would be forthcoming.

Many speculators said they doubted that Congress will adjourn without at least extending the 1961-62 program another year but the possibility of a lapse and reversion to the 1958 law induced heavy liquidation at times.

Wheat was affected most because the winter crop must be planted within the next few weeks and any acreage restrictions hardly would become fully effective after that time, dealers said.

Factors in the trade for ald crop soybeans, particularly the August delivery, were linked principally to evening up commitments in the pit. Opinion varied as to whether circumstances favored the short or long side of the trade, since the government sold virtually all the supplies received in Chicago during the week.

Wheat closed ¼ cent a bushel lower to ¼ higher, September $2.07; corn 1⅝-3⅛ higher, September $1.08⅜; oats ⅛-1½ higher, September 62 cents; rye 1½-2⅝ higher, September $1.21¾-⅞; soybeans 1⅞-7¼ higher, August $2.50-50¼.

Larco Sets Mississippi Casing Run

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A casing production run is reported scheduled by Larco Drilling Co. and Brame, et al, in a Jones County wildcat, the Walker No. 1, sec. 8-7n-11w.

The venture is scheduled to be drilled to 15,000 feet. However, salt has been encountered at 14,077 feet. The wildcat is located approximately four miles east of Ellisville and 16 miles west of the recently discovered Wausau field in Wayne County.

In northwestern Amite County, Dorris Ballew, Inc., is drilling below 10,000 feet in a wildcat, the Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 18-4n-2e, a scheduled 11,500 foot test. Also in Amite, Larco Drilling Co., Best and Unius have location staked for a wildcat, the Whittington No. 1, sec. 4-2n-5e, located about three miles south of the East Fork field. The test has contract depth of 11,500 feet.

In the Maxie Gas Condensate Field of Forrest County, Humble Oil & Refining Co. is drilling below 10,000 feet in its unit SE61, sec. 18-1s-12w, first deep test to be drilled on the upthrown side of the major fault in the field. The important venture is scheduled to be drilled to 12,000 feet with the current deepest producing zone in Maxie at approximately 8,400 feet.

Drilling activity in the recently found deep oil reservoir of the Yellow Creek field in Wayne County continued. Sun Oil Company rigged up at West No. 2, sec. 13-9n-8w, a 13,000 foot try and Humble was below 10,500 feet in its West No. 2, Sec. 13-9n-8w. Sun recently completed its West No. 1, sec. 13-9n-8w, as a triple completion in zones below 11,000 feet.

In the Satartia area of Yazoo County, Larco Drilling Co. and R. W. Jefreys are below 9,700 feet and nearing the interesting stage in their wildcat, the Anderson No. 1, sec. 29-10n-4q, a 10,400 foot try. The try is located about a mile and one-half near a wildcat test drilled several years ago and abandoned.

Field drilling during the past week saw five new oilers and two gas condensate wells completed.

At McComb in Pike County, Sun Oil completed its Jackson No. 1, sec 0-4n-7e, flowing 286 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,961-72 feet.

In the Dexter field of Walthall County, Chesley Pruet Drilling Co. finaled its Reagan-Prisk No. 1, sec. 11-1n-12e, flowing 199 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 9,708-20 feet.

Plaque Awarded

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Schempf of West Monroe have returned from a trip to New Orleans where they attended a convention of Food Service Executives Association.

While at the convention they accepted a bronze plaque awarded to A & W Root Beer Company for the design of the company's paper cups. The Schempfs are Louisiana franchise holders for A & W.

Dairy Honor

WINNSBORO (Special) — J. B. Davis has been notified by the Louisiana Dairy Festival that he has been chosen "Processor of the Year." The annual festival is set Oct. 18-20 at Abbeville this year.

Davis and his brother R. H. Davis own and operate the Milk House here, established 15 years ago. It now employs 25 and serves 10 parishes. An average of three-quarter million pounds of milk are processed at the plant monthly.

The company will within the next two months occupy a new plant now under construction.

Plot To Blow Up Soviet War Memorial Fails

A policeman on duty at the memorial found the bomb, equipped with an electric fuse and timing device—set for 3 p.m.—at noon. Experts removed the fuse.

Police said the bomb, fuse and timing device were Italian-made. Thirty leaflets were found near the monument, saying "Liberta per Berlino"—Freedom for Berlin.

600-FEET PLUS DEPTHS

Deep-Water Offshore Drilling Rigs Planned

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Millions of dollars are being spent on new drilling equipment designed to push offshore oil operations into deeper water.

One project calls for a floating platform to operate at depths of 600 feet or more. Its developers say experiments indicate it will withstand hurricane force waves and winds.

Preparations for a boom in offshore operations have moved rapidly since a March lease sale brought a record $445 million for 402 tracts off Louisiana and 10 off Texas.

While the Louisiana coast dominates most of the offshore operations, there is considerable activity in California and in such widespread areas as Alaska, Venezuela, Persian Gulf, Africa, Gulf of Suez, Mexico, and Borneo.

Recent tests have been made in the North Sea off the coast of Holland. Exploration surveys are being made off the coast of England and Scotland.

The August edition of Offshore Magazine said Alaska could easily move ahead of Texas and California and rank second only to Louisiana in offshore operations. Alaska has obtained $30 million from offshore lease sales this year.

The floating platform for operations at depths of 600 feet is a project of International Marine Development Ltd., London. A buoyancy chamber beneath the platform is sunk to a depth of about 50 feet where wave action is at a minimum. A series of spaced anchors hold the platform on location.

Shell Oil Co. and the Blue Water Drilling Corp. have had an all-weather floating platform in operation off the Louisiana coast the past year. The rig now is drilling in nearly 300 feet of water, the deepest depth so far for the Gulf of Mexico.

Shell announced this week the 242-foot vessel operated successfully through winter storms with waves of 28 feet and winds of 65 miles an hour.

Shell also announced the drilling vessel is using a new method of completing offshore wells by remote control from the surface. The new technique was developed by Shell at a cost in excess of $7 million.

Shell officials said the floating platform and the remote control equipment make it possible to find and produce oil from the open sea regardless of distance from land and depth of water.

Other offshore drilling rig developments:

Offshore Co. is designing a $4 million, 320-foot floating rig that will be held in place by an anchor system that will permit the vessel to turn 360 degrees without halting drilling operations.

Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc. is building a $6½ million tripod submersible rig for drilling in depths of 175 feet.

Western Offshore Drilling & Exploration Co. is combating the severe currents and high tides of Alaska's Cook Inlet with a new 280-foot barge designed to drill to depths of 20,000 feet.

Ocean Drilling & Exploration Co. plans to complete next year at $5 million, 360-foot structure to operate on a submersible basis in shallow water and as a floating rig in deeper water.

Slim Loss Hits Cotton Futures

NEW YORK (AP) — Futures prices on the New York Cotton Exchange turned earlier last week to close with a small net loss, active contracts closing 15 to 40 cents lower for the week.

The range at the previous week's close was off 45 to up 5 cents.

Commission house support attracted by light offerings and an absence of anticipated hedge selling accounted for the initial firmness. However, much support subsequently lessened and prices sagged on a continued easing of spot and favorable crop notices.

Bearish sentiment is being reinforced by indications that domestic supply may exceed requirements by upwards of a million bales.

Exports, meanwhile, have been on the weak side. The New York Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimates that exports in the week ended last Tuesday totaled 93,000 versus 95,000 a week earlier and 211,000 the same week a year previous. For the season through mid-August, exports totaled 188,000 bales against 355,000 by the same time last year.

SAYS INDUSTRIALIST

Diversification Key To Success

DANBURY, Conn. (UPI)—Edward Baruch has built success on diversification, not of his business, but of himself.

His first job was to revive sick industries under mortgage to the Irving Trust Company in New York.

Then he went into selling insurance and annuities. Industrial sponges provided his next endeavour. He devised ways to increase the sales of sponges for the James H. Rhodes Company, of Chicago.

CHALLENGES

The marketing of pumice powder mined by Italian convicts and finding new techniques for applying aluminum oxide and silicon carbide in industry were subsequent challenges.

Baruch contributed to an invention involving the use of industrial steel wool for filtering aviation gasoline and the development of a wartime camouflage.

Diversifying his talents still further, he then went to Pepsi Cola to develop new vending machine techniques.

Finally, Baruch, now 54, went into the business that still attracts most of his attention. In 1949, he opened his own industrial firm in a garage on Long Island. The products were screw threat inserts. The company was named Heli-Coil Corporation.

From its modest beginnings, the company has grown to a major producer of more than 20 different fastening devices as well as the special tools for their rapid installation. Baruch's screw thread inserts were used to secure the reentry heat shields on the space capsules of astronauts John Glenn and Scott Carpenter.

Baruch, a native of Brooklyn, N. Y., received most of his education in Europe, where his father traveled as a businessman. He began his own business career in the United States, however, after graduating from Columbia College and its law school.

In addition to serving as president of Heli-Coil, Baruch is director and chairman of the board of the Grip Nut Company of South Whitely, Ind., a director of Jackson Steel Products of New York, a director of the Fairfield Country Trust Company of Danbury, Conn., and an officer of several civic groups.

Baruch has been married since 1934 to the former Dorothy Hurd of Cleveland. They live at Dandlewood Lake, a few miles from the Heli-Coil plant in Danbury.

AT JIM

'Hatari' Opening Scheduled Soon

The Jim Theatre announces that "Hatari!" will open soon . . with John Wayne heading the cast of stars that include Red Buttons, Elsa Martinelli, Hardy Kruger, Gerard Blain and Michele Girardon.

In addition, the film boasts scores of "new faces" — the wild game which inhabit East Africa's forest, jungle and bush.

Filmed in Tanganyika, one of the continent's most prolific game areas, "Hatari!" has an unique distinction. For the first time in any Africa - filmed movie, it presents a new and exciting aspect of big game hunting — man against animal, without the firing of a single shot.

GAME CATCHER

Wayne portrays a devil - may-care game catcher who earns his living by supplying wild game to zoos and circuses around the world. Despite the dangers from game and possible spills, Wayne insisted on performing all the hazardous catching scenes without employing a double. Trading the Western saddle with which he is so familiar, for the game -catcher's bucket - seat, during production he was always the man out front, lasso or catching noose at the ready, to snare a racing, elusive animal. The catcher's truck, which traveled at terrific speed in pursuit of the wild game, could easily have overturned when it hit any of the many potholes and protruding rocks of the rugged terrain.

AMERICAN DEBUT

Making his American film debut in "Hatari!" is Hardy Kruger, one of Europe's most important young stars, in the role of Kurt Stahl, an ex - racing driver who utilizes his skill behind the wheel to pursue the game. Another soldier - of - fortune in Wayne's catching unit is "Pockets," a former Brooklyn cab driver played by Academy Award - winner Red Buttons. Buttons drives the second catching truck used, from which he never descends because of his aversion to animals. The role provides the star with ample opportunity to display his great talent for comedy. .

SUPPLIES ROMANCE

Additional romantics are contributed by Michele Girardon, a Gallic beauty who is called a young Ingrid Bergman. Michele, in the part of "Brandy," whose father built the game farm, is loved by Buttons, Kruger and the French star, Gerald Blain, and the three men compete furiously her favors.

The personal stories of the interesting group are developed against some of the most exciting and unusual animal scenes ever captured on film. To photograph the authentic drama of the sensational rhino chase, Producer - Director Hawks had two special camera cars built by studio technicians to record "running" shots on the rugged veldt never before attempted. Also in the film are breath-taking action scenes showing the chasing and catching of giraffe, wild buffalo, zebra, wildebeeste ond congoni. Virtually every species of animal to be found in Africa appears in the film, among them the oryx, ostrich, cheetah, leopard, lion, hyena, monkey and elephant.

The musical score for "Hatari!" was created by the famed composer, Henry Mancini who has just won two "Oscars" for his music — one for the score of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and another for his ballad, "Moon River."

Curtain Call

Plays for the 1962-63 season of the Monroe Little Theatre were announced Saturday by Richard Clark, executive director. The plays include four straight productions and a musical.

Clark said the first play will be presented during mid-October and will be "The Solid Gold Cadillac," a satirical comedy which was a big hit on Broadway.

Other plays, Clark said, include "Gigi," the story of a girl coming of age; "The Best Man," Gore Vidal's political satire on the choosing of a president at a convention, and "The Miracle Worker," the story of young Helen Keller, which was a smash hit on both Broadway and in the movies.

MUSICAL

The musical will be "Annie Get Your Gun", the rollicking story of the old West with a special accent. Irving Berlin provides the music for the production, which include "The Girl That I Marry," "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Doing What Comes Naturally," "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," and "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better."

All of the productions to be presented this year, the director pointed out, are hits on Broadway and most have since been put into motion pictures.

PLANS

However, Clark stressed, the play committee for the Little Theatre can change the plays if, for unforseen reason, this becomes necessary. At the present time, Clark said, there is no plan to alter the year's program.

Tryouts for the first production, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," will be held Wednesday and Thursday, September 5 and 6, in the Little Theatre on Lamy Lane. The tryouts will begin at 7:30 p.m. each night.

The play calls for 12 persons, with two outstanding roles for women and six for men. The other four will be in the supporting category.

Plans for the sale of memberships in all categories are being handled by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. L. H. Carter. The memberships are presently available by calling Mrs. Carter at FAirfax 3-8509, or by contacting any member of the board of directors for the Little Theatre.

The various categories for membership are patrons, sustaining, regular and student.

NEW NATIONAL SHRINE

MANILA (UPI) — Corregidor Island, historic World War II battleground at the mouth of Manila Bay, will be developed into a national shrine and tourist attraction by the Philippine government, the presidential press service here announced.

Musical Film Now Showing At Paramount

During the record - setting New York stage run of "The Music Man" at one or two minutes past nine every evening, a distinctive wave of sound pushed its way out of the tightly - closed doors of the music Box Theatre and echoed down west 45th Street.

The mounted policemen on the block, garage workers across the street and the old lady who sold prayers on printed cards at the corner knew unmistakably what was up: Robert Preston had just finished the first chorus of "Seventy Six Trombones."

DEMANDING MORE

By applause, by stamping feet and by unabashed cheering, the audience was demanding more. On an average evening, three encores of the rousing march might be enough to get the show moving again. There were evenings when the extra choruses went to four or five.

Preston gave his classic portrayal of Professor Harold Hill—the combination Pied Piper and con artist called the music man—a fabulous 882 times on Broadway. The electric hold of the song on audiences elicited some 2700 encores!

Preston gives his 883rd portrayal of Hill in the resplendent Technirama - Technicolor presentation of "The Music Man." With its overpowering appeal a matter of record, Producer - Director Morton DaCosta has built what he hopes is a sufficient number of encores into the film. DaCosta had also staged the Broadway show.

CREATIVE

What is it about "Seventy Six Trombones" that brings people to a peak of soaring happiness inspired by no other show tune of recent memory? Part of the answer is the creative genius of Meredith Willson, who wrote the music and lyrics. It is a superbly stirring march tune expressing joy and hope and nostalgic delight. Part of the answer is the classic artistry of Preston, who brings to the song the exuberant drive and magic of personality that make his whole performance a stunning tour de force.

"Seventy Six Trombones" is sung by Preston as the opening gun in his boys band-selling swindle. To stir the pride of River City's citizens, he interrupts a pageant to sing and strut his golden recollection of that glorious morning in his own youth when five of the land's greatest bands came to town.

The march is then magnificently reprised as the film's finale when Preston leads the entire town — 150 bandsmen, 40 dancers, 25 principals and 500 extras — in a high - stepping parade through the streets and parks of River City. DaCosta devoted four weeks to rehearsing and filming the parade sequence with the assistance of choreographer Onna White and Tommy Walker, on loan from Disneyland where he is head of talent and entertainment.

Weaver Views Fortune Shifts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Isn't it amazing what an Ozark accent and a fake limp can do!" commented Dennis Weaver as he showed the visitor around his sprawling new house on a San Fernando Valley hilltop.

This is the house that "Gunsmoke" built. It is large (5,200 square feet) to accommodate the Weavers and their three growing sons. Swimming pool, tennis court—you name it they've got it.

He planned the layout and remarked as he studied the lush surroundings: "I feel like an antiseptic Tarzan."

Mrs. Weaver declined to play Jane, however. She forsakes the tub for the privacy of a shower.

AMAZING

"It's amazing what can happen in eight years," he reflected. "When I got word that I was getting the role of Chester, they had to reach me at the shop where I was delivering flowers. Even so, I had the nerve to hold out for an extra $100. I might add that was one-quarter of what was to be my weekly salary.

"I wasn't as brave as it might seem. I knew that Guy Williams was up for the same role—it's hard to imagine Zorro playing Chester now. He told me they had offered as high as $400, so I thought I was safe in holding out."

ALMOST ENDED

Weaver's career with "Gunsmoke" almost ended earlier this year when he served notice that he was heading over the hill. His destination: A highly-touted variety hour which he was to emcee—"TV Tonight."

What happened to it?

"We made a pilot and it was lousy," he said frankly. "It was done in too much of a hurry—just two weeks after we got the go-ahead. In our desperation, we hit on a device that simply wouldn't work. But we were stuck with it."

When the deal fizzled, "Gunsmoke" gladly took Chester back into the fold for 15 shows this season. He has no regrets over the move.

FINANCES

"I'll earn less by making 15 'Gunsmokes' instead of 36," he admitted. "But my salary is higher for those 15 this year, and I am free to do outside jobs. So I will be making just as much money and I don't have the boredom of doing little things in the 'Gunsmokes' in which I'm not featured."

So he has no concerns about keeping up the payments on his hilltop hacienda.

The role provides the star with ample opportunity to display his great talent for comedy.

SUPPLIES ROMANCE

Additional romantics are contributed by Michele Girardon, a Gallic beauty who is called a young Ingrid Bergman. Michele, in the part of "Brandy," whose father built the game farm, is loved by Buttons, Kruger and the French star, Gerald Blain, and the three men compete furiously her favors.

The personal stories of the interesting group are developed against some of the most exciting and unusual animal scenes ever captured on film. To photograph the authentic drama of the sensational rhino chase, Producer - Director Hawks had two special camera cars built by studio technicians to record "running" shots on the rugged veldt never before attempted. Also in the film are breath-taking action scenes showing the chasing and catching of giraffe, wild buffalo, zebra, wildebeeste ond congoni. Virtually every species of animal to be found in Africa appears in the film, among them the oryx, ostrich, cheetah, leopard, lion, hyena, monkey and elephant.

The musical score for "Hatari!" was created by the famed composer, Henry Mancini who has just won two "Oscars" for his music — one for the score of "Breakfast at Tiffany's" and another for his ballad, "Moon River."

Curtain Call

Plays for the 1962-63 season of the Monroe Little Theatre were announced Saturday by Richard Clark, executive director. The plays include four straight productions and a musical.

Clark said the first play will be presented during mid-October and will be "The Solid Gold Cadillac," a satirical comedy which was a big hit on Broadway.

Other plays, Clark said, include "Gigi," the story of a girl coming of age; "The Best Man," Gore Vidal's political satire on the choosing of a president at a convention, and "The Miracle Worker," the story of young Helen Keller, which was a smash hit on both Broadway and in the movies

The musical will be "Annie Get Your Gun", the rollicking story of the old West-with a special accent. Irving Berlin provides the music for the production, which include "The Girl That I Marry," "There's No Business Like Show Business," "Doing What Comes Naturally," "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," and "Anything You Can Do I Can Do Better."

All of the productions to be presented this year, the director pointed out, are hits on Broadway and most have since been put into motion pictures.

PLANS

However, Clark stressed, the play committee for the Little Theatre can change the plays if, for unforseen reason, this becomes necessary. At the present time, Clark said, there is no plan to alter the year's program.

Tryouts for the first production, "The Solid Gold Cadillac," will be held Wednesday and Thursday, September 5 and 6, in the Little Theatre on Lamy Lane. The tryouts will begin at 7:30 p. m. each night.

The play calls for 12 persons, with two outstanding roles for women and six for men. The other four will be in the supporting category.

Plans for the sale of memberships in all categories are being handled by a committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. L. H. Carter. The memberships are presently available by calling Mrs. Carter at FAirfax 3-8509, or by contacting any member of the board of directors for the Little Theatre.

The various categories for membership are patrons, sustaining, regular and student.

Plays Abroad Are Recorded

NEW NATIONAL SHRINE

MANILA (UPI) — Corregidor Island, historic World War II battleground at the mouth of Manila Bay, will be developed into a national shrine and tourist attraction by the Philippine government, the presidential press service here announced.

Musical Film Now Showing At Paramount

During the record - setting New York stage run of "The Music Man" at one or two minutes past nine every evening, a distinctive wave of sound pushed its way out of the tightly - closed doors of the music Box Theatre and echoed down west 45th Street.

The mounted policemen on the block, garage workers across the street and the old lady who sold prayers on printed cards at the corner knew unmistakably what was up: Robert Preston had just finished the first chorus of "Seventy Six Trombones."

DEMANDING MORE

By applause, by stamping feet and by unabashed cheering, the audience was demanding more. On an average evening, three encores of the rousing march might be enough to get the show moving again. There were evenings when the extra choruses went to four or five.

Preston gave his classic portrayal of Professor Harold Hill—the combination Pied Piper and con artist called the music man—a fabulous 882 times on Broadway. The electric hold of the song on audiences elicited some 2700 encores!

Preston gives his 883rd portrayal of Hill in the resplendent Technirama - Technicolor presentation of "The Music Man." With its overpowering appeal a matter of record, Producer - Director Morton DaCosta has built what he hopes is a sufficient number of encores into the film. DaCosta had also staged the Broadway show.

CREATIVE

What is it about "Seventy, Six Trombones" that brings people to a peak of soaring happiness inspired by no other show tune of recent memory? Part of the answer is the creative genius of Meredith Willson, who wrote the music and lyrics. It is a superbly stirring march tune expressing joy and hope and nostalgic delight. Part of the answer is the classic artistry of Preston, who brings to the song the exuberant drive and magic of personality that make his whole performance a stunning tour de force.

"Seventy Six Trombones" is sung by Preston as the opening gun in his boys band-selling swindle. To stir the pride of River City's citizens, he interrupts a pageant to sing and strut his golden recollection of that glorious morning in his own youth when five of the land's greatest bands came to town.

The march is then magnificently reprised as the film's finale when Preston leads the entire town — 150 bandsmen, 40 dancers, 25 principals and 500 extras — in a high - stepping parade through the streets and parks of River City. DaCosta devoted four weeks to rehearsing and filming the parade sequence with the assistance of choreographer Onna White and Tommy Walker, on loan from Disneyland where he is head of talent and entertainment.

Weaver Views Fortune Shifts

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"Isn't it amazing what an Ozark accent and a fake limp can do!" commented Dennis Weaver as he showed the visitor around his sprawling new house on a San Fernando Valley hilltop.

This is the house that "Gunsmoke" built. It is large (5,200 square feet) to accommodate the Weavers and their three growing sons. Swimming pool, tennis court—you name it they've got it.

He planned the layout and remarked as he studied the lush surroundings: "I feel like an antiseptic Tarzan."

Mrs. Weaver declined to play Jane, however. She forsakes the tub for the privacy of a shower.

AMAZING

"It's amazing what can happen in eight years," he reflected. "When I got word that I was getting the role of Chester, they had to reach me at the shop where I was delivering flowers. Even so, I had the nerve to hold out for an extra $100. I might add that was one-quarter of what was to be my weekly salary.

"I wasn't as brave as it might seem. I knew that Guy Williams was up for the same role—it's hard to imagine Zorro playing Chester now. He told me they had offered as high as $400, so I thought I was safe in holding out."

ALMOST ENDED

Weaver's career with "Gunsmoke" almost ended earlier this year when he served notice that he was heading over the hill. His destination: A highly-touted variety hour which he was to emcee—"TV Tonight."

What happened to it?

"We made a pilot and it was lousy," he said frankly. "It was done in too much of a hurry—just two weeks after we got the go-ahead. In our desperation, we hit on a device that simply wouldn't work. But we were stuck with it."

When the deal fizzled, "Gunsmoke" gladly took Chester back into the fold for 15 shows this season. He has no regrets over the move.

FINANCES

"I'll earn less by making 15 'Gunsmokes' instead of 36," he admitted. "But my salary is higher for those 15 this year, and I am free to do outside jobs. So I will be making just as much money and I don't have the boredom of doing little things in the 'Gunsmokes' in which I'm not featured.

Good Government Crusade Is Being Conducted By Grand Cane Lawmaker

By RAYMOND MCDANIEL
Written for The Associated Press

GRAND CANE, La. (AP)—Everyone talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it. And everyone talks about good government, but no one does anything about it either.

This somewhat cynical expression may have been true at one time in Louisiana, but it isn't true any more. A farmer-turned-businessman-turned-politician from Grand Cane, state Sen. B. H. (Johnny) Rogers, has changed all that. He is doing something about it, the good government part, anyway.

The "something" that Rogers is doing started out as a part-time job, confined almost completely to his legislative life. But now, it has become something akin to a Holy Crusade, an all-consuming attendance on an ambition unique in Louisiana political history.

Most campaigns are expensive in one way or another, and the good government effort by Johnny Rogers has cost him in many ways. It has cost him thousands of dollars. It has cost him time—a commodity he resents losing because every minute he spends away from his farm to him is unhappiness. ("The farther I move away from my Grand Cane farm, the more I want to come back," he said.) It has cost him something even more important, a degree of his health. For the first time in his life he is under the continual care of a physician.

And for what, ask his friends. Why?

"Well, I finally decided I must be Joe Blow," answers Rogers, explaining:

"For years I have discussed good government from all over. It's a strange thing. Everyone is in favor of it. And yet, we haven't had good government in Louisiana in my lifetime.

"I wondered about this. I wondered why we couldn't have good government if everyone wants it. And I decided the reason we don't have it is because everyone seems to want Joe Blow to bring it to him. So, I decided I must be Joe Blow."

Be he "Joe Blow" or Johnny Rogers, he has already accomplished much in his endeavor. His powerful efforts to pass a Code of Ethics bill for state officials failed to pass but succeeded in causing an uproar sufficient to shake the granite walls of the state Capitol. His anti-deadhead bill also was killed, but lived long enough to thoroughly frighten a number of department heads.

Almost suddenly he has become known as a corruption fighter. His friends have drawn closer behind him. He has become a leader, with a real, avid party of followers shouting conservatism and good government. He has become a news figure.

This is the thing that rankles his political enemies—and he has many because he has opposed many during his span of political life. They point to this concert of activity and advance their own theory.

Rogers, they say, is campaigning for governor, and is looking for publicity. It's happened before.

"But it won't happen this time," vows Rogers.

"I'll never run for governor or any other statewide office. My election to a statewide office would be mathematically impossible, you see, for I've made too many voting blocs mad at me.

SEN. B. H. ROGERS
. . . "Joe Blow"

"I've fought Shelby Jackson many times. (A major project during his legislative career has been to cut waste from the school free-lunch program.)

"I've never gotten support from Negro groups. (He is a staunch segregationist and his voting shows this.)

"I've fought many welfare practices which I considered unrealistic. (One of his first moves in the legislature was the introduction of a 22-bill packet revising welfare payouts.)

"So when you have opposed and are opposed by these blocs, you can't get elected in Louisiana. I'm enough of a realistic to know that."

Rogers said he wants only to be elected senator from Caddo-DeSoto one more time. "After that, I'll return to my farm, and this time I'll stay."

When this occurs, it will be the second retirement for the genial, 56-year-old Rogers. He tried it a number of years ago, at the age of 40, but could not stand the inactivity.

He retired, and will retire again if things go his way, to a farm four miles east of Grand Cane where he was born Oct. 5, 1906. His father and grandfather were also born there.

"The family has owned the estate, part of an original land grant, since 1836. His 86-year-old mother and his brother, Dr. M. T. Rogers, still live there. His brother, who received doctor's degree from Columbia University, was once a teacher at LSU, but "quit education in disgust because of political interference," says Sen. Rogers.

In many ways, Sen. Rogers' early life is typical of the farmboy-makes-good stories. He hopped freights and toured the wheat fields as was fairly common in those days, later went to LSU, and secured odd jobs to keep himself in school.

He cut grass in Baton Rouge, became a chauffeur and worked in service stations. It was in the service station business that he found the answer to a farmboy's poverty: Work hard, do things a little differently, and get rich.

By the time the war broke out in the early forties, Rogers had become the head of a chain of service stations, garages and parking lots. He had also been married—to Miss Josephine Mann, a Smith College graduate from Maine whom he met while she was in Baton Rouge visiting an old college roommate.

Then the war, and for Rogers a four-year tour of duty with the Air Force, being discharged as a lieutenant colonel. On his return to Baton Rouge, he sold his properties and "retired" to Grand Cane.

"I was too young. I had too much energy," he recalls.

The Rogers family, which by now included daughters JoAnn and Genie, became farmers, square dancers and active residents of the small DeSoto town.

It wasn't long before the representative from his district died, and a group of square-dancing friends asked Rogers to run. That was in 1950; in 1952 he entered the senatorial race and has run every time since then. He has never even had a runoff, winning each time in the first primary.

His political philosophy soon became apparent. As a businessman, he knew of no other way to run the state government than by businessmen's practices.

Gov. Davis brought about what Rogers considers to be one of his greatest mistakes.

"I supported Jimmie Davis," he said. "Jimmie came by my home. I went to his when he was a candidate. He convinced me he would be a conservative governor—that he would operate the state on a businesslike, efficient basis.

"But I made a mistake."

Rogers said Gov. Davis opposed him on the Code of Ethis bill and the anti-deadhead measure despite the fact that the governor was asked to make them administration bills and sponsor them himself.

"Davis fought everything that had good business behind it," said Rogers.

The Grand Cane legislator does not intend to halt his good government drive after next Tuesday's statewide television in which answers will be given to earlier statements made by the governor on television.

He plans to devote the near future to visiting all over the state, talking to citizens in an attempt to line up support.

"I want and need the help on the people," he said. "I need their criticism. I know I'm doing the right thing."

Sen. Rogers' campaign for good government, at first, wasn't particularly unusual. Others have offered a "legislature-duration" program aimed at achieving a particular change in government.

But unlike the usual, this campaign grew stronger as the legislature ended. Now followers are saying that it has become too strong to die.

"There's never been anything like it," said one close political observer. "It was a child; now it's growing into manhood."

Gaillot Leads Picketing Of Bishop's Home

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The husband of an excommunicated Roman Catholic led about one dozen pickets in front of Archbishov John P. Cody's residence here Saturday to protest the forthcoming desegregation of Catholic schools.

B. J. Gaillot Jr., led the small group while his wife, Una, stood by. She was one of three New Orleans Catholics excommunicated in April by Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel for opposition to Catholic school desgregation.

The Gaillots removed their two sons from a New Orleans Catholic school, Redemptorist High, in protest to the school desegregation move.

LEADERS REPORT

Soviet Union Wars On Jewish Culture

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Russia is trying to "extinguish" Jewish culture by liquidating the schools and other institutions which keep it alive, says a joint statement issued by seven leading U.S. Jewish organizations.

The statement declares that the 2,345,000 Jews in the Soviet Union are the targets of "a process of cultural obliteration to which no other minority in the U.S.S.R. has been subjected."

America's 3.5 million Episcopalians have been urged by their presiding bishop to pray for the success of the Catholic Church's Vatican Council.

In a statement issued this week, presiding Bishop Arthur Lichtenberger said the council is of "immense importance" to all Christians. He expressed hope that "frequent and regular prayers" for its success will be offered in every Episcopal church and "in our own personal prayers."

'I've fought Shelby Jackson many times. (A major project during his legislative career has been to cut waste from the school free-lunch program.)

"I've fought many welfare practices which I considered unrealistic. (One of his first moves in the legislature was the introduction of a 22-bill packet revising welfare payouts.)

"So when you have opposed and are opposed by these blocs, you can't get elected in Louisiana. I'm enough of a realistic to know that."

Rogers said he wants only to be elected senator from Caddo-DeSoto one more time. "After that, I'll return to my farm, and this time I'll stay."

When this occurs, it will be the second retirement for the genial, 56-year-old Rogers. He tried it a number of years ago, at the age of 40, but could not stand the inactivity.

He retired, and will retire again if things go his way, to a farm four miles east of Grand Cane where he was born Oct. 5, 1906. His father and grandfather were also born there.

"The family has owned the estate, part of an original land grant, since 1836. His 86-year-old mother and his brother, Dr. M. T. Rogers, still live there. His brother, who received doctor's degree from Columbia University, was once a teacher at LSU, but "quit education in disgust because of political interference," says Sen. Rogers.

In many ways, Sen. Rogers' early life is typical of the farmboy-makes-good stories. He hopped freights and toured the wheat fields as was fairly common in those days, later went to LSU, and secured odd jobs to keep himself in school.

He cut grass in Baton Rouge, became a chauffeur and worked in service stations. It was in the service station business that he found the answer to a farmboy's poverty: Work hard, do things a little differently, and get rich.

By the time the war broke out in the early forties, Rogers had become the head of a chain of service stations, garages and parking lots. He had also been married—to Miss Josephine Mann, a Smith College graduate from Maine whom he met while she was in Baton Rouge visiting an old college roommate.

Then the war, and for Rogers a four-year tour of duty with the Air Force, being discharged as a lieutenant colonel. On his return to Baton Rouge, he sold his properties and "retired" to Grand Cane.

"I was too young. I had too much energy," he recalls.

The Rogers family, which by now included daughters JoAnn and Genie, became farmers, square dancers and active residents of the small DeSoto town.

It wasn't long before the representative from his district died, and a group of square-dancing friends asked Rogers to run. That was in 1950; in 1952 he entered the senatorial race and has run every time since then. He has never even had a runoff, winning each time in the first primary.

His political philosophy soon became apparent. As a businessman, he knew of no other way to run the state government than by businessmen's practices.

Gov. Davis brought about what Rogers considers to be one of his greatest mistakes.

"I supported Jimmie Davis," he said. "Jimmie came by my home, I went to his when he was a candidate. He convinced me he would be a conservative governor—that he would operate the state on a businesslike, efficient basis.

"But I made a mistake."

Rogers said Gov. Davis opposed him on the Code of Ethis bill and the anti-deadhead measure despite the fact that the governor was asked to make them administration bills and sponsor them himself.

"Davis fought everything that had good business behind it," said Rogers.

The Grand Cane legislator does not intend to halt his good government drive after next Tuesday's statewide television in which answers will be given to earlier statements made by the governor on television.

He plans to devote the near future to visiting all over the state, talking to citizens in an attempt to line up support.

"I want and need the help on the people," he said. "I need their criticism. I know I'm doing the right thing."

Sen. Rogers' campaign for good government, at first, wasn't particularly unusual. Others have offered a "legislature-duration" program aimed at achieving a particular change in government.

But unlike the usual, this campaign grew stronger as the legislature ended. Now followers are saying that it has become too strong to die.

"There's never been anything like it," said one close political observer. "It was a child; now it's growing into manhood."

Gaillot Leads Picketing Of Bishop's Home

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The husband of an excommunicated Roman Catholic led about one dozen pickets in front of Archbishov John P. Cody's residence here Saturday to protest the forthcoming desegregation of Catholic schools.

B. J. Gaillot Jr., led the small group while his wife, Una, stood by. She was one of three New Orleans Catholics excommunicated in April by Archbishop Joseph F. Rummel for opposition to Catholic school desgregation.

The Gaillots removed their two sons from a New Orleans Catholic school, Redemptorist High, in protest to the school desegregation move.

Soviet Union Wars On Jewish Culture

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Russia is trying to "extinguish" Jewish culture by liquidating the schools and other institutions which keep it alive, says a joint statement issued by seven leading U.S. Jewish organizations.

The statement declares that the 2,345,000 Jews in the Soviet Union are the targets of "a process of cultural obliteration to which no other minority in the U.S.S.R. has been subjected."

America's 3.5 million Episcopalians have been urged by their presiding bishop to pray for the success of the Catholic Church's Vatican Council.

In a statement issued this week, presiding Bishop Arthur Lichtenberger said the council is of "immense importance" to all Christians. He expressed hope that "frequent and regular prayers" for its success will be offered in every Episcopal church and "in our own personal prayers."

Beatty Leads Group Of 5 Running Mile In Under Four Minutes

RIDAN NOSED OUT

Jaipur Barely Nips Ridan To Take Travers Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER

Jaipur, owned by George D. Widener, and the J. G. W. Stable's Midwestern invader, Ridan, hooked up in a head-and-head duel for the full mile and one quarter. It was a give-no-quarter battle and the fourth largest crowd in Saratoga history saw Jaipur smash the great Man o' Wars' 1920 Travers Stakes record with a time of 2 minutes 3-5 seconds. Big Red ran it in 2:01 4-5 here 42 years ago.

The clocking also equaled the fastest time ever posted at this ancient course, opened in 1864. Lucky Draw, another Widener star, set the track record of 2:01 3-5 under 121 pounds Aug. 24, 1946.

This was a two-horse scrap all the way, as Willie Shoemaker on Jaipur and Manuel Ycaza aboard Ridan fought it out down to the bitter end. Ridan and Jaipur both packed 126 pounds.

The winner paid $3.30, $2.30 and $2.20. Ridan, a 5-2 second choice, paid $2.70 and $2.60, while the third horse, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Military Plume, returned $3 as he wound up a length behind the battling leaders.

ROUT BRITISH

Americans Keep Curtis Cup Here

By FRANK PITMAN

COLORADO SPRINGS, (AP) — American women amateur golfers won five out of six single matches Saturday, completing an 8-1 rout—widest margin ever—of the British in the 12th Curtis Cup competition.

The thrashing topped a 7½ to 1½ United States triumph in 1950 and kept on this side of the Atlantic the trophy the Americans won two years ago in England. The U.S. has won the cup eight times and the British twice. The biennial competition ended in ties twice since it started in 1932.

Diane Robb Frearson, an 18-year-old beauty, saved the Britons from total defeat by crushing Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan., 8 and 7, the largest winning margin of the singles.

Jean Roberts, 19, a last-minute substitution for Britain's ailing Ann Irvin, made a gallant effort to pull out another triumph for the visitors but lost to Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., 1 up on the 18th, where Miss Roberts hit a sand trap with her approach shot. Miss Roberts, 5 down after 18, rallied on the afternoon round and evened the match on the 32nd hole.

The U.S. after blanking the British 3-0 in Friday's three scotch foursomes, ran into stiffer competition in Saturday's 36-hole singles over the 6,427-yard par 36-37 — 73 Broadmoor course, nestling in mountains 6,500 feet above sea level. None of the competitors broke par on the hilly layout featuring rolling greens and backgrounded by deceptive mountain shadows.

Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., sailed to a 6-up lead in the first 18 holes then played steady, par golf in the afternoon to conquer Sally Bonallack 6 and 5.

Mrs. Anne Quast Decker of Seattle, the U.S. champion, conquered by 5 and 4, Mrs. Marley Spearman, the British titlist, who was allowed an hour's later starting time Saturday morning because of nausea. Miss Irvin, who was replaced by Miss Roberts, also complained of an upset stomach.

Pirates Are Led Over Phillies By Mazeroski

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Mazeroski drove in three Pittsburgh runs with a home run and a sacrifice fly in leading the Pirates to a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

Tom Sturdivant, making his first start since May 5, got credit for his fifth victory against three losses. The big right-hander was relieved by Elroy Face in the eighth inning after he developed a cramp in his pitching hand.

Edges Grelle As Both Beat Old U.S. Mark

By PAT MASSEY

LONDON (AP) — Jim Beatty, the strong, little American running star who has been improving with age, ran the mile in 3 minutes 56.6 seconds in a thrilling race that saw the first five men —

The 5-foot-6, 128-pound ace of the Los Angeles Track Club spurted in the stretch to nose out teammate Jim Grelle who was only a tenth of a second slower as both bettered the American record of 3:57.6 set by Oregon's Dyrol Burleson in May, 1961.

The winning time was 2.2 seconds slower than the world record of 3:54.4 set by Peter Snell of New Zealand last January.

Britain's Stan Taylor was third in 3:58.0 followed by Bob Seamon, another Los Angeles Track Club member, in 3:58.0 and Mike Berisford of England in 3:59.2 Bill Cornell, Briton back home after studying at Southern Illinois University, was sixth in 4:01.2.

Beatty, 27, first runner to crack four minutes for the mile indoors and the world's fastest 2-miler, had hoped to break Snell's mile mark in the White City Stadium. He still thinks he can do it.

"Today's race suggests that with good conditions Istand a chance of breaking the world record. Maybe we'll try in Helsinki on Tuesday."

The race had the crowd of about 15,000 cheering wildly. It was the second time in history that five men had smashed four minutes for the mile. The only other time was in Dublin when Herb Elliott of Australia set his listed world mark of 3:54.5.

Thefirst lap was finished in 57.9 seconds, the second in 1:58.3 and the third in 2:58.8.

Grelle did the early work for Beatty. Then Beatty took charge himself at the halfway mark—a time when Snell's record was in danger.

Grelle still was tucked in behind Beatty with Seaman third and Taylor fourth in the last lap. Taylor made a surging challenge and moved up second behind Beatty. Grelle came again and for a second took over the lead. Then back again came Beatty with a burst of a finish to pass

"I was very pleased with the time for the race," Beatty said afterwards. "But I wasn't as sharp today as I might have been. My legs were pretty tired after that 3,000 meters run a couple of days ago on a wet track in France

Hennigan Sparks Oilers 20-10 Win

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The vaunted offense of the Houston Oilers stuttered tonight but three long passes and a brilliant defensive performance carried the American Football League champions to a 20-10 victory over the Boston Patriots.

Some 31,000 fans, believed to be a paid attendance record for an AFL exhibition, overflowed City Park Stadium to welcome Billy Cannon, Louisiana State's All-America in his first professional appearance in Louisiana.

But it was another Louisiana product, Northwestern State College's Charley Hennigan, whose brilliant pass receiving paced the Oilers to their third successive 1962 triumph.

After a scoreless opening period, Hennigan took passes of 36 and 23 yards from quarterback Jacky Lee to account for the bulk of the yardage as the Oilers marched 82 yards in eight plays to score. Charley Tolar, also from Northwestern State, plunged over from the one and George Blanda's conversion made it 7-0.

Following the kickoff, quarterback Tom Yewcic got the Patriots' offense into gear, but the drive bogged down and Boston settled for 3 points on a 19-yard field goal by Gino Cappelletti.

Hennigan scored Houston's second touchdown late in the second quarter on a 31-yard pass from Cannon. It was Cannon's first touchdown pass in his three-year professional career.

The only scoring after that came on field goals of 41 and 21 yards by Blanda, the first one hitting the top of the crossbar and bouncing over. Even Blanda's first appearance of the season at quarterback failed to fire the sluggish Oiler offense

Cards Sweep 2 Tilts From Hapless Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals swept a pair from New York Saturday night, beating the Mets 7-4 in the day game and extending the hapless Mets' losing string to nine with a 10-0 rout in the second half of the day-night doubleheader.

Stan Musial night ceremonies, rained out Friday night, were held before the night game with the Cardinals' outfielders receiving a number of gifts from New York fans. In addition, contributions enabled a scholarship fund to be set up at Columbia University.

Musial, 41, had one hit in four trips in the first game and walked as a pinch hitter in the nightcap.

A three-run homer by Ken Boyer and Bill White's hefty hitting enabled the Cards to come from behind for the first game victory, while the three-hit pitching of lefty Bob Gibson secured the nightcap

Musial Has 'Day' Before Cards Game

A crowd of 17,000 turned out to honor the veteran Cardinal star and he was showered with gifts including shotgun, fishing rod, transistor radio, a year's supply of coffee, a home machine shop and a portable typewriter. The last was from the New York baseball writers.

In addition, contributions from fans enabled a scholarship fund to be started at Columbia University.

"I hope," said Musial in his speech, "that some New York boy will use it to play baseball at Columbia and follow in the footsteps of other major leaguers from here like Hank Greenberg, Frank Frisch and Sandy Koufax.

Nuxhall Halts Dodger Bats On Four Hits

CINCINNANTI (AP)—With Joe Nuxhall's four-hit pitching for support, the Cincinnati Reds went on a hitting spree Saturday night that cut down Los Angeles' National League — leading Dodgers, 12-1.

For Nuxhall, who found himself in the minors earlier this year, it was one of the southpaw finest games. The Dodgers were virtually under his complete control.

The only Los Angeles maker came in the sixth when Maury Wills singled and Tom Davis, the league's RBI leader, doubled him in.

Maury Wills beat out a leadoff bunt in the first inning and Davis got a double in the fourth, but both were stranded.

After that, Nuxhall bore down, fanning five Dodgers in a row—eleven in all.

It was the third victory without a loss for the 34-year-old lefthander since the Reds bought him from San Diego at midseason.

For the Reds, it was a 15-hit exhibition of batting might, with every man in the line-up getting at least one safety.

Wally Post drove in three Redleg runs in the third with a bases-loaded double, and singled in another in the seventh.

Giants Find Road Rough; Braves Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The heavy-hitting San Francisco Giants are finding it tough to win on the road — and it may cost them the National League flag.

The stumbling Giants lost a 6-4 decision to the Milwaukee Braves Friday night, their sixth loss in seven games during the current road swing away from Friendly Candlestick Park.

And they are just over the .500 mark on the road this year, with a 30-28 record.

But while the Giants are disheartened about not being able to put a consistent victory string together, the Braves are equally heartened by the performance of rookie pitcher Claude Raymond.

After the Giants collected 1[illegible] hits, including homers by Willie Mays (No. 38) and Orlando Cepeda (No. 24), they were halted by the brilliant relief pitching of Raymond.

Since being summoned from Toronto of the International League June 28, Raymond has posted a 4-2 record and collected eight "saves" in 17 relief appearances. He has allowed only five earned runs for a fabulous ERA mark of 1.67.

Beatty Leads Group Of 5 Running Mile In Under Four Minutes

RIDAN NOSED OUT

Jaipur Barely Nips Ridan To Take Travers Stakes

By JOHN CHANDLER

Jaipur, owned by George D. Widener, and the J. G. W. Stable's Midwestern invader, Ridan, hooked up in a head-and-head duel for the full mile and one quarter. It was a give-no-quarter battle and the fourth largest crowd in Saratoga history saw Jaipur smash the great Man o' Wars' 1920 Travers Stakes record with a time of 2 minutes 3-5 seconds. Big Red ran it in 2:01 4-5 here 42 years ago.

The clocking also equaled the fastest time ever posted at this ancient course, opened in 1864. Lucky Draw, another Widener star, set the track record of 2:01 3-5 under 121 pounds Aug. 24, 1946.

This was a two-horse scrap all the way, as Willie Shoemaker on Jaipur and Manuel Ycaza aboard Ridan fought it out down to the bitter end. Ridan and Jaipur both packed 126 pounds.

The winner paid $3.30, $2.30 and $2.20. Ridan, a 5-2 second choice, paid $2.70 and $2.60, while the third horse, Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords' Military Plume, returned $3 as he wound up a length behind the battling leaders.

ROUT BRITISH

Americans Keep Curtis Cup Here

By FRANK PITMAN

COLORADO SPRINGS, (AP) — American women amateur golfers won five out of six single matches Saturday, completing an 8-1 rout—widest margin ever—of the British in the 12th Curtis Cup competition.

The thrashing topped a 7½ to 1½ United States triumph in 1950 and kept on this side of the Atlantic the trophy the Americans won two years ago in England. The U.S. has won the cup eight times and the British twice. The biennial competition ended in ties twice since it started in 1932.

Diane Robb Frearson, an 18-year-old beauty, saved the Britons from total defeat by crushing Judy Bell of Wichita, Kan., 8 and 7, the largest winning margin of the singles.

Jean Roberts, 19, a last-minute substitution for Britain's ailing Ann Irvin, made a gallant effort to pull out another triumph for the visitors but lost to Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., 1 up on the 18th, where Miss Roberts hit a sand trap with her approach shot. Miss Roberts, 5 down after 18, rallied on the afternoon round and evened the match on the 32nd hole.

The U.S. after blanking the British 3-0 in Friday's three scotch foursomes, ran into stiffer competition in Saturday's 36-hole singles over the 6,427-yard par 36-37 — 73 Broadmoor course, nestling in mountains 6,500 feet above sea level. None of the competitors broke par on the hilly layout featuring rolling greens and backgrounded by deceptive mountain shadows.

Clifford Ann Creed of Alexandria, La., sailed to a 6-up lead in the first 18 holes then played steady, par golf in the afternoon to conquer Sally Bonallack 6 and 5.

Mrs. Anne Quast Decker of Seattle, the U.S. champion, conquered by 5 and 4, Mrs. Marley Spearman, the British titlist, who was allowed an hour's later starting time Saturday morning because of nausea. Miss Irvin, who was replaced by Miss Roberts, also complained of an upset stomach.

Indian Ticket Holders Must Reclaim Soon

Holders of Northeast State season football tickets last year have until Sept. 3 to claim season ducats for the same seats, the college athletic department has announced.

The seats of last year's ticket holders will be reserved from Aug. 20, when ticket sales begin at Northeast, until Sept. 3. After Sept. 3, season tickets for these seats will go on sale to anyone.

Season tickets will sell for $5 for the three home games — Lamar Tech, Sept. 22; Northwestern, Oct. 6; and Louisiana Tech, Nov. 10. The regular admission price is $2 per game.

Pirates Are Led Over Phillies By Mazeroski

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bill Mazeroski drove in three Pittsburgh runs with a home run and a sacrifice fly in leading the Pirates to a 5-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

Tom Sturdivant, making his first start since May 5, got credit for his fifth victory against three losses. The big right-hander was relieved by Elroy Face in the eighth inning after he developed a cramp in his pitching hand.

Danna Homer Gives Monroe 6-4 Meet Win

ALEXANDRIA (Special) —Angelo Danna hit the second of two game winning homers with a man on deck in sixth inning to give the Merchants of Monroe a 6-4 victory over Baton Rouge in the State softball tournament here Saturday afternoon.

The Merchants met Manning, Moore and Maxwell of Alexandria, one of the pre - tournament favorites, at 9:30 p.m.

Danna's blast gave Monroe its opening tournament win. A Danna circuit clout was the deciding factor in that one too.

Danny Sullivan was the winning pitcher, going the route for the victory. Guy Gannaway aided the locals cause with a solo four - bagger in the fourth.

Edges Grelle As Both Beat Old U.S. Mark

By PAT MASSEY

LONDON (AP) — Jim Beatty, the strong, little American running star who has been improving with age, ran the mile in 3 minutes 56.6 seconds in a thrilling race that saw the first five men —

The 5-foot-6, 128-pound ace of the Los Angeles Track Club spurted in the stretch to nose out teammate Jim Grelle who was only a tenth of a second slower as both bettered the American record of 3:57.6 set by Oregon's Dyrol Burleson in May, 1961.

The winning time was 2.2 seconds slower than the world record of 3:54.4 set by Peter Snell of New Zealand last January.

Britain's Stan Taylor was third in 3:58.0 followed by Bob Seamon, another Los Angeles Track Club member, in 3:58.0 and Mike Berisford of England in 3:59.2 Bill Cornell, Briton back home after studying at Southern Illinois University, was sixth in 4:01.2.

Beatty, 27, first runner to crack four minutes for the mile indoors and the world's fastest 2-miler, had hoped to break Snell's mile mark in the White City Stadium. He still thinks he can do it.

"Today's race suggests that with good conditions Istand a chance of breaking the world record. Maybe we'll try in Helsinki on Tuesday."

The race had the crowd of about 15,000 cheering wildly. It was the second time in history that five men had smashed four minutes for the mile. The only other time was in Dublin when Herb Elliott of Australia set his listed world mark of 3:54.5.

Thefirst lap was finished in 57.9 seconds, the second in 1:58.3 and the third in 2:58.8.

Grelle did the early work for Beatty. Then Beatty took charge himself at the halfway mark—a time when Snell's record was in danger.

Grelle still was tucked in behind Beatty with Seaman third and Taylor fourth in the last lap. Taylor made a surging challenge and moved up second behind Beatty. Grelle came again and for a second took over the lead. Then back again came Beatty with a burst of a finish to pass

"I was very pleased with the time for the race," Beatty said afterwards. "But I wasn't as sharp today as I might have been. My legs were pretty tired after that 3,000 meters run a couple of days ago on a wet track in France.

Hennigan Sparks Oilers 20-10 Win

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The vaunted offense of the Houston Oilers stuttered tonight but three long passes and a brilliant defensive performance carried the American Football League champions to a 20-10 victory over the Boston Patriots.

Some 31,000 fans, believed to be a paid attendance record for an AFL exhibition, overflowed City Park Stadium to welcome Billy Cannon, Louisiana State's All-America in his first professional appearance in Louisiana.

But it was another Louisiana product, Northwestern State College's Charley Hennigan, whose brilliant pass receiving paced the Oilers to their third successive 1962 triumph.

After a scoreless opening period, Hennigan took passes of 36 and 23 yards from quarterback Jacky Lee to account for the bulk of the yardage as the Oilers marched 82 yards in eight plays to score. Charley Tolar, also from Northwestern State, plunged over from the one and George Blanda's conversion made it 7-0.

Following the kickoff, quarterback Tom Yewcic got the Patriots' offense into gear, but the drive bogged down and Boston settled for 3 points on a 19-yard field goal by Gino Cappelletti.

Hennigan scored Houston's second touchdown late in the second quarter on a 31-yard pass from Cannon. It was Cannon's first touchdown pass in his three-year professional career.

The only scoring after that came on field goals of 41 and 21 yards by Blanda, the first one hitting the top of the crossbar and bouncing over. Even Blanda's first appearance of the season at quarterback failed to fire the sluggish Oiler offense.

Cards Sweep 2 Tilts From Hapless Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals swept a pair from New York Saturday night, beating the Mets 7-4 in the day game and extending the hapless Mets' losing string to nine with a 10-0 rout in the second half of the day-night doubleheader.

Stan Musial night ceremonies, rained out Friday night, were held before the night game with the Cardinals' outfielders receiving a number of gifts from New York fans. In addition, contributions enabled a scholarship fund to be set up at Columbia University.

Musial, 41, had one hit in four trips in the first game and walked as a pinch hitter in the nightcap.

A three-run homer by Ken Boyer and Bill White's hefty hitting enabled the Cards to come from behind for the first game victory, while the three-hit pitching of lefty Bob Gibson secured the nightcap.

Musial Has 'Day' Before Cards Game

A crowd of 17,000 turned out to honor the veteran Cardinal star and he was showered with gifts including shotgun, fishing rod, transistor radio, a year's supply of coffee, a home machine shop and a portable typewriter. The last was from the New York baseball writers.

In addition, contributions from fans enabled a scholarship fund to be started at Columbia University.

"I hope," said Musial in his speech, "that some New York boy will use it to play baseball at Columbia and follow in the footsteps of other major leaguers from here like Hank Greenberg, Frank Frisch and Sandy Koufax.

Nuxhall Halts Dodger Bats On Four Hits

CINCINNANTI (AP)—With Joe Nuxhall's four-hit pitching for support, the Cincinnati Reds went on a hitting spree Saturday night that cut down Los Angeles' National League — leading Dodgers, 12-1.

For Nuxhall, who found himself in the minors earlier this year, it was one of the southpaw finest games. The Dodgers were virtually under his complete control.

The only Los Angeles maker came in the sixth when Maury Wills singled and Tom Davis, the league's RBI leader, doubled him in.

Maury Wills beat out a leadoff bunt in the first inning and Davis got a double in the fourth, but both were stranded.

After that, Nuxhall bore down, fanning five Dodgers in a row—eleven in all.

It was the third victory without a loss for the 34-year-old lefthander since the Reds bought him from San Diego at midseason.

For the Reds, it was a 15-hit exhibition of batting might, with every man in the line-up getting at least one safety.

Wally Post drove in three Redleg runs in the third with a bases-loaded double, and singled in another in the seventh.

Giants Find Road Rough; Braves Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The heavy-hitting San Francisco Giants are finding it tough to win on the road — and it may cost them the National League flag.

The stumbling Giants lost a 6-4 decision to the Milwaukee Braves Friday night, their sixth loss in seven games during the current road swing away from Friendly Candlestick Park.

And they are just over the .500 mark on the road this year, with a 30-28 record.

But while the Giants are disheartened about not being able to put a consistent victory string together, the Braves are equally heartened by the performance of rookie pitcher Claude Raymond.

After the Giants collected 11 hits, including homers by Willie Mays (No. 38) and Orlando Cepeda (No. 24), they were halted by the brilliant relief pitching of Raymond.

Since being summoned from Toronto of the International League June 28, Raymond has posted a 4-2 record and collected eight "saves" in 17 relief appearances. He has allowed only five earned runs for a fabulous ERA mark of 1.67.

Three Officials Elected For 6th Straight Term

Little Boys Baseball Has Joint Meeting

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Three men were returned to Little Boys Baseball national offices for their sixth consecutive year here Saturday afternoon at a joint meeting of national and state directors.

Matthew Goyak was elected president; Danny Jones, commissioner and treasurer, and Tom Linton, secretary and general counsel. All three have served in these respective capacities since Little Boys Baseball originated in 1957.

Albert Case, of Crosby, Miss., was elected vice - president to fill the vacancy of J. Newton Jones, of Natchez, Miss., who resigned his post earlier this year.

The action came in an executive session of national and state officials. The meeting was held as annual general buiness session of the organization preceding the 1962 Little Boys Baseball Dixie World Series, being held in West Monroe throughout this week.

Goyak, Jones and Linton are all of South Carolina. They will continue their duties without installation ceremonies.

At the session, May 1, 1963 was set as the deadline date for new teams entering the league. Little Boys Baseball will be known as Dixie Youth Baseball beginning Sept. 1.

During his financial report, Jones labeled the past year as one of progress and decision for the organization. The name "Dixie Youth Baseball was not accepted overnight and not without difficulties," Jones said. He was referring to obvious difficulties with the term Dixie Boys Baseball. Jones sited growth in both the organization's financial stability and league participation.

Followng a motion by Linton, $3,000 was transferred from the general fund into the scholarship fund with the provision that half the amount be awarded next June and the remaining half be invested.

Three Little Boys Baseball scholarships were awarded this season. One went to Thurman Dickey of Winnsboro, who is expected to enter Northeast Louisiana State College this fall. The remaining two went to South Carolina youths.

Marvin Smith, state and West Monroe Little Boys Baseball director, welcomed the 25 directors attending the meeting.

Discussion concerning the possibility of registering the term "Dixie Leaguers" along with the new organization name was held in some detail. Several objections were raised by Louisiana delegates because of a possible conflict in terminology with Dixie Boys Baseball.

A committee, made up of three Louisiana National Board members, with Case as chairman, was appointed by Goyak to investigate the possibilities of the proposal. Mayor W. E. Marioneaux, and J. W. McLemore Jr., of Winnsboro and George Perry of Ferriday were appointed to the committee, since Louisiana is the hub of Dixie Boys Baseball.

Goyak pointed out at the meeting that no bids for the next World Series will be accepted or considered before October this year.

Members of the national board of directors and state directors and their wives were treated to a ride on the Ouachita River last night after the joint session.

The national board is scheduled to meet again today for another four - hour session. Possible changes in by - laws and rules will be the major topic of discussion, according to Goyak.

Two boats were required to take the visiting officials up the river. One departed from the Pear Street docks and another from Highland Park Country Club's landing. The party returned around 10:30 p.m.

The wrap-up on football in the South for this year's issue of the Official Collegiate Football Record Book was written by Dan Hardesty of the Baton Rouge State-Times. A number of Hardesty's comments on the Southeastern Conference appear well worth repeating.

The Southeastern Conference last year not only had the national championship team, Alabama, but three of the five top-ranking teams in the nation. The Southeastern Conference also furnished four major bowl teams.

While Hardesty admits this may be hard to repeat in 1962, he thinks it will still be a banner year in Dixie. The strong may not be any stronger, he writes, but they do not appear to be any weaker either — and meanwhile some of the weak are getting stronger.

Dixie didn't lack in individual stars in 1961 either. The South produced six All-Americans and had several others who were second or third team choices.

One reason some of the weak may be getting stronger is new coaches. Four SEC clubs are starting their first year under new mentors: Charles McClendon at LSU, Paul Davis at Mississippi State, Tommy O'Boyle at Tulane and Charley Bradshaw at Kentucky.

Last year Alabama ranked no. 1 in the nation with a 10-0 record and defeated Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl 10-3. Both LSU and Ole Miss had 9-1 season marks. These three, plus Georgia Tech represented the conference in bowl games. Miami, a tough independent, had a 4-0 record against SEC clubs, and was the South's fifth bowl team.

Again this fall, it should be Alabama, LSU and Ole Miss in the SEC with Georgia Tech figured the only other team with a logical chance to seriously challenge.

As last year, the pivotal struggle in the race is expected to be the game in Baton Rouge between Ole Miss and Louisiana State, with the winner racing Alabama to the finish.

Four times in the past four years the Rebels have come into this game undefeated and each of the four times they have come out with the record marred. Three times they lost. Once the score was tied. In '61 LSU won 10-7.

ALBAMA

Alabama does not play either LSU or Ole Miss again this year and has one of the easiest schedules in the league. The Tide gave Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his first undefeated season last year and the Bear reciprocated with the national crown. It could happen again this year, although the odds are against it.

Gone from the 'Bama powerhouse are All-American tackle Billy Neighbors and All-SEC quarterback Pat Trammell, plus numerous others. In addition, All-America nominee Mike Fracchia was injured recently and may not play at all this fall. The star fullback's condition is still doubtful.

The Tide does have several top flight linemen coming back, including All-SEC center Lee Roy Jordon, and if they can make the holes, Bryant is almost sure to come with somebody that can run.

LOUISIANA STATE

Louisiana State, which shook off an opening game loss to Rice and won 10 straight, including a 25-7 Orange Bowl win over Colorado, has the material to do it again.

New Coach McClendon has a guard problem, but he won't find too many opponents feeling sorry for him. The Tigers are too solid elsewhere.

Once again the Tigers are going to use the three-team system which is spreading throughout the land. And LSU has the material to do it, with 25 players back who saw action in every quarter of the 1961 season.

MISSISSIPPI

Ole Miss which finally lost to somebody besides LSU, has the makings of another fine team. The Rebels were edged in the Cotton Bowl by Texas. Key to the Ole Miss system again should be quarterback. Coach Johnny Vaught has been coming up with great signal callers for ages and this year he apparently has another in Glenn Griffing. Big Jim Dunaway heads a line corps that is fast, mean and has seniors at every post but one.

Only major problem for the Rebels is a fullback, where somebody has got to take the place of All - American Billy Ray Adams. Even this isn't really too bad a situation. Vaught has two regulars who can do the job unless injuries last winter and this spring have put them too far behind the others.

GEORGIA TECH

The only other team given a chance to break into the elite circle is Georgia Tech which has 24 lettermen scattered at all positions. On paper the Jackets appear the equal of their '61 team and on the field could be better.

They should have the South's best pair of guards in Dave Watson and Rufus Guthrie and behind the leadership of the old master, Coach Bobby Dodd, could surprise.

TULANE

Of Tulane, which plays four of the five top - ranked teams in America from '61 - Alabama, Texas, LSU and Ole Miss - Hardesty has only one comment. If O'Boyle saw the schedule before he accepted the job, he should get a medal.

Northeast State College will serve as headquarters throughout the week with sub - headquarters located at the Penn Hotel. A local host has been assigned each visiting team. The "hosts" will live with the teams during the series and will aid team managers and coaches as guides. They will also aid teams in locating practice fields.

Smith and several other directors indicated Saturday that a large turnout is expected for the sixth and final series. Next year's World Series will be known as Dixie Youth Baseball World Series.

Teams participating include: St. Bernard Parish, of Arabi; Meridain, Miss.; Cayce of Columbia, S. C.; Rossville, Ga.; Central Park of Birmingham, Ala.; Myrtle Grove of Pensacola, Fla.; Rivermont of Chattanooga, Tenn., and West Monroe.

World Sports Writer

A new twist has been added to the 14th Annual Cotton States Invitational Golf Tournament, which will be held Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 at Bayou DeSiard Country Club — the championship division and first flight will play medal while the remaining flights will play match, Winnie Cole, club pro has announced.

After the first 36 holes the low 16 players and ties will remain in the championship flight and the other players in the division will form the first flight.

The other eight 16-player flights will play four 18-hole matches.

46 Gridders Out At Lake Providence

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — New head coach Pete Mangum welcomed 46 candidates for the 1962 edition of the Lake Providence Panthers this week. He expects about eight more boys before the week is over.

Optimism is running high in the Panther camp in spite of the fact that Coach Mangum reports the all important quarterback position in a very unsettled condition at this time. No less than five boys are being worked at the position in an attempt to find a replacement for Barry Richardson, who moved to Texas last spring. Joe Collins, a senior letterman, holds a slight edge with Billy Bayles, Gary Graham, Van Hicks, Jr., and Connie Overby very much in the running.

Three Officials Elected For 6th Straight Term

Little Boys Baseball Has Joint Meeting

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

Three men were returned to Little Boys Baseball national offices for their sixth consecutive year here Saturday afternoon at a joint meeting of national and state directors.

Matthew Goyak was elected president; Danny Jones, commissioner and treasurer, and Tom Linton, secretary and general counsel. All three have served in these respective capacities since Little Boys Baseball originated in 1957.

Albert Case, of Crosby, Miss., was elected vice - president to fill the vacancy of J. Newton Jones, of Natchez, Miss., who resigned his post earlier this year.

The action came in an executive session of national and state officials. The meeting was held as annual general buiness session of the organization preceding the 1962 Little Boys Baseball Dixie World Series, being held in West Monroe throughout this week.

Goyak, Jones and Linton are all of South Carolina. They will continue their duties without installation ceremonies.

At the session, May 1, 1963 was set as the deadline date for new teams entering the league. Little Boys Baseball will be known as Dixie Youth Baseball beginning Sept. 1.

During his financial report, Jones labeled the past year as one of progress and decision for the organization. The name "Dixie Youth Baseball was not accepted overnight and not without difficulties," Jones said. He was referring to obvious difficulties with the term Dixie Boys Baseball. Jones sited growth in both the organization's financial stability and league participation.

Followng a motion by Linton, $3,000 was transferred from the general fund into the scholarship fund with the provision that half the amount be awarded next June and the remaining half be invested.

Three Little Boys Baseball scholarships were awarded this season. One went to Thurman Dickey of Winnsboro, who is expected to enter Northeast Louisiana State College this fall. The remaining two went to South Carolina youths.

Marvin Smith, state and West Monroe Little Boys Baseball director, welcomed the 25 directors attending the meeting.

Discussion concerning the possibility of registering the term "Dixie Leaguers" along with the new organization name was held in some detail. Several objections were raised by Louisiana delegates because of a possible conflict in terminology with Dixie Boys Baseball.

A committee, made up of three Louisiana National Board members, with Case as chairman, was appointed by Goyak to investigate the possibilities of the proposal. Mayor W. E. Marioneaux, and J. W. McLemore Jr., of Winnsboro and George Perry of Ferriday were appointed to the committee, since Louisiana is the hub of Dixie Boys Baseball.

Goyak pointed out at the meeting that no bids for the next World Series will be accepted or considered before October this year.

Members of the national board of directors and state directors and their wives were treated to a ride on the Ouachita River last night after the joint session.

The national board is scheduled to meet again today for another four - hour session. Possible changes in by - laws and rules will be the major topic of discussion, according to Goyak.

Two boats were required to take the visiting officials up the river. One departed from the Pear Street docks and another from Highland Park Country Club's landing. The party returned around 10:30 p.m.

SEC Football

The wrap-up on football in the South for this year's issue of the Official Collegiate Football Record Book was written by Dan Hardesty of the Baton Rouge State-Times. A number of Hardesty's comments on the Southeastern Conference appear well worth repeating.

The Southeastern Conference last year not only had the national championship team, Alabama, but three of the five top-ranking teams in the nation. The Southeastern Conference also furnished four major bowl teams.

While Hardesty admits this may be hard to repeat in 1962, he thinks it will still be a banner year in Dixie. The strong may not be any stronger, he writes, but they do not appear to be any weaker either — and meanwhile some of the weak are getting stronger.

Dixie didn't lack in individual stars in 1961 either. The South produced six All-Americans and had several others who were second or third team choices.

One reason some of the weak may be getting stronger is new coaches. Four SEC clubs are starting their first year under new mentors: Charles McClendon at LSU, Paul Davis at Mississippi State, Tommy O'Boyle at Tulane and Charley Bradshaw at Kentucky.

Last year Alabama ranked no. 1 in the nation with a 10-0 record and defeated Arkansas in the Sugar Bowl 10-3. Both LSU and Ole Miss had 9-1 season marks. These three, plus Georgia Tech represented the conference in bowl games. Miami, a tough independent, had a 4-0 record against SEC clubs, and was the South's fifth bowl team.

Again this fall, it should be Alabama, LSU and Ole Miss in the SEC with Georgia Tech figured the only other team with a logical chance to seriously challenge.

As last year, the pivotal struggle in the race is expected to be the game in Baton Rouge between Ole Miss and Louisiana State, with the winner racing Alabama to the finish.

Four times in the past four years the Rebels have come into this game undefeated and each of the four times they have come out with the record marred. Three times they lost. Once the score was tied. In '61 LSU won 10-7.

ALBAMA

Alabama does not play either LSU or Ole Miss again this year and has one of the easiest schedules in the league. The Tide gave Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his first undefeated season last year and the Bear reciprocated with the national crown. It could happen again this year, although the odds are against it.

Gone from the 'Bama powerhouse are All-American tackle Billy Neighbors and All-SEC quarterback Pat Trammell, plus numerous others. In addition, All-America nominee Mike Fracchia was injured recently and may not play at all this fall. The star fullback's condition is still doubtful.

The Tide does have several top flight linemen coming back, including All-SEC center Lee Roy Jordon, and if they can make the holes, Bryant is almost sure to come with somebody that can run.

LOUISIANA STATE

Louisiana State, which shook off an opening game loss to Rice and won 10 straight, including a 25-7 Orange Bowl win over Colorado, has the material to do it again.

New Coach McClendon has a guard problem, but he won't find too many opponents feeling sorry for him. The Tigers are too solid elsewhere.

Once again the Tigers are going to use the three-team system which is spreading throughout the land. And LSU has the material to do it, with 25 players back who saw action in every quarter of the 1961 season.

MISSISSIPPI

Ole Miss which finally lost to somebody besides LSU, has the makings of another fine team. The Rebels were edged in the Cotton Bowl by Texas. Key to the Ole Miss system again should be quarterback. Coach Johnny Vaught has been coming up with great signal callers for ages and this year he apparently has another in Glenn Griffing. Big Jim Dunaway heads a line corps that is fast, mean and has seniors at every post but one.

Only major problem for the Rebels is a fullback, where somebody has got to take the place of All - American Billy Ray Adams. Even this isn't really too bad a situation. Vaught has two regulars who can do the job unless injuries last winter and this spring have put them too far behind the others.

GEORGIA TECH

The only other team given a chance to break into the elite circle is Georgia Tech which has 24 lettermen scattered at all positions. On paper the Jackets appear the equal of their '61 team and on the field could be better.

They should have the South's best pair of guards in Dave Watson and Rufus Guthrie and behind the leadership of the old master, Coach Bobby Dodd, could surprise.

TULANE

Of Tulane, which plays four of the five top - ranked teams in America from '61 - Alabama, Texas, LSU and Ole Miss - Hardesty has only one comment. If O'Boyle saw the schedule before he accepted the job, he should get a medal.

Baseball will be the primary activity in West Monroe throughout the event. The losers of Monday's games will play at 1 and 3 p.m. Tuesday while the first round winners will take the field at 6 and 8 Tuesday evening.

All teams will play in the first round. If the series narrows down to three teams remaining with one defeat, one team will draw a bye into the final game. Home teams will be determined by a flip of a coin.

First, second and third place trophies will be awarded at the tourney's completion Saturday. A sportsmanship award will also be given and the winning team will take home a special flag designating the Dixie World's Champions.

Northeast State College will serve as headquarters throughout the week with sub - headquarters located at the Penn Hotel. A local host has been assigned each visiting team. The "hosts" will live with the teams during the series and will aid team managers and coaches as guides. They will also aid teams in locating practice fields.

Smith and several other directors indicated Saturday that a large turnout is expected for the sixth and final series. Next year's World Series will be known as Dixie Youth Baseball World Series.

Teams participating include: St. Bernard Parish, of Arabi; Meridain, Miss.; Cayce of Columbia, S. C.; Rossville, Ga.; Central Park of Birmingham, Ala.; Myrtle Grove of Pensacola, Fla.; Rivermont of Chattanooga, Tenn., and West Monroe.

World Sports Writer

A new twist has been added to the 14th Annual Cotton States Invitational Golf Tournament, which will be held Aug. 31 through Sept. 3 at Bayou DeSiard Country Club — the championship division and first flight will play medal while the remaining flights will play match, Winnie Cole, club pro has announced.

The field will be limited to the first 160 acceptances, with the 32 low qualifiers of Aug. 31 making up the championship division, which will play 72 holes medal. After the first 36 holes the low 16 players and ties will remain in the championship flight and the other players in the division will form the first flight.

The other eight 16-player flights will play four 18-hole matches.

Prizes will be awarded to the low qualifying scorer, first, second and third place finishers in the championship and first flight, as well as winner, runner-up and consolation winner of the other flights.

46 Gridders Out At Lake Providence

LAKE PROVIDENCE (Special) — New head coach Pete Mangum welcomed 46 candidates for the 1962 edition of the Lake Providence Panthers this week. He expects about eight more boys before the week is over.

Optimism is running high in the Panther camp in spite of the fact that Coach Mangum reports the all important quarterback position in a very unsettled condition at this time. No less than five boys are being worked at the position in an attempt to find a replacement for Barry Richardson, who moved to Texas last spring. Joe Collins, a senior letterman, holds a slight edge with Billy Bayles, Gary Graham, Van Hicks, Jr., and Connie Overby very much in the running.

What A Season

Louisiana is getting a duck season in disguise.

The 25-day season with a bag limit of two ducks —including only one mallard, the popular choice here — as handed down by the U. S. Department of the Interior is a joke.

It's actually worse than last year when hunters had a limit of three ducks but only 19½ days.

What made the season really hard for the Louisiana duck hunter to swallow was the department's first announcement that said the bag limit would be four ducks, including two mallards.

Or at least that's what two members of the Louisiana congressional delegation said the season would be after they were notified by the Washington department.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which is an agency of the interior department, indicated some months ago that the possibility of a closed season was strong.

This was being discussed because of the poor nesting conditions in Canada — a factor that has had the waterfowl population on the downgrade for several years.

From all accounts the federal wildlife service was taken back when the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission spearheaded a resolution through the Mississippi Flyway Council recommending a 40 - day season with a four - duck limit.

The ,situation quickly changed, however, when the final decision was being made in Washington. The federal agency, as feared, got its way and so the duck hunter in the Mississippi Flyway, which includes Arkansas and Mississippi too, will have little reason to go to the expense of duck hunting this fall.

While the government hopes to continue to receive revenue from the sale of duck stamps, the season that was decided on will encourage most hunters to forget about even buying a stamp.

This means there will be less money to use toward the restogation of the waterfowl wetlands.

It could be assumed then that the only reason the government even opened the season this year was to continue the sale of stamps and perhaps keep the manufacturers happy with a token season. Duck hunting used to be big business.

The framework handed down by the department says that the last day of the season shall fall on December 30th. We haven't seen the earliest possible date, but we do hope the Louisiana commission now will take the latest possible date in setting our season. That would help some.

Another thing that has always galled the Mississippi Flyway hunt is the liberal regulations given to the other flyways. For instance, this year the Pacific Flyway is getting a 75 - day season with a bag limit of four while the Atlantic gets 50 days and two ducks.

Like the Mississippi Flyway, the Central Flyways get a 25 - day season with two ducks.

Reason for this, according to the interior department, is that these two flyways receive their ducks from the drough - ridden prairie areas of this country and Canada.

This, we can accept to a degree, but there are a lot of hunters who still don't like it.

Now that the damage is done, the duck hunter should recognize the efforts of the Louisiana commission in trying for a liberalized season, although the state people were fighting in vain.

In addition, the sportsman should demand a concentrated effort on the part of the federal government to set aside funds for a program that would offset the poor conditions in Canada.

This of course sounds foolish to the citizen who neither duck hunts nor is familiar with the industry that once went with duck hunting. Duck hunting is too much of a big business to let die without corrective measures.

Our government is pouring millions of dollars down the drain on foreign countries that could care less while a good money-making sport goes to pot in our own backyard.

Like the one - mallard season that Louisiana got, it doesn't make sense.

Like Lake Ouachita

Those of you who have been to Lake Ouachita near Hot Springs—and there are many persons from this area going there each summer — have a good idea of what the D'Arbonne Lake project near Farmerville will be like once it has been completed.

Lake Ouachita is something to behold, covering 39 miles up the Ouachita River Valley against a background of mountain scenery. You see, it's a man - made lake, like D'Arbonne will be.

While the D'Arbonne project will be a great thing for this area, it will never compare completely with Lake Ouachita, because the Arkansas lake is just that much bigger.

Constructed by the U. S. Corps
ADD Coming up Afield
of Engineers, Lake Ouachita cost in the neighborhood of $30 million, a great part of which went on the Blakely Mountain Dam, which holds water in the valley and thus forms the lake.

It took four years for the valley to fill once the Ouachita River was tapped for the water supply. And the water is crystal clear with a current that can easily sweep a swimmer away.

We are referring to Lake Ouachita because it is a model of what can be accomplished with the D'Arbonne Lake project in Northeast Louisiana.

People by the hundreds enjoy Lake Ouachita, camping in public areas on the banks of the big pond and even on islands dotted about the lake.

Besides the recreation aspect, it's a big thing economically with an electrical powerhouse producing an average yearly power output of 156,000,000 KWH.

D'Arbonne, though much smaller, can be this area's answer to Lake Ouachita, which attracts people from all over the country. The D'Arbonne will keep a lot of the home folks at home.

Little Man's Corner

It was too hot for most sportsmen, but those who sweated it out or fished by night made news afield.

Proudest little man in town was Mike Husted, who landed a four-pound bass in Phillip's Bayou. It was the first bass for Mike, age 6, who caught it with a spinning rod.

Meantime, fishing in the Ferriday area has improved. Several persons have had good luck, including Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Koch of Ferriday.

In the Jonesville area, the Catahoula Independent Sportsmen's Association is planning a big barbeque September 24, by passing the August meeting.

FIRST BASS for six-year-old Mike Husted was a nice four-pounder landed with a spinning rod in Phillip's Bayou. Mike's 10-year-old brother, Billy, a skilled bass fisherman himself, netted the fish. They're sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Husted Jr. of Monroe.

Records Fall In Women's Swim Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — Canadian Mary Stewart of Vancouver and German Wiltrud Urselmann led record assaults Saturday in the National AAU Women's Outdoor Swimming Championships.

The slim, 16-year-old Miss Stewart bettered all existing listed marks in the 100-meter butterfly with a time of 1 minute 07.6 seconds in the Portage Park 50-meter Olympic pool.

BREAST STROKE

The robust 20-year-old fraulein eclipsed the national and American record in the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:20.6. Ingrid Feuerstack, 19, of Hamburg, Germany, was second in 1:21.0. In the morning preliminaries she had bettered the records with 1:20.7.

The 100-meter butterfly national, American and world record is 1:08.2 set by Susan Doerr of Philadelphia in 1961. The 16-year-old defending champion was a disappointing fourth in 1:09.4 while Kathy Ellis, Indianapolis, took second in 1:08.4 and Carolyn Wood, Portland, Ore., third in 1:09.2.

Although Miss Stewart's feat surpassed the listed records it was not her best of the year. She registered 1:07.3 last month in Vancouver.

The official meet record in the 100-meter breaststroke is 1:22.4 by Marianne Hargreaves, Van Nuys, Calif., in 1961. The American mark is 1:22.3 by Ann Warner, Santa Clara, Calif., two years ago. The world standard is 1:18.2 by East Germany's Barbara Gobel in 1961.

Miss Urselmann's best effort, however, is 1:20.2 set last week at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and one she will submit for American recognition.

While the two German girls dominated the race, Alison Glendenning of Montreal took third with 1:22.1, followed in fourth by Alice Driscoll, Louisville, 1:22.2 and fifth by defending champion Dale Barnhard, Washngton, D.C., 1:22.2 on a judges decision.

MEDLEY TITLIST

Donna DeVarona, 15-year-old Santa Clara, Calif., phenom, erased her own national and American record in repeating as the 200-meter individual medley titlist in 2:33.3.

She nearly missed the event, oversleeping at her hotel, rushing to the pool just as judges were considering her disqualification and then getting off to a false start.

At the gun on the second start, the bobby soxer went to the front and stayed there to win by a big margin over 16-year-old Sharon Finneran of Los Angeles, who was second in 2:36.3.

Miss DeVarona set her records in winning the last year in 2:35.0. There is no world mark in the event.

Another repeater was Carolyn House, 16, of Los Angeles who set a national record of 4:45.3 in winning the 400-meter freestyle. She scrubbed out the meet mark of 4:46.9 by Chris Von Saltza of Santa Clara in 1960, but failed to surpass Chris' American and world mark of 4:44.5.

In the concurrent invitational international men's meet, Larry Schulof of Indiana University won the 200-meter butterfly in 2:13.6 with Fred Schmidt of Winnetka, Ill., making it a U.S. sweep by taking second in 2:14.9. The listed American and world record is 2:12.6 by Carl Robie, Philadelphia, last year.

1-2 PUNCH

Dick McDonough of Villanova and Steve Jackman, Minnesota, also threw a 1-2 Uncle Sam punch at the international field in the 100-meter freestyle. McDonough won in :54.6 with Jackman second in :55.7.

The winning time was only two-

National and American records toppled in the women's 400-meter freestyle relay as the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia retained its title in 4:14.8. Finishing second in the tight, thrilling race was the Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club in 4:15.0.

Taylor Winner Of Canadian Amateur Crown

LONDON, Ont. (AP)—Reg Taylor, Johannesburg, South Africa, beat veteran Tom Draper of Royal Oak, Mich., 4 and 2 Saturday and won the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship.

It was the first time in the 58-year history of the Canadian Amateur that a player other than a North American won the title. Taylor was the only non-North American qualifier.

There was some quiet needling in the match. Taylor twice requested that Draper leave the greens while the South African was putting. Draper, when putting, took his time. On the 27th hole Taylor sat on the green while Draper was lining up a putt, then sprawled on his back while waiting for the 48-year-old American to putt.

Taylor had a one-up advantage after 27 holes of the 36-hole final. He lost one hole but was three up after the 33rd. It was a see-saw affair until Taylor began to take command over the final nine.

TAKE 'IRON MAN' ROLE

Spartans Defy Trend For Unit Substitution

With some teams like Pitt, Air Force and Navy getting the fall practice jump on the rest of the field this week, attention is swinging to the gridiron where Coach Duffy Daugherty's Spartan outcasts stick out like the proverbial sore thumb.

BIG STAKES

The stakes for Michigan State are Big Ten and national prominence.

Because 14 of the 20 lettermen lost were either on the starting offensive or defensive units, Daugherty says: "We are going to get the best 11 players we have on the field at one time. Platooning is a luxury we won't be able to afford."

Among those new recruits willing to pay the price of platoons are Army — where Paul Dietzel brings the three-unit plan he popularized at Louisiana State—Colorado, North Carolina, Detroit, Richmond, Cincinnati, Kansas, Florida, Georgia and New Mexico State.

Participation has increased now that 33 players share the heavy duty instead of 22 as in the long-since outlawed unlimited substitution scheme.

Generally speaking, fans can expect still more three-unit substitution, more wide-open pro-type attacks and an increased blending of the two classic offenses—T and single wing. The intermarriage has been so complete that the old fashioned single wing has survived, in major schools, only at Tennessee, Princeton and Penn.

UCLA has significantly switched to the Green Bay Packer-T. Others tossing the single wing on the rubbish heap include Iowa State, Oregon State and Brigham Young.

PREVALENT FORMATION

The most prevalent formation of 1962 will include

From the T — Quarterback under center to exploit pass-run abilities, dives, quick openers, draws, quarterback options and man in motion—to name a few.

To offset the open-throttle attack, the defense gets a boost from the most important rules change. The kicking team may now down the ball inside the opponents' 10-yard line instead of having such action ruled an automatic touchback.

Jitterbugging and leaping linebackers notwithstanding, the basic defensive alignment will be the 5-4. Coaches want the run or pass smothered before it can develop and are gambling the masses can do it. Baylor is scrapping its 6-1 for a 6-2-3 while Colorado will try a 4-3-2.

And in the vicious circle, the tougher the jammed defenses get, the more field goals will abound.

In order to get the maximum out of his high quality personnel, Daugherty is assigning All-America Dave Behrman (253) to full-time center duty, relieving him of added tackle-guard chores. The multiple moves also send Ed Budde from guard to tackle, Mike Currie center to guard, Lonnie Sanders end to wingback and Dewey Lincoln tailback to wingback.

MANIPULATION

Texas, Washington, Air Force, Iowa State and UCLA also have undergone major personnel manipulations.

At Texas where Coach Darrell Royal appears to have launched another trend with his "flip-flop," unbalanced line version of the wing-T, a dozen moves have been made to shore up the once-beaten Longhorns of '61, including the switch of promising sophomore Gary Crain from fullback to tailback.

Jim Owens, a teammate of Royal's at Oklahoma, believes he can enhance his swing-T at Washington by sending Jim Stiger from fullback to halfback, Glen Kezer from end to center and Jake Upp from end to tackle.

Slender junior Terry Isaacson of Oak Park, Ill., who led Air Force in rushing, pass receiving and kick returns plus ranking fourth among the nation's punters last year, goes from halfback to quarterback. Nick Arishinkoff has been converted from full to half and Bruce Kohl tackle to guard.

The many changes necessitated by the abandonment of the single wing, spotlights workhorse Dave Hoppmann in his new quarterback role at Iowa State. Likewise, UCLA's Rob Smith and Ez Singleton.

Stanford's bid to bolster the middle of the line includes the dispatching of tackles C. B. Simons and Randy Vahan to center and guard, respectively.

Matt Snell plugs a major gap at Ohio State by shifting from halfback to end while the experimental assignment of ex-tackle John Minko to guard at Michigan paid off when he was proclaimed the most improved player in spring practice.

OTHER SWITCHES

These switches also bear watching: Joe Williams, Iowa, halfback to fullback; Don Brabham, Arkansas, guard to tackle; Ken Vann, Georgia, guard to tackle; Ed Beard, Tennessee, tackle to blocking back; Capt. Jule Crocker, Vanderbilt, guard to center; Tony Liscio, 235, Tulsa, tackle to center; Nick Ryder, Miami (Fla.) halfback to fullback; Ed Rutkowski, Notre Dame, quarter to left half.

Loss of eight starters including Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis, brings a change in emphasis at Syracuse plus moves including the transfer of Bill Schoonover from fullback to Davis' old left half berth, Dave Meggyesy and Bob Hnat from tackle to guard, Henry Huettner, center to guard and Len Slaby guard to tackle.

Team alignments have been alerted, too. In the wake of the dead Skyline Conference, the new Westn. Athletic Conference has sprung up with Utah, Wyoming, Brigham Young, New Mexicio, Arizona and Arizona State as members.

Washington State has been accepted into the Athletic Association of Western Universities and though the Cougars won't be able to get all five other schools on their schedule until 1969 they are only eligible for Rose Bowl competition and receipts.

New Mexico State has withdrawn from the Border loop, leaving only Texas Western, Hardin-Simmons and West Texas State agreed to remain for the present.

SHOTGUN ATTACK

Offensively, William and Mary is adopting the pros' shotgun attack, a version of which Jim Camp calls the "sling shot" at George Washington. Nebraska will employ a spread part time, TCU has a spread-T and SMU what it terms a sprint-out-T.

Special eye-catchers are the Iowa five-back flater and endover with just one tackle on the field at times and Colorado's three-end swinging-T.

While Arkansas and Oklahoma State hop on the flip-flop bandwagon and Army and Colgate scrap the Lonely End, Brigham Young is turning to a short punt variation and Wichita is adopting the "L".

New coaches Charlie Bradshaw at Kentucky and Hayden Frye of SMU have ordered their teams to run more, pass less.

What A Season

Louisiana is getting a duck season in disguise.

The 25-day season with a bag limit of two ducks —including only one mallard, the popular choice here — as handed down by the U. S. Department of the Interior is a joke.

It's actually worse than last year when hunters had a limit of three ducks but only 19½ days.

What made the season really hard for the Louisiana duck hunter to swallow was the department's first announcement that said the bag limit would be four ducks, including two mallards.

Or at least that's what two members of the Louisiana congressional delegation said the season would be after they were notified by the Washington department.

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, which is an agency of the interior department, indicated some months ago that the possibility of a closed season was strong.

This was being discussed because of the poor nesting conditions in Canada — a factor that has had the waterfowl population on the downgrade for several years.

From all accounts the federal wildlife service was taken back when the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission spearheaded a resolution through the Mississippi Flyway Council recommending a 40 - day season with a four - duck limit.

The ,situation quickly changed, however, when the final decision was being made in Washington. The federal agency, as feared, got its way and so the duck hunter in the Mississippi Flyway, which includes Arkansas and Mississippi too, will have little reason to go to the expense of duck hunting this fall.

While the government hopes to continue to receive revenue from the sale of duck stamps, the season that was decided on will encourage most hunters to forget about even buying a stamp.

This means there will be less money to use toward the restoration of the waterfowl wetlands.

It could be assumed then that the only reason the government even opened the season this year was to continue the sale of stamps and perhaps keep the manufacturers happy with a token season. Duck hunting used to be big business.

The framework handed down by the department says that the last day of the season shall fall on December 30th. We haven't seen the earliest possible date, but we do hope the Louisiana commission now will take the latest possible date in setting our season. That would help some.

Another thing that has always galled the Mississippi Flyway hunt is the liberal regulations given to the other flyways. For instance, this year the Pacific Flyway is getting a 75 - day season with a bag limit of four while the Atlantic gets 50 days and two ducks.

Like the Mississippi Flyway, the Central Flyways get a 25 - day season with two ducks.

Reason for this, according to the interior department, is that these two flyways receive their ducks from the drough - ridden prairie areas of this country and Canada.

This, we can accept to a degree, but there are a lot of hunters who still don't like it.

Now that the damage is done, the duck hunter should recognize the efforts of the Louisiana commission in trying for a liberalized season, although the state people were fighting in vain.

In addition, the sportsman should demand a concentrated effort on the part of the federal government to set aside funds for a program that would offset the poor conditions in Canada.

This of course sounds foolish to the citizen who neither duck hunts nor is familiar with the industry that once went with duck hunting. Duck hunting is too much of a big business to let die without corrective measures.

Our government is pouring millions of dollars down the drain on foreign countries that could care less while a good money-making sport goes to pot in our own backyard.

Like the one - mallard season that Louisiana got, it doesn't make sense.

Like Lake Ouachita

Those of you who have been to Lake Ouachita near Hot Springs— and there are many persons from this area going there each summer — have a good idea of what the D'Arbonne Lake project near Farmerville will be like once it has been completed.

Lake Ouachita is something to behold, covering 39 miles up the Ouachita River Valley against a background of mountain scenery. You see, it's a man - made lake, like D'Arbonne will be.

While the D'Arbonne project will be a great thing for this area, it will never compare completely with Lake Ouachita, because the Arkansas lake is just that much bigger.

Constructed by the U. S. Corps
of Engineers, Lake Ouachita cost in the neighborhood of $30 million, a great part of which went on the Blakely Mountain Dam, which holds water in the valley and thus forms the lake.

It took four years for the valley to fill once the Ouachita River was tapped for the water supply. And the water is crystal clear with a current that can easily sweep a swimmer away.

We are referring to Lake Ouachita because it is a model of what can be accomplished with the D'Arbonne Lake project in Northeast Louisiana.

People by the hundreds enjoy Lake Ouachita, camping in public areas on the banks of the big pond and even on islands dotted about the lake.

Besides the recreation aspect, it's a big thing economically with an electrical powerhouse producing an average yearly power output of 156,000,000 KWH.

D'Arbonne, though much smaller, can be this area's answer to Lake Ouachita, which attracts people from all over the country. The D'Arbonne will keep a lot of the home folks at home.

Little Man's Corner

It was too hot for most sportsmen, but those who sweated it out or fished by night made news afield.

Proudest little man in town was Mike Husted, who landed a four-pound bass in Phillip's Bayou. It was the first bass for Mike, age 6, who caught it with a spinning rod.

Meantime, fishing in the Ferriday area has improved. Several persons have had good luck, including Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Koch of Ferriday.

In the Jonesville area, the Catahoula Independent Sportsmen's Association is planning a big barbeque September 24, by passing the August meeting.

FIRST BASS for six-year-old Mike Husted was a nice four-pounder landed with a spinning rod in Phillip's Bayou. Mike's 10-year-old brother, Billy, a skilled bass fisherman himself, netted the fish. They're sons of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Husted Jr. of Monroe.

Records Fall In Women's Swim Meet

CHICAGO (AP) — Canadian Mary Stewart of Vancouver and German Wiltrud Urselmann led record assaults Saturday in the National AAU Women's Outdoor Swimming Championships.

The slim, 16-year-old Miss Stewart bettered all existing listed marks in the 100-meter butterfly with a time of 1 minute 07.6 seconds in the Portage Park 50-meter Olympic pool.

BREAST STROKE

The robust 20-year-old fraulein eclipsed the national and American record in the 100-meter breaststroke in 1:20.6. Ingrid Feuerstack, 19, of Hamburg, Germany, was second in 1:21.0. In the morning preliminaries she had bettered the records with 1:20.7.

The 100-meter butterfly national, American and world record is 1:08.2 set by Susan Doerr of Philadelphia in 1961. The 16-year-old defending champion was a disappointing fourth in 1:09.4 while Kathy Ellis, Indianapolis, took second in 1:08.4 and Carolyn Wood, Portland, Ore., third in 1:09.2.

Although Miss Stewart's feat surpassed the listed records it was not her best of the year. She registered 1:07.3 last month in Vancouver.

The official meet record in the 100-meter breaststroke is 1:22.4 by Marianne Hargreaves, Van Nuys, Calif., in 1961. The American mark is 1:22.3 by Ann Warner, Santa Clara, Calif., two years ago. The world standard is 1:18.2 by East Germany's Barbara Gobel in 1961.

Miss Urselmann's best effort, however, is 1:20.2 set last week at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and one she will submit for American recognition.

While the two German girls dominated the race, Alison Glendenning of Montreal took third with 1:22.1, followed in fourth by Alice Driscoll, Louisville, 1:22.2 and fifth by defending champion Dale Barnhard, Washngton, D.C., 1:22.2 on a judges decision.

MEDLEY TITLIST

Donna DeVarona, 15-year-old Santa Clara, Calif., phenom, erased her own national and American record in repeating as the 200-meter individual medley titlist in 2:33.3.

She nearly missed the event, oversleeping at her hotel, rushing to the pool just as judges were considering her disqualification and then getting off to a false start.

At the gun on the second start, the bobby soxer went to the front and stayed there to win by a big margin over 16-year-old Sharon Finneran of Los Angeles, who was second in 2:36.3.

Miss DeVarona set her records in winning the last year in 2:35.0. There is no world mark in the event.

Another repeater was Carolyn House, 16, of Los Angeles who set a national record of 4:45.3 in winning the 400-meter freestyle. She scrubbed out the meet mark of 4:46.9 by Chris Von Saltza of Santa Clara in 1960, but failed to surpass Chris' American and world mark of 4:44.5.

In the concurrent invitational international men's meet, Larry Schulof of Indiana University won the 200-meter butterfly in 2:13.6 with Fred Schmidt of Winnetka, Ill., making it a U.S. sweep by taking second in 2:14.9. The listed American and world record is 2:12.6 by Carl Robie, Philadelphia, last year.

1-2 PUNCH

Dick McDonough of Villanova and Steve Jackman, Minnesota, also threw a 1-2 Uncle Sam punch at the international field in the 100-meter freestyle. McDonough won in :54.6 with Jackman second in :55.7.

The winning time was only two-tenths of a second off the American mark set by Steve Clark of Santa Clara, Calif., in 1961.

National and American records toppled in the women's 400-meter freestyle relay as the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia retained its title in 4:14.8. Finishing second in the tight, thrilling race was the Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club in 4:15.0.

TAKE 'IRON MAN' ROLE

Spartans Defy Trend For Unit Substitution

With some teams like Pitt, Air Force and Navy getting the fall practice jump on the rest of the field this week, attention is swinging to the gridiron where Coach Duffy Daugherty's Spartan outcasts stick out like the proverbial sore thumb.

BIG STAKES

The stakes for Michigan State are Big Ten and national prominence.

Because 14 of the 20 lettermen lost were either on the starting offensive or defensive units, Daugherty says: "We are going to get the best 11 players we have on the field at one time. Platooning is a luxury we won't be able to afford."

Among those new recruits willing to pay the price of platoons are Army — where Paul Dietzel brings the three-unit plan he popularized at Louisiana State—Colorado, North Carolina, Detroit, Richmond, Cincinnati, Kansas, Florida, Georgia and New Mexico State.

Participation has increased now that 33 players share the heavy duty instead of 22 as in the long-since outlawed unlimited substitution scheme.

Generally speaking, fans can expect still more three-unit substitution, more wide-open pro-type attacks and an increased blending of the two classic offenses—T and single wing. The intermarriage has been so complete that the old fashioned single wing has survived, in major schools, only at Tennessee, Princeton and Penn.

UCLA has significantly switched to the Green Bay Packer-T. Others tossing the single wing on the rubbish heap include Iowa State, Oregon State and Brigham Young.

PREVALENT FORMATION

The most prevalent formation of 1962 will include:

From the T — Quarterback under center to exploit pass-run abilities, dives, quick openers, draws, quarterback options and man in motion—to name a few.

To offset the open-throttle attack, the defense gets a boost from the most important rules change. The kicking team may now down the ball inside the opponents' 10-yard line instead of having such action ruled an automatic touchback.

Jitterbugging and leaping linebackers notwithstanding, the basic defensive alignment will be the 5-4. Coaches want the run or pass smothered before it can develop and are gambling the masses can do it. Baylor is scrapping its 6-1 for a 6-2-3 while Colorado will try a 4-3-2.

And in the vicious circle, the tougher the jammed defenses get, the more field goals will abound.

In order to get the maximum out of his high quality personnel, Daugherty is assigning All-America Dave Behrman (253) to full-time center duty, relieving him of added tackle-guard chores. The multiple moves also send Ed Budde from guard to tackle, Mike Currie center to guard, Lonnie Sanders end to wingback and Dewey Lincoln tailback to wingback.

MANIPULATION

Texas, Washington, Air Force, Iowa State and UCLA also have undergone major personnel manipulations.

At Texas where Coach Darrell Royal appears to have launched another trend with his "flip-flop," unbalanced line version of the wing-T, a dozen moves have been made to shore up the once-beaten Longhorns of '61, including the switch of promising sophomore Gary Crain from fullback to tailback.

Jim Owens, a teammate of Royal's at Oklahoma, believes he can enhance his swing-T at Washington by sending Jim Stiger from fullback to halfback, Glen Kezer from end to center and Jake Upp from end to tackle.

Slender junior Terry Isaacson of Oak Park, Ill., who led Air Force in rushing, pass receiving and kick returns plus ranking fourth among the nation's punters last year, goes from halfback to quarterback. Nick Arishinkoff has been converted from full to half and Bruce Kohl tackle to guard.

The many changes necessitated by the abandonment of the single wing, spotlights workhorse Dave Hoppmann in his new quarterback role at Iowa State. Likewise, UCLA's Rob Smith and Ez Singleton.

Stanford's bid to bolster the middle of the line includes the dispatching of tackles C. B. Simmons and Randy Vahan to center and guard, respectively.

Matt Snell plugs a major gap at Ohio State by shifting from halfback to end while the experimental assignment of ex-tackle John Minko to guard at Michigan paid off when he was proclaimed the most improved player in spring practice.

OTHER SWITCHES

These switches also bear watching: Joe Williams, Iowa, halfback to fullback; Don Brabham, Arkansas, guard to tackle; Ken Vann, Georgia, guard to tackle; Ed Beard, Tennessee, tackle to blocking back; Capt. Jule Crocker, Vanderbilt, guard to center; Tony Liscio, 235, Tulsa, tackle to center; Nick Ryder, Miami (Fla.) halfback to fullback; Ed Rutkowski, Notre Dame, quarter to left half.

Loss of eight starters including Heisman Trophy winner Ernie Davis, brings a change in emphasis at Syracuse plus moves including the transfer of Bill Schoonover from fullback to Davis' old left half berth, Dave Meggyesy and Bob Hnat from tackle to guard, Henry Huettner center to guard and Len Slaby guard to tackle.

Team alignments have been alerted, too. In the wake of the dead Skyline Conference, the new Westn. Athletic Conference has sprung up with Utah, Wyoming, Brigham Young, New Mexicio, Arizona and Arizona State as members.

Washington State has been accepted into the Athletic Association of Western Universities and though the Cougars won't be able to get all five other schools on their schedule until 1969 they are only eligible for Rose Bowl competition and receipts.

New Mexico State has withdrawn from the Border loop, leaving only Texas Western, Hardin-Simmons and West Texas State agreed to remain for the present.

SHOTGUN ATTACK

Offensively, William and Mary is adopting the pros' shotgun attack, a version of which Jim Camp calls the "sling shot" at George Washington. Nebraska will employ a spread part time, TCU has a spread-T and SMU what it terms a sprint-out-T.

Special eye-catchers are the Iowa five-back flater and end-over with just one tackle on the field at times and Colorado's three-end swinging-T.

While Arkansas and Oklahoma State hop on the flip-flop bandwagon and Army and Colgate scrap the Lonely End, Brigham Young is turning to a short punt variation and Wichita is adopting the "L".

Taylor Winner Of Canadian Amateur Crown

LONDON, Ont. (AP)—Reg Taylor, Johannesburg, South Africa, beat veteran Tom Draper of Royal Oak, Mich., 4 and 2 Saturday and won the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship.

It was the first time in the 58-year history of the Canadian Amateur that a player other than a North American won the title. Taylor was the only non-North American qualifier.

There was some quiet needling in the match. Taylor twice requested that Draper leave the greens while the South African was putting. Draper, when putting, took his time. On the 27th hole Taylor sat on the green while Draper was lining up a putt, then sprawled on his back while waiting for the 48-year-old American to putt.

Taylor had a one-up advantage after 27 holes of the 36-hole final. He lost one hole but was three up after the 33rd. It was a see-saw affair until Taylor began to take command over the final nine.

Texas Solon Urges Reappraisal Of Tax-Exempt Foundations By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said Saturday tax-exempt foundations have reached "massive, undreamed-of proportions" and it is time for an "agonizing reappraisal" by Congress on how to control them.

Patman, chairman of the House Small Business Committee, issued the second part of an interim report on the committee's staff study of foundation operations, the first of its kind by any government agency. He plans to hold hearings later in the year.

In a speech prepared for delivery Monday to the House, Patman said some foundations "have assumed functions. . . wholly foreign to the object for which they were granted tax exemption and, in my opinion, at variance with the public interest."

Patman said the net worth of the 524 foundations at the end of 1960 was nearly $10 billion, 23 per cent greater than the capital funds of the nation's 50 largest commercial banks, and 26 per cent greater than invested capital of the country's 50 biggest merchandising firms.

"After the death of Edsel Ford in 1943," he said, "the Ford Foundation was used to save the Ford family from losing control of the Ford Motor Co. If not for the foundation device, they would have had to sell stock to the public long before they did in order to pay estate taxes. The foundation permitted Henry Ford's heirs to run the company for many years without the inconvenience of answering to stockholders or the Securities and Exchange Commission."

Patman added, "These foundations, which acquire a public status because of their exemption from taxes the rest of us pay, are virtually unregulated organizations on the same footing as private clubs or family companies.

"For all practical purposes, they are subject only to the authority of their own directors or trustees, who are not accountable to stockholders or to public regulatory agencies.

He said Ford Foundation Loans to foreign corporations and governments "create a somewhat bewildering paradox." He added:

"Our government brought some soldiers' families home so as to save dollars overseas (during the gold outflow crisis). Yet, the Ford Foundation exported $33 million in the year 1961. Also, in 1960 the Ford Motor Co. arranged to export $358 million to purchase minority stockholdings in British Ford which they already controlled.

"The result was that a substantial part of the dollars we saved by separating our soldiers from the families was sent back overseas by the Ford Foundation and the Ford Motor Co. and the irony is that the Ford Foundation operates on a subsidy from the taxpayers—in the form of tax exemption."

Following through on our stated intention of visiting interesting vacation spots fairly close to the Twin Cities, we spent four days in St. Louis early this week. This city, while too far away for an overnight visit, should appeal to those wishing to be away for a long weekend; or desiring to travel for only a part of their vacation, returning to spend some time in our own lovely hometown.

Sign and symbol of St. Louis is the Cardinal baseball team, and Busch stadium is first stop for any summer visitor to the city. We caught three games, in each of which the home team received a sound drubbing at the hands of the Philadelphia Phillies. In fact, the Phillies had in one game their best day at bat since 1988. But regardless of the score, baseball fans may here see big league ball in a well - kept park.

Forest Park, centrally located and beautifully clean acres, includes a golf course, skating ring, zoo, opera, art museum, bridle paths, and various other attractions . . . The art museum features rooms decorated with furniture and accessories of various periods and styles, as well as paintings, prints, art lectures. In the Jewel Box may be seen unusually lovely floral displays.

In a class by itself is the incomparable St. Louis Zoo, for decades the Jones with whom other zoos are keeping up. Bring your walking shoes for covering all this ground. In three arenas in the zoo, elephant, monkey, and lion shows are presented at several times during each day. The elephants take part in a ball game, dance the hula, play band instruments. Five lions and five tigers are in the big cat show, going through regular lion - tamer tricks as well as more difficult feats. "King Solomon," who has been performing for the same trainer for thirteen years, stars.

Also in Forest Park is the world's largest outdoor theater, home of St. Louis Municipal opera. "Muny" has presented musical comedies in the open air for more than forty summers. The lavishly staged and costumed productions feature performers from Broadway, movies or television in leading roles, with local talent comprising supporting roles, choruses, and dancing ensembles.

Last Sunday evening marked the final night of "Oklahoma!", starring Peter Palmer (Lil Abner on Broadway and in movies); and Louise O'Brien, seen on television and in night clubs. On Monday, "The Wizard of Oz" opened for a week's run. Tomorrow night begins a two weeks' presentation of "The Music Man", which will be the final production of the 1962 season.

Other spots in St. Louis are equally interesting. Along the waterfront, a park area commemorating the city as "Gateway to the West" is under construction. Focal point will be a lofty stainless steel arch. Plans are to open the area with an exposition: not quite on the scale of St. Louis's World's Fair of fifty years ago, but similar in idea.

The Old Cathedral is the only building still standing on its original site of old St. Louis. The church houses a museum in the rear, and is still open daily for workship . . . The Campbell House was a social center of the town in the nineteenth century. It is maintained as a period exhibit. . . Those interested in how things work may visit the Anheuser - Busch brewery. . . . Also maintained by the Busch family in Grant's Farm near the city, where the Anheuser - Busch horzes are kept, along with other animals.

Tied up at the foot of Locust street is the "Golden Rod Showboat", veteran of fifty years on the river. and now at home in St. Louis, where shows are presented each night . . . Sightseeing on the river is possible from the excursion steamer Admiral, a five - story aluminum vessel which makes two trips a day on the during summer months.

The National Museum of Transport contains an unrivaled collection for railway buffs. There are twenty - seven locomotives of various vintages, and assorted rolling stock, as well as a city transit display of unites representing periods from the horsecar to the motorbus.

All of the above are known outside of St. Louis, but we were agreeably surprised at the number and variety of interesting places to eat. Atmosphere contributes to the pleasure of eating out, and atmosphere is here. Take, for instance, the Nantucket Cove. A low ceiling room, lit by ship's lanterns, is filled with captains' chairs, checked cloths, fish nets, anchors, and a number of New England antiques. Live trout swim beneath the water wheel, and Maine lobsters snap in their tank. Fresh fish (guaranteed none frozen) is flown in daily from around the world.

Solid American - type beef is featured — and superbly —at Stan Musical and Biggie's restaurant. Young fans may meet The Man himself any day the Cardinals are not playing. The lobby is lined with glass cases housing Stan's many trophies and awards. And the food's good, too.

Our personal favorite was the Cheshire Inn, a stone and half-timbered building copied from an old English inn. The Lion's Den taproom has low ceiling; the main dining room vaults to the roof. Walls throughout are covered with antique swords, banners, maces, truncheons, gauntlets, breastplates, coats of arms. On Sundays, brunch is served from a lavish buffet, which includes traditional juices, meats and eggs, along with pineapple fritters, biscuits with creamed chicken, pancakes with assorted toppings, and a variety of hot breads . . . For dinner, try sole, which arrived from Dover just in time to be smothered with butter and almonds.

Gay of an evening is Gaslight Square, a district which began as a recreation of St. Louis' riverboat era, and now includes establishments reflecting worldwide influences Examples include Smokey Joe's Grecian Terrace; Silver Dollar (Old West); 2 cents Plain (New York 1880 delicatessen); Butterscotch Lounge twist palace.

Meet me in St. Louis, Louis.
Meet me at the Fair.
Don't tell me the lights are shining
Any place but there.
We will dance the Hoochee Koochee;
I'll be your Tootsie Wootsie.
Meet me in St. Louis, Louis.
Meet me at the Fair.

Candlelight Vows Unite Miss Riser, Mr. Wright

Miss Elizabeth Ann Riser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dalton Riser of Ruston, became the bride of Patrick Henry Wright Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Henry Wright of Shreveport, on Saturday, August 11 at 6 p.m. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold A. Shirley in Temple Baptist Church at Ruston.

Baskets of white gladioli, stock, pompons and greenery, alternated with spiral candelabra holding white candles formed a setting for the nuptials. Myriad tapers and palm trees were used in the background and ivy and candelabra were used on the chancel rail with white bows marking family pews.

Mrs. Gray Allison, organist, accompanied Nick Medica who sang "For You Alone," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer," and played appropriate nuptial music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of imported silk organza was fashioned on princess lines with sweetheart neckline and brief sleeves. Appliques of reembroidered Alencon lace with iridescent sequins and seed pearls embellished the fitted bodice and were repeated on the sides and back of the voluminous skirt which swept to a chapel train. A tiara of seed pearls and sequins held her veil of illusion. She wore long white gloves and carried a bouquet of white orchids, surrounded with stock blossoms and fleur d'amour.

by Denise

Following through on our stated intention of visiting interesting vacation spots fairly close to the Twin Cities, we spent four days in St. Louis early this week. This city, while too far away for an overnight visit, should appeal to those wishing to be away for a long weekend; or desiring to travel for only a part of their vacation, returning to spend some time in our own lovely hometown.

Sign and symbol of St. Louis is the Cardinal baseball team, and Busch stadium is first stop for any summer visitor to the city. We caught three games, in each of which the home team received a sound drubbing at the hands of the Philadelphia Phillies. In fact, the Phillies had in one game their best day at bat since 1958. But regardless of the score, baseball fans may here see big league ball in a well - kept park.

Forest Park, centrally located and beautifully clean acres, includes a golf course, skating ring, zoo, opera, art museum, bridle paths, and various other attractions . . . The art museum features rooms decorated with furniture and accessories of various periods and styles, as well as paintings, prints, art lectures. In the Jewel Box may be seen unusually lovely floral displays.

In a class by itself is the incomparable St. Louis Zoo, for decades the Jones with whom other zoos are keeping up. Bring your walking shoes for covering all this ground. In three arenas in the zoo, elephant, monkey, and lion shows are presented at several times during each day. The elephants take part in a ball game, dance the hula, play band instruments. Five lions and five tigers are in the big cat show, going through regular lion - tamer tricks as well as more difficult feats. "King Solomon," who has been performing for the same trainer for thirteen years, stars.

Also in Forest Park is the world's largest outdoor theater, home of St. Louis Municipal opera. "Muny" has presented musical comedies in the open air for more than forty summers. The lavishly staged and costumed productions feature performers from Broadway, movies or television in leading roles, with local talent comprising supporting roles, choruses, and dancing ensembles.

Last Sunday evening marked the final night of "Oklahoma!", starring Peter Palmer (Lil Abner on Broadway and in movies); and Louise O'Brien, seen on television and in night clubs. On Monday, "The Wizard of Oz" opened for a week's run. Tomorrow night begins a two weeks' presentation of "The Music Man", which will be the final production of the 1962 season.

Other spots in St. Louis are equally interesting. Along the waterfront, a park area commemorating the city as "Gateway to the West" is under construction. Focal point will be a lofty stainless steel arch. Plans are to open the area with an exposition: not quite on the scale of St. Louis's World's Fair of fifty years ago, but similar in idea.

The Old Cathedral is the only building still standing on its original site of old St. Louis. The church houses a museum in the rear, and is still open daily for workship . . . The Campbell House was a social center of the town in the nineteenth century. It is maintained as a period exhibit. . . Those interested in how things work may visit the Anheuser - Busch brewery. . . . Also maintained by the Busch family in Grant's Farm near the city, where the Anheuser - Busch horses are kept, along with other animals.

Tied up at the foot of Locust street is the "Golden Rod Showboat", veteran of fifty years on the river, and now at home in St. Louis, where shows are presented each night . . . Sightseeing on the river is possible from the excursion steamer Admiral, a five - story aluminum vessel which makes two trips a day on the during summer months.

The National Museum of Transport contains an unrivaled collection for railway buffs. There are twenty - seven locomotives of various vintages, and assorted rolling stock, as well as a city transit display of unites representing periods from the horsecar to the motorbus.

All of the above are known outside of St. Louis, but we were agreeably surprised at the number and variety of interesting places to eat. Atmosphere contributes to the pleasure of eating out, and atmosphere is here. Take, for instance, the Nantucket Cove. A low ceiling room, lit by ship's lanterns, is filled with captains' chairs, checked cloths, fish nets, anchors, and a number of New England antiques. Live trout swim beneath the water wheel, and Maine lobsters snap in their tank. Fresh fish (guaranteed none frozen) is flown in daily from around the world.

Solid American - type beef is featured — and superbly —at Stan Musical and Biggie's restaurant. Young fans may meet The Man himself any day the Cardinals are not playing. The lobby is lined with glass cases housing Stan's many trophies and awards. And the food's good, too.

Our personal favorite was the Cheshire Inn, a stone and half-timbered building copied from an old English inn. The Lion's Den taproom has low ceiling; the main dining room vaults to the roof. Walls throughout are covered with antique swords, banners, maces, truncheons, gauntlets, breastplates, coats of arms. On Sundays, brunch is served from a lavish buffet, which includes traditional juices, meats and eggs, along with pineapple fritters, biscuits with creamed chicken, pancakes with assorted toppings, and a variety of hot breads . . . For dinner, try sole, which arrived from Dover just in time to be smothered with butter and almonds.

Gay of an evening is Gaslight Square, a district which began as a recreation of St. Louis' riverboat era, and now includes establishments reflecting worldwide influences Examples include Smokey Joe's Grecian Terrace; Silver Dollar (Old West); 2 cents Plain (New York 1880 delicatessen); Butterscotch Lounge twist palace.

Rapidly establishing a nationwide reputation is "Three Fountains, outstanding French restaurant in Gaslight Square. This elegant spot is furnished with fixtures and furniture taken from old St. Louis houses, and is an antique lovers' delight.

Our poem today is, naturally, "Meet Me In St. Louis". This, theme song of the World's Fair which marked the Louisiana Purchase Centennial, is still played daily during seventh inning stretch at Busch stadium.

Meet me in St. Louis, Louis.
Meet me at the Fair.
Don't tell me the lights are shining
Any place but there.
We will dance the Hoochee Koochee;
I'll be your Tootsie Wootsie.
Meet me in St. Louis, Louis.
Meet me at the Fair.

MRS. PATRICK HENRY WRIGHT JR.

Candlelight Vows Unite Miss Riser, Mr. Wright

Miss Elizabeth Ann Riser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Dalton Riser of Ruston, became the bride of Patrick Henry Wright Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Henry Wright of Shreveport, on Saturday, August 11 at 6 p.m. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold A. Shirley in Temple Baptist Church at Ruston.

Baskets of white gladioli, stock, pompons and greenery, alternated with spiral candelabra holding white candles formed a setting for the nuptials. Myriad tapers and palm trees were used in the background and ivy and candelabra were used on the chancel rail with white bows marking family pews.

Mrs. Gray Allison, organist, accompanied Nick Medica who sang "For You Alone," "Because," and "The Lord's Prayer," and played appropriate nuptial music.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown of imported silk organza was fashioned on princess lines with sweetheart neckline and brief sleeves. Appliques of reembroidered Alencon lace with iridescent sequins and seed pearls embellished the fitted bodice and were repeated on the sides and back of the voluminous skirt which swept to a chapel train. A tiara of seed pearls and sequins held her veil of illusion. She wore long white gloves and carried a bouquet of white orchids, surrounded with stock blossoms and fleur d'amour.

Mrs. Wiley W. Hilburn Jr., Shreveport, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of shell pink silk organza with fitted bodice, scoop neckline and cap sleeves. The full skirt was shirred to an azalea pink crushed cummerbund with the deeper color repeated in flowing panels attached to a self flower at the low back. An azalea pink coif hat of organza and tulle and matching slippers completed her costume and she carried a cascade bouquet of rose pink carnations.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Clowe Wright, Shreveport, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Karen King, Miss Anita Frances Shadow, Ruston; Miss Betty May Andrews, Shreveport, and Miss Kathy Bennette Riser, junior bridesmaid, sister of the bride.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arranging Originality

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

By MRS. LESLIE CLARK
Guest Writer

Mrs. John P. Lewis, flower show judge and teacher, presented the Garden Center and TV show on Wednesday. Her subject was, "Line in Flower Arranging." Mrs. Lewis proved that it is possible to make common place flowers and containers into flower arrangements that have genuine originality.

The vertical line, the aspiring or uplifting line, was her first interpretation. This line expresses strength, serenity and dignity. She used liatris, a roadside material of a light value of red violet in color, for the predominant line. Shorter placements were added for depth and variety. Aceranthus and celosia, cockscomb variety, in a darker value of the same color, formed the center of interest. The container was an old Aladdin lamp, shell pink in color, used in Mrs. Lewis' home when she was a child. It was the perfect compliment to the arrangement.

SECOND ARRANGEMENT

This innocent container caused a stampede to the Garden Center, Wednesday after the show. Mrs. Lewis' method for making the container, which is nice looking and inexpensive when a disposable one is needed, follows. Cut top of bottle where grooved surface stops and insert top in center of bottle. This can be sealed with melted parafin and mechanics added. If the color doesn't suit your needs it can be painted, and is nice for your hospital flowers — no bother of getting it back.

SUMAC USED

Sumac, another roadside material, and one which dries beautifully, was used to form a modified crescent line. Pomegranates and celosia leaves, which have some of the same coloring, were grouped in the focal area. This design, Mrs. Lewis termed line and mass. A pewter washed compote container, well suited in color and texture for the ragged and sturdy plant material, gave a strikingly dramatic effect to the arrangement.

In her fourth arrangement Mrs. Lewis used pedalanthus, a material with a pattern of growth that lends itself to most any line. Her line for this design was the diagonal, a pure line, and not always easy. The center of interest was made of datura seed pods and variegated ivy. Datura is better known as angel trumpet or jimpson weed. The container was a glass bottle sprayed black. This arrangement was indeed "vibrant."

The fifth design, horizontal and restful in line, was a mass of yellow marigold aucuba leaves, variegated euonymus, and fruit of the flowering quince. Mrs. Lewis called attention to the importance of careful transition in making the horizontal line arrangement to avoid static. Just to see this one was relaxing. Again, an old lamp sprayed copper, was the container.

To you, Mrs. Lewis, our own Serena, many thanks. You are truly one of those garden club members who have brought the art of American Flower Arrangement to its present high standard.

BLOSSOMS FADE

The last blossom has faded from my lycoris squamigera. I feel a little sad every time this happens. The first time I saw this exquisite flower was years ago when driving through the Ozarks. It seemed every farm yard had a clump of these mauve-pink flowers shooting straight up from the ground. Some yards were scraped quite bare, too. No one could tell me the name. It piqued my curiosity and after some effort, I became the possessor of one, then three, then more bulbs. After some research I learned that it is sometimes listed as amaryllis halli. The name Lycoris refers to some unknown Greek lady. The species squamigera was introduced to American gardens from China by Dr. G. R. Hall, a New England physician who spent considerable time collecting plants in China and Japan. The dainty pink trumpet flowers are highly regarded by the Chinese. Several other species are included in the genus, among them Lycoris sanguinea, with reddish orange flowers. Plant them in early fall, four inches deep. They like a permanent place.

CONTRIBUTED

China and Japan have contributed richly to our gardens. There is no better proof than the hardy lilies. There are so many lovely and magnificent ones. Why don't more of us in this area grow them? They are so easily grown, too. They like rich loam, nearly always free from lime, and require rapid and perfect drainage. They do best in light shade and need a deep mulch or ground cover. Anyone interested can find valuable information in the following books: "Lilies, Their culture and Management," by Woodcock and Coutts, "Mrs. Fox's Garden Cinderellas," and Wm. N. Craig's "Lilies and Their Culture in North America."

FALL BULBS

The fall bulbs will soon be coming in and you'll reap a heap of joy by planting a few this month such as colchicums, which aren't particular where you put them, and sternbergia — autumn daffodil — good for borders and rock gardens and blooms golden yellow in September. Native to several Mediterranean countries, it was known in English gardens before America was settled. Tradition has it that an early Virginia governor grew it in his garden in Williamsburg.

Summer annuals will bloom much longer if you give them a small amount of fertilizer every week or two. It is important to feed chrysanthemums every two weeks until the buds show color. Cottonseed meal is good for this. Sweet peas planted now and early September will give Christmas blossoms. Fowers are for happiness, why not plant some zinnias, sweet alysum, celosia and pansies now. If you are a pepper fancier, my husband has 23 different varieties — hot ones— a white tomato too — its a hobby. Maurine Beasley of Bastrop dropped by the Garden Center with the correct name for the money plant, sometimes referred to as the honesty plant. The botanical name — Lunaria Biennis. Mrs. Tolar is living it up down Florida way. Happy beachcombing Louise! Don't forget Home and Garden Week, LSU, Baton Rouge, Aug. 20-23. Judges Luncheon, 21st. This week on our TV show, Harvey Paige will tell us how to grow bonsai.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Lavender And Mauve

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Southern landscapes need not be dull after the great show of crape myrtles is over in middle of late summer. We seem to pass into a lavender and mauve period in July and August, with purple phloxes, liriope edgings, purple altheas and many other violet to lavender flowers. Too much of these colors is apt to become depressing, but the addition of white lightens them and makes them truly beautiful.

There are plenty of good, easy-to-grow white shrubs and flowers. Some of the best phlox varieties are white. There is the white cone flower that can take the worst heat of late summer without turning a hair. (Actually, it is covered with rough, hair-like protection from the heat). White gladiolas are plentiful and easy.

The secret is to plant only the smallest corms in June to be sure they do not bloom before August. There are white forms of almost all the annuals like zinnias and petunias, and we seldom see them, but there are, of course, white dahlias.

WHITE SHRUBS

The white shrubs superb for late summer are, of course, altheas and at least two kinds of big hydrangeas. Almost every gardener knows what "P.G." hydrangeas are: "Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora of course," they say. The huge white trusses of this tough oldtimer look like so many gigantic vanilla ice cream cones hanging upside down. After a time, they turn pink and are just as beautiful in that phase.

There is another hydrangea that was selected from the same wild shrub from Japan and China. This form might be known as "P.F" because it was named H. paniculata floribunda. The pointed bunches of flowers are not so jammed together as those of "P.G." but are more gracefully spaced apart on the shrub and have a much lighter and more airy appearance. This shrub is well distributed about gardens and yards in the south along with the ubiquitous "P.G.s."

SHOWY

These late hydrangeas can be allowed to grow up into enormous masses of white which are gorgeously effective in late summer, or they can be kept down to much smaller sizes where the space does not allow for giant shrubs. When the shrubs are cut back each year and fed with liquid fertilizers in early summer, the panickles of flowers are unbelievably showy.

The showy flowers in the panickles of hydrangeas are really sterile blossoms which do not make seeds at all. Perhaps they are there to attract insects to the very un-showy true flowers amongst them. At any rate, they make the shrubs the glory of our yards and gardens in July, August and September. Perhaps it is just as well that the sterile little flowers of hydrangeas lack much fragrance. Common as they are, we might be stifled by them.

There is another shrub that we run into frequently in some southern communities which does have a fragrance. This is the harlequin glory-bower (clerodendron trichotomum) which we have written frequently in the column. The huge panicles of spicy flowers are followed by cerise bracts with blue berries in September. Get a root from your neighbor and enjoy real fragrance in the evenings.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

After more than a quarter century of shooting vacation pictures, my nomination for the tourist attraction which is most photography - minded and helpful to camera fans is Florida's Cypress Gardens.

Located in that state's center area, heart of its citrus belt, it is a tropical wonderland which specializes in exciting daily water ski shows all year round.

PHOTOG'S PARADISE

It has been called a photographer's paradise because of the magnificient masses of rare and colorful flowers along its winding waterways, its palm - fringed lagoons and man - made tropical islands, its lovely models in crinoline hoop skirts ready to add the flavor of the Old South to the scene or to join the photographer's family for a personal touch.

But what really makes it a paradise for the visitor with a camera is the spirit in which he is welcomed, encouraged and aided.

Two special viewing stands are put aside for camera fans only. One is used in the morning light and the other is better in the afternoon. They present the best angle for shooting the fast-moving water show under expert guidance. A special announcer is on hand to call the shots on proper exposure and the key moments for the best action.

GIVES READINGS

The announcer, checking his light meter constantly, calls out accurate exposure readings for all popular types of films in color and black - and - white for still and for movie cameras. When changes in the illumination take place, the fans are kept posted and are told to open up or to close down their lenses a half stop or a full stop as the case might be.

From past experience, ever effort is made to spare the photographers the frustration of running out of film during the proceedings. The action has been timed to fill a full role of 8mm movie or a 20 - exposure roll of 35mm film. This is announced beforehand so the fans can get off to a fresh start. They are advised when the action is too far away or going away from the camera and cued precisely when to start the movies or shoot the stills so as to capture the most thrilling stunts at their peak.

Under one photo stand, there are several darkrooms to load or change films safely. There is personnel present to load cameras properly for beginners or to investigate camera trouble. And, of course, all types of films are available on the grounds.

After each water show, the camera fans are invited to shoot close - ups of the pretty aquamaids and the ski stars and are again given proper exposure readings for all types of films and cameras.

Sen. Symington Recuperating After Surgery

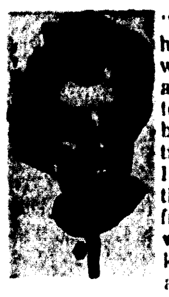
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., underwent a hernia operation Saturday and later was reported in satisfactory condition.

The Missouri senator is expected to remain in the hospital for two to three weeks and will recuperate outside the hospital for another week or 10 days before returning to duty.

The Senate Stockpile subcommittee of which he is chairman probably will hold no hearings pending his return. Staff investigators, however, are expected to conduct further inquiries into the nickel stockpiling contract between the government and the M. A. Hanna Co.

Former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, honorary chairman of the Hanna company, defended the contract Thursday. He was prepared to resume his testimony Friday when Symington abruptly halted the hearings. He accused Humphrey of insulting the Senate in his claims to newsmen that the inquiry is a politically motivated attempt to strike at former President Dwight D. Eisenhower through Humphrey.

SEW SIMPLE
By Eunice Farmer



"Dear Eunice: "My husband has lost a lot of weight recently and I would like to save money by taking in his trousers myself. I have to take them in about five inches in the waist, but don't know how to go about it. Help!" Mrs. V.E.G.

Dear Mrs. V.E.G.:

I'm afraid that five inches is almost too much of an alternation to be called "easy." Any change in the waist measurement is usually taken in at the center back seam. A change of five inches would bring the two back pockets too close together. Probably the only thing to do is take out two or three inches in the waist line and then take the balance in at the side seams, which would necessitate re-making the pockets. Actually, this is a job for a tailor unless you have a world of patience and knowledge.

REVERSE TRIM

The best idea from the mail each week is awarded a Tailor Trix pressing board. This week the award goes to Mrs. Earl Lehman, Upsilanti, Mich., who says,

"When the reverse side of printed material is plain, it lends itself nicely for trimming. You can use it for bias bindings, corded piping and also for covered buttons and belts. This solves many a color problem, especially those hard to match colors. It also saves money because you can make your own trim."

ENDS SHINE

"Dear Eunice:

"The other day as I was doing some finishing pressing on a new WOOL suit, the fabric had a definite shine, even though I carefully used a press cloth. I thought your readers would like to know that I rubbed this spot with a little "white vinegar" and the shine disappeared. I was telling my neighbor about this and she said that carbonated water would have had the same results." MRS. E.S.

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"I would like to know how to use a dress form for dresses that do not buttton up the front. Once the form is the correct measurements, it is not flexible as the human form is flexible, so as a result, I cannot get dresses over the shoulders." MISS C.S.

DRESS FORM

Dear Miss C.S.:

I have had many inquiries about the advantage of a dress form. I personally feel that they are unnecessary if you make the correct pattern changes according to measurements. You have discovered the handicaps, namely the fact that they are not flexible. In order to use them you must leave the side seam open all the way to the underarm, so that the dress can be slipped over the form. Actually, forms are much more of an aid when used in fitting jackets and coats where the collar, sleeves and length are so hard to check on yourself.

Please send your suggestions to Sew Simple. Time to think about Fall Sewing, there should be many, many new ideas to share.

INSULATION TIPS

Homes Are Classed As 'Noisiest Ever'

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — As a homeowner you probably put up a pretty good defense against dirt, sun, wind, rain, heat, cold, pollen and burglars — but what about noise?

Homes today are probably the noisiest ever. We have a great number of appliances that entertain and save us work, but they do make noise. Wall, floor and ceiling and big glass surfaces reflect and intensify noise.

SUGGESTIONS

You can stop most noise by throttling television, radio, doorbell, dog and children, then plugging your ears to achieve soundless splendor. But if you don't want to eliminate the sounds of life, just control them, the Insulation Board Institute has some suggestions.

The general idea is to soften all sound-reflecting surfaces, concentrating first in rooms where the family congregates most — living and dining rooms, kitchen, family and recreation rooms.

Tile Absorbs Sound

One of the most effective silencers is acoustical ceiling tile which can convert the ceiling from a reflector to an absorber of as much as 70 per cent of the excess noise that hits it. The tile comes in a great variety of finishes and patterns and it is an easy do-it-yourself project for the handyman who can fasten the tile with mastic, staple or nail it to wood furring strips or slide it into metal channels.

The institute advises also:

—Pay attention to hard surfaces other than the ceiling. Large expanses of glass, like picture windows, or hard wall surfaces reflect noise. Put up curtains or drapes.

—Use carpeting to silence floor sounds. Even a couple of throw rugs in the family room or children's rooms will dull many sharp sounds. So will carpeting or rubber treads on stairs.

Find Noise Source

Several times during the course of the day, stop and listen; try to isolate the excess sound you hear, trace it to the source and see what can be done to reduce the noise. For instance:

—Make sure all appliances are well lubricated. Heavier appliances, like the refrigerator should be mounted on resilient furniture glides or rubber pads.

U.S. Court To Evaluate Drugs Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former secretary of the American Pharmaceutical Association advocated Saturday establishment of a federal "supreme court of drug evaluation" to make final decisions on the safety and efficacy of new drugs.

He said in an interview supplementing his column that such a court should be given powers not now possessed by any government agency in the drug field.

Its members would be recognized authorities not interested in moving from academic or government to industry, or vice versa. They would have high salaries and long tenure.

"It could act as an auxiliary to the Public Health Service and the Food & Drug Administration, so that both agencies could call on the court," Fischelis added.

He said that in the past, federal agencies have sometimes called upon the National Academy of Sciences for guidance on drug-evaluating matters, but he said a "supreme court" appointed by the government "would be set up for continuous action."

In his magazine article, Fischelis declared that largely due to such things at the current thalidomide incident, it is "quite apparent that a crisis in the evaluation of new drugs is upon us and it looks now as though food and drug legislation will be passed at this session of Congress. . . ."

Transplant Bearded Iris

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you did not transplant your bearded iris back in May after they bloomed and if they are too crowded, you may divide and transplant them now. Plant the bulb shallow and fertilize with bone meal.

It is also time to transplant your early blooming bulbs as anemonies and ranunculas.

Watch for red spider on your violets, better check the foliage if it is yellow. Spray with malathion to control red spider. You will want to fertilize violets at this time. Cotton seed meal is excellent and be sure to cut the tops off. New foliage will put out real soon.

SHADE TREES

This is an excellent time of the year to check and see if you have enough shade. Study the different trees before deciding just which you want to plant. If you want a summer blooming one consider mimosa, crape myrtle or golden rain. These are small to medium size, fast growing trees. If an evergreen is the answer then the live oak, or magnolia may be just the one, but remember these will not give you a fast shade.

Colors to give a cooling effect to your landscape are blues, blue greens, grey greens, and greens. Plants that may give this to your garden are paper plant, dusty miller, vitex, pineapple quava and Texas sage.

HOME GARDEN WEEK

Yours truly and the following homemakers from Ouachita will leave Monday for the capital city, Baton Rouge, to attend the annual Home and Garden Week: Mrs. James Pender, Mrs. B. H. Moore, Mrs. W. D. Dear; Mrs. Charley Guready, Mrs. R. Harrell, Mrs. T. W. Chapman, Mrs. Danny Sullivan, Mrs. C. B. Gorman, Mrs. S. O. Sharp, Mrs. A. C. Goodling, Mrs. J. L. Lovett, Mrs. Richard Soignier, Mrs. W. O. Northcut, Mrs. G. A. Strozier, Mrs. G. A. Risdal, Mrs. B. F. Henry, Mrs. E. H. Moore, Mrs. Royford Wright, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Mrs. J. T. Bennett, Mrs. C. F. Moffett, Mrs. Leslie Hollingsworth, Mrs. James White, Mrs. Roy Simmons, Mrs. James McDaniel and Mrs. James Fletcher.

PACKAGING

Be sure to pay close attention to the net contents on the food packages you buy if you want to get your money's worth. There've been many changes made in packaging that you need to keep up to date about. The common pint bottle is being replaced by one that holds 13, 14, or 15 ounces. The quart bottle now appears as 27, 28, or 30 ounces. Many times the bottle looks the same and almost invariably the price remains the same. But you, Mrs. Customer, are paying more money per ounce than you did before. Of course the net contents in the bottle are stated on the label and may be expressed in fractions of an ounce making it even more confusing to the homemaker trying to figure the cost per ounce. Can sizes have grown smaller too. The No. 2 size can that used to be the most common held 20 ounces. Then the No. 303 became the favorite size, holding 16 ounces. Now the number 300 size holding 14½ ounces is being seen more and more.

BOXES CHANGED

Boxes are being changed, too. One breakfast cereal went from a 12 ounce size to 10½ ounces and the front panel of the smaller box was actually larger than the old box. The answer was a narrower box. More often the smaller package is an attempt on the part of the manufacturer to hide a price increase for his product. The price per package remains the same, but there is less in the package. So be sure to pay close attention to the net contents statement on the food packages you buy.

Native to several Mediterranean countries, it was known in English gardens before America was settled. Tradition has it that an early Virginia governor grew it in his garden in Williamsburg.

Summer annuals will bloom much longer if you give them a small amount of fertilizer every week or two. It is important to feed chrysanthemums every two weeks until the buds show color. Cottonseed meal is good for this. Sweet peas planted now and early September will give Christmas blossoms. Fowers are for happiness, why not plant some zinnias, sweet alysum, celosia and pansies now. If you are a pepper fancier, my husband has 23 different varieties — hot ones— a white tomato too — its a hobby. Camera Notes

AP Newsfeatures

After more than a quarter century of shooting vacation pictures, my nomination for the tourist attraction which is most photography - minded and helpful to camera fans is Florida's Cypress Gardens.

Located in that state's center area, heart of its citrus belt, it is a tropical wonderland which specializes in exciting daily water ski shows all year round.

PHOTOG'S PARADISE

It has been called a photographer's paradise because of the magnificient masses of rare and colorful flowers along its winding waterways, its palm - fringed lagoons and man - made tropical islands, its lovely models in crinoline hoop skirts ready to add the flavor of the Old South to the scene or to join the photographer's family for a personal touch.

But what really makes it a paradise for the visitor with a camera is the spirit in which he is welcomed, encouraged and aided.

Two special viewing stands are put aside for camera fans only. One is used in the morning light and the other is better in the afternoon. They present the best angle for shooting the fast-moving water show under expert guidance. A special announcer is on hand to call the shots on proper exposure and the key moments for the best action.

GIVES READINGS

The announcer, checking his light meter constantly, calls out accurate exposure readings for all popular types of films in color and black - and - white for still and for movie cameras. When changes in the illumination take place, the fans are kept posted and are told to open up or to close down their lenses a half stop or a full stop as the case might be.

From past experience, ever effort is made to spare the photographers the frustration of running out of film during the proceedings. The action has been timed to fill a full role of 8mm movie or a 20 - exposure roll of 35mm film. This is announced beforehand so the fans can get off to a fresh start. They are advised when the action is too far away or going away from the camera and cued precisely when to start the movies or shoot the stills so as to capture the most thrilling stunts at their peak.

Under one photo stand, there are several darkrooms to load or change films safely. There is personnel present to load cameras properly for beginners or to investigate camera trouble. And, of course, all types of films are available on the grounds.

After each water show, the camera fans are invited to shoot close - ups of the pretty aquamaids and the ski stars and are again given proper exposure readings for all types of films and cameras.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Eunice:

"My husband has lost a lot of weight recently and I would like to save money by taking in his trousers myself. I have to take them in about five inches in the waist, but don't know how to go about it. Help!"

Mrs. V.E.G.

Dear Mrs. V.E.G.:

I'm afraid that five inches is almost too much of an alternation to be called "easy." Any change in the waist measurement is usually taken in at the center back seam. A change of five inches would bring the two back pockets too close together. Probably the only thing to do is take out two or three inches in the waistline and then take the balance in at the side seams, which would necessitate re-making the pockets. Actually, this is a job for a tailor unless you have a world of patience and knowledge.

REVERSE TRIM

The best idea from the mail each week is awarded a Tailor Trix pressing board. This week the award goes to Mrs. Earl Lehman, Upsilanti, Mich., who says,

"When the reverse side of printed material is plain, it lends itself nicely for trimming. You can use it for bias bindings, corded piping and also for covered buttons and belts. This solves many a color problem, especially those hard to match colors. It also saves money because you can make your own trim."

ENDS SHINE

"Dear Eunice:

"The other day as I was doing some finishing pressing on a new WOOL suit, the fabric had a definite shine, even though I carefully used a press cloth. I thought your readers would like to know that I rubbed this spot with a little "white vinegar" and the shine disappeared. I was telling my neighbor about this and she said that carbonated water would have had the same results."

MRS. E.S.

"Dear Eunice Farmer:

"I would like to know how to use a dress form for dresses that do not buttton up the front. Once the form is the correct measurements, it is not flexible as the human form is flexible, so as a result, I cannot get dresses over the shoulders."

MISS C.S.

DRESS FORM

Dear Miss C.S.:

I have had many inquiries about the advantage of a dress form. I personally feel that they are unnecessary if you make the correct pattern changes according to measurements. You have discovered the handicaps, namely the fact that they are not flexible. In order to use them you must leave the side seam open all the way to the underarm, so that the dress can be slipped over the form. Actually, forms are much more of an aid when used in fitting jackets and coats where the collar, sleeves and length are so hard to check on yourself.

Please send your suggestions to Sew Simple. Time to think about Fall Sewing, there should be many, many new ideas to share.

The 25th anniversary of the National Apprenticeship Act receives philatelic tribute with the issuance of a new 4-cent U. S. stamp on Aug. 31 in Washington D. C. Issuance of the stamp is in keeping with National Apprenticeship Month, designated for August by President John F. Kennedy.

The 4-cent stamp in black on buff depicts a gnarled hand offering a micrometer to an outstretched young hand—symbolizing the transfer of skill from the experienced worker to the new worker learning a trade.

Collectors desiring first-day cancellations of the Apprenticeship stamp may send addressed envelopes, together with remittance to cover the cost of the stamps to be affixed, to the Postmaster, Washington D. C. The outside envelope to the Postmaster should be clearly marked not later than Aug. 31, 1962.

West Germany marks German Catholic Day in Hanover with the 20 - pfennig commemorative stamp, reports the World Wide Philatelic Agency. The new stamp bears the motto, "To Believe, To Thank, To Serve." It features two worshipers and the cross. The stamp denotes the 79th observance of this religious day in Hanover.

Australia commemorates the World Conference of the Associated Country Women of the World by issuing a new 5-pence green stamp. The symbolic design depicts a draped female figure with arms outstretched against a background of the world globe. The Conference will be held in Melbourne, Oct. 2 to 12.

Spain has issued a new set of six stamps honoring Alonso Berruguete, noted sculptor. The designs on the new stamps are taken from famous carved works of Berruguete — St. Benedict, an apostle, St. Peter, St. Christopher with the Child Jesus, "Ecce Homo" and St. Sebastian.

A report from the Spanish Colonies says the long-expected Child Welfare sets of the four African provinces have been issued. The Fernando Poo stamps will show the steamer St. Francisco, which was one of the first ships to travel between Spain and the colony, and a modern day steamship. The Rio Muni set depicts two native idols, a female and a male head. Fish are featured on the Sahara stamps. The Ifni set illustrates a likeness of Admiral Jofre Tenorio and historian Cesareo Fernandez-Duro.

Scott Publications announces a new low-priced album of world stamps for the new and inexperienced collector. The "Family of Nations Album" is priced at $1.50. The album contains places for all stamps of the world including the United States.

U.S. Court To Evaluate Drugs Urged

WASHINGTON (AP)—A former secretary of the American Pharmaceutical Association advocated Saturday establishment of a federal "supreme court of drug evaluation" to make final decisions on the safety and efficacy of new drugs.

He said in an interview supplementing his column that such a court should be given powers not now possessed by any government agency in the drug field.

Its members would be recognized authorities not interested in moving from academic or government to industry, or vice versa. They would have high salaries and long tenure.

"It could act as an auxiliary to the Public Health Service and the Food & Drug Administration, so that both agencies could call on the court," Fischelis added.

He said that in the past, federal agencies have sometimes called upon the National Academy of Sciences for guidance on drug-evaluating matters, but he said a "supreme court" appointed by the government "would be set up for continuous action."

In his magazine article, Fischelis declared that largely due to such things at the current thalidomide incident, it is "quite apparent that a crisis in the evaluation of new drugs is upon us and it looks now as though food and drug legislation will be passed at this session of Congress. . . ."

Transplant Bearded Iris

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

If you did not transplant your bearded iris back in May after they bloomed and if they are too crowded, you may divide and transplant them now. Plant the bulb shallow and fertilize with bone meal.

It is also time to transplant your early blooming bulbs as anemonies and ranunculas.

Watch for red spider on your violets, better check the foliage if it is yellow. Spray with malathion to control red spider. You will want to fertilize violets at this time. Cotton seed meal is excellent and be sure to cut the tops off. New foliage will put out real soon.

SHADE TREES

This is an excellent time of the year to check and see if you have enough shade. Study the different trees before deciding just which you want to plant. If you want a summer blooming one consider mimosa, crape myrtle or golden rain. These are small to medium size, fast growing trees. If an evergreen is the answer then the live oak, or magnolia may be just the one, but remember these will not give you a fast shade.

Colors to give a cooling effect to your landscape are blues, blue greens, grey greens, and greens Plants that may give this to your garden are paper plant, dusty miller, vitex, pineapple quava and Texas sage.

HOME GARDEN WEEK

Yours truly and the following homemakers from Ouachita will leave Monday for the capital city, Baton Rouge, to attend the annual Home and Garden Week: Mrs. James Pender, Mrs. B. H. Moore, Mrs. W. D. Dear; Mrs. Charley Gueready, Mrs. R. Harrell, Mrs. T. W. Chapman, Mrs. Danny Sullivan, Mrs. C. B. Gorman, Mrs. S. O. Sharp, Mrs. A. C. Goodling, Mrs. J. L. Lovett, Mrs. Richard Soignier, Mrs. W. O. Northcut, Mrs. G. A. Strozier, Mrs. G. A. Risdal, Mrs. B. F. Henry, Mrs. E. H. Moore, Mrs. Royford Wright, Mrs. Robert Smith, Mrs. Marvin Shipp, Mrs. J. T. Bennett, Mrs. C. F. Moffett, Mrs. Leslie Hollingsworth, Mrs. James White, Mrs. Roy Simmons, Mrs. James McDaniel and Mrs. James Fletcher.

PACKAGING

Be sure to pay close attention to the net contents on the food packages you buy if you want to get your money's worth. There've been many changes made in packaging that you need to keep up to date about. The common pint bottle is being replaced by one that holds 13, 14, or 15 ounces. The quart bottle now appears as 27, 28, or 30 ounces. Many times the bottle looks the same and almost invariably the price remains the same. But you, Mrs. Customer, are paying more money per ounce than you did before. Of course the net contents in the bottle are stated on the label and may be expressed in fractions of an ounce making it even more confusing to the homemaker trying to figure the cost per ounce. Can sizes have grown smaller too. The No. 2 size can that used to be the most common held 20 ounces. Then the No. 303 became the favorite size, holding 16 ounces. Now the number 300 size holding 14½ ounces is being seen more and more.

BOXES CHANGED

Boxes are being changed, too. One breakfast cereal went from a 12 ounce size to 10½ ounces and the front panel of the smaller box was actually larger than the old box. The answer was a narrower box. More often the smaller package is an attempt on the part of the manufactureer to hide a price increase for his product. The price per package remains the same, but there is less in the package. So be sure to pay close attention to the net contents statement on the food packages you buy.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Southern landscapes need not be dull after the great show of crape myrtles is over in middle to late summer. We seem to pass into a lavender and mauve period in July and August, with purple phloxes, liriope edgings, purple altheas and many other violet to lavender flowers. Too much of these colors is apt to become depressing, but the addition of white lightens them and makes them truly beautiful.

There are plenty of good, easy-to-grow white shrubs and flowers. Some of the best phlox varieties are white. There is the white cone flower that can take the worst heat of late summer without turning a hair. (Actually, it is covered with rough, hair-like protection from the heat). White gladiolas are plentiful and easy.

The secret is to plant only the smallest corms in June to be sure they do not bloom before August. There are white forms of almost all the annuals like zinnias and petunias, and we seldom see them, but there are, of course, white dahlias.

WHITE SHRUBS

The white shrubs superb for late summer are, of course, altheas and at least two kinds of big hydrangeas. Almost every gardener knows what "P.G." hydrangeas are: "Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora of course," they say. The huge white trusses of this tough oldtimer look like so many gigantic vanilla ice cream cones hanging, upside down. After a time, they turn pink and are just as beautiful in that phase.

There is another hydrangea that was selected from the same wild shrub from Japan and China. This form might be known as "P.F." because it was named H. paniculata floribunda. The pointed bunches of flowers are not so jammed together as those of "P.G." but are more gracefully spaced apart on the shrub and have a much lighter and more airy appearance. This shrub is well distributed about gardens and yards in the south along with the ubiquitous "P.G.s."

SHOWY

These late hydrangeas can be allowed to grow up into enormous masses of white which are gorgeously effective in late summer, or they can be kept down to much smaller sizes where the space does not allow for giant shrubs. When the shrubs are cut back each year and fed with liquid fertilizers in early summer, the panickles of flowers are unbelievably showy.

The showy flowers in the panickles of hydrangeas are really sterile blossoms which do not make seeds at all. Perhaps they are there to attract insects to the very un-showy true flowers amongst them. At any rate, they made the shrubs the glory of our yards and gardens in July, August and September. Perhaps it is just as well that the sterile little flowers of hydrangeas lack very much fragrance. Common as they are, we might be stifled by them.

There is another shrub that we run into frequently in some southern communities which does have plenty of frangrance. This is the harlequen glory-bower (clerodendron trichotomum) about which we have written frequently in the column. The huge panicles of spicy flowers are followed by cerise bracts with blue berries in September. Get a root from your neighbor and enjoy real fragrance in the evenings.

Sen. Symington Recuperating After Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., underwent a hernia operation Saturday and later was reported in satisfactory condition.

The Missouri senator is expected to remain in the hospital for two to three weeks and will recuperate outside the hospital for another week or 10 days before returning to duty.

The Senate Stockpile subcommittee of which he is chairman probably will hold no hearings pending his return. Staff investigators, however, are expected to conduct further inquiries into the nickel stockpiling contract between the government and the M. A. Hanna Co.

Former Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, honorary chairman of the Hanna company, defended the contract Thursday. He was prepared to resume his testimony Friday when Symington abruptly halted the hearings. He accused Humphrey of insulting the Senate in his claims to newsmen that the inquiry is a politically motivated attempt to strike at former President Dwight D. Eisenhower through Humphrey.

INSULATION TIPS

Homes Are Classed As 'Noisiest Ever'

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) —As a homeowner you probably put up a pretty good defense against dirt, sun, wind, rain, heat, cold, pollen and burglars — but what about noise?

Homes today are probably the noisiest ever. We have a great number of appliances that entertain and save us work, but they do make noise. Wall, floor and ceiling and big glass surfaces reflect and intensify noise.

SUGGESTIONS

You can stop most noise by throttling television, radio, doorbell, dog and children, then plugging your ears to achieve soundless splendor. But if you don't want to eliminate the sounds of life, just control them, the Insulation Board Institute has some suggestions.

The general idea is to soften all sound-reflecting surfaces, concentrating first in rooms where the family congregates most — living and dining rooms, kitchen, family and recreation rooms.

Tile Absorbs Sound

One of the most effective silencers is acoustical ceiling tile which can convert the ceiling from a reflector to an absorber of as much as 70 per cent of the excess noise that hits it. The tile comes in a great variety of finishes and patterns and it is an easy do-it-yourself project for the handyman who can fasten the tile with mastic, staple or nail it to wood furring strips or slide it into metal channels.

The institute advises also:

—Pay attention to hard surfaces other than the ceiling. Large expanses of glass, like picture windows, or hard wall surfaces reflect noise. Put up curtains or drapes.

—Use carpeting to silence floor sounds. Even a couple of throw rugs in the family room or children's rooms will dull many sharp sounds. So will carpeting or rubber treads on stairs.

Find Noise Source

Several times during the course of the day, stop and listen; try to isolate the excess sound you hear, trace it to the source and see what can be done to reduce the noise. For instance:

—Make sure all appliances are well lubricated. Heavier appliances, like the refrigerator should be mounted on resilient furniture glides or rubber pads.

Sweatshirt Is Campus Symbol

Time was when you could spot a college student by his raccoon coat, freshman beanie or school tie. But nowdays, the collegiate status symbol is apt to be a cotton sweatshirt.

New styling and fashion - conscious colors have made the sweatshirt a staple item for well-dressed undergraduates on college campuses throughout the country. It's not uncommon for a student to own as many as six or eight sweatshirts — all differing in designs or colors. By and large, the majority of students go in for sweatshirts emblazoned with their college name, mascot, fraternity or sorority crest.

Home Ceremony Unites Couple

Vows uniting Miss Beth Hudson of Farmerville and Wayne Winstead of Shreveport, were solemnized August 7 at 7 p.m. in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. James Carmack, Farmerville. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hudson Sr., Farmerville, and Mr. Winstead is the son of Mrs. Isaiah Winstead of Elm City, North Carolina.

Evangelist Kenneth Brantley officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length frock of blue satin with short jacket. She wore a blue veil and carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Remona E. Hudson of Bastrop, sister-in-law of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a pink dress and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Cled Miller of Downsville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, served as best man.

The couple will establish a home in Shreveport.

Sweatshirt Is Campus Symbol

Time was when you could spot a college student by his raccoon coat, freshman beanie or school tie. But nowdays, the collegiate status symbol is apt to be a cotton sweatshirt.

New styling and fashion - conscious colors have made the sweatshirt a staple item for well-dressed undergraduates on college campuses throughout the country. It's not uncommon for a student to own as many as six or eight sweatshirts — all differing in designs or colors. By and large, the majority of students go in for sweatshirts emblazoned with their college name, mascot, fraternity or sorority crest.

State's Beauty Queens Slated At Lions Rodeo

Eleven of Louisiana's most beautiful girls will participate in the 16th annual Lions Club rodeo to be held in Alexandria.

The eleven lovelies — beauty queens all — will hold honored positions in the parade kicking off rodeo festivities on Aug. 28. They also will appear at the arena on opening night, riding in bright new convertibles. Television appearances are also included in their schedule.

Lion Mac Brian, chairman of the Visiting Queens committee, announced today that the eleven girls have accepted invitations to be in the rodeo festival, and that several others have received invitations and may accept.

The queens who thus far have accepted invitations are:

Del Jean Mouton, Kaplan, Queen of Vermillion Parish; Phyllis Miller, Abbeville, Yambile Queen; Toni Chandler, Jonesville, Miss Catahoula Parish; Sue Forman, Jonesville, Tri-State Soy Bean Queen; and Trudy Johnson, New Iberia, 12th Annual Shrimp Queen.

The five-night rodeo will be held at the MacArthur drive arena beginning Aug. 28 and lasting through Saturday, Sept. 1. This rodeo will draw from the top ranks of professional cowboys for its contestants.

All proceeds will be used by the Alexandria Lions Club for its charity projects.

No Fresh Clues In Mail Robbery

BOSTON (AP)-The widespread investigation of the record $1.5 million mail truck robbery by machine gun bandits last Tuesday in Plymouth has uncovered "no startling developments," the director of the manhunt said Saturday.

William F. White, chief postal Inspector for New England, emerged as the top law enforcement official in the case Friday after a conference of all agencies at the office of Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Edward J. McCormack Jr.

White said all official information on the search for the robber-gang would come from him. He said he will hold two news conferences a day.

At his first meeting with newsmen he said:

The gunmen apparently were well aware of the route and the time the truck would drive from Cape Cod to Boston with 18 sealed money bags bound for the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

One of them—in police uniform—halted the mail truck on a section of highway where the northbound lane is separated from the southbound lane. After the truck had driven beyond a bypass on Route 3, the gunmen set up a detrour sign so motorists driving north would not come upon the actual holdup.

The FBI theory is that there was only one robber disguised as a policeman although some sources have suggested there were two.

Authorities believe the pseudo-policeman set up the detrout sign, then drove at high speed to pass the mail truck and reach the pre-arranged spot for the hijack before the truck arrived.

Another theory is that a green pickup truck may have been used to transport the money bags from the mail truck.

The truck driver and guard told authorities that after the robbers tied them up and forced them to lie on the floor, three stops were made while money bags were tossed out to other members of the gang.

A Plympton librarian said a man in a green truck came to the library a week before the robbery, took a book from a shelf and sat at a table for a half-hour. But he never turned a page of the book. Instead he studied a road map.

The librarian said she tried to obtain the truck's registration as the man drove off but that a bent license plate thwarted her.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Chief Postal Inspector Henry B. Montague said a woman partner could spell trouble for the robber gang.

"It is a matter of history that when a female has been involved, trouble has developed within a gang," he said, adding that trouble over women has led to breaks in past robberies.

THIS SMALL FOREIGN CAR jumped atop a station wagon near Laurel, Md. State Police said the smaller car skidded, turned over several times and then flipped into the wagon. Donald L. Fulton Jr., 19, drove the small car. John H. Donovan drove the wagon. Both are from Laurel. There were no injuries. (AP Wirephoto)

Kennedy Visits Yosemite Park, Given Plaque

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — President Kennedy was presented a redwood plaque Saturday, commemorating his visit to Yosemite National Park.

Park Supt. John C. Preston made the presentation in behalf of the National Park Service along with a park ranger's badge.

The President turned park tourist before departing for Los Banos and dedication of the San Luis water project.

He looked at El Capitan's majestic granite face glistening in the morning sun. He motored up to Inspiration Point and enjoyed a view of the valley.

California's Gov. Edmund G. Brown, his touring companion, suggested that the President make Yosemite the summer White House next year. Kennedy didn't buy the idea right off.

"Oh, oh, I can't believe it," she exclaimed.

The President spoke to her, asking how long she planned to be in the United States.

"I don't know," she said hesitantly.

IN WAR MANEUVERS

Planes Airlift U.S. Divisions

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP)—Gen. Paul D. Adams says that the ability of the United States to move entire divisions by air and have them in combat quickly was proved during Exercise Swift Strike II which closed Saturday.

Gen. Adams, the 55-year-old chief of the unified Army-Air Force Strike Command, said the airlifting of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division from Colorado to the war games here was nearly perfect.

The division, including 8,000 men and 6,000 tons of equipment, was moved by 210 planes of the Military Air Transport Service (Mats). It was the first time a force that size was moved over such a long distance in the United States and it was the first time that MATS C135 jet transports were used on such a problem within the continental United States.

"It took three and a half days for MATS to move the division the 1,800 miles," said Gen. Adams, a beribboned 1928 graduate of West Point. "Within 48 hours after the first plane took off, the first units of the division were being inserted into the maneuvers. In three days plus 20 hours the entire division was in the maneuvers.

"During World War II, we did pretty good to move an entire division overseas in a month," said Gen. Adams.

The planes flew 392 sorties from Colorado to Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., Donaldson AFB, S.C., and Florence, S.C. The division was returned to its home base at Ft. Carson, Colo., on a similar schedule of return flights.

The C135s, the military version of the Boeing 707, flew the round trips in five hours and 35 minutes. Each plane carried 75 to 80 men, but in a real situation could have carried 126 fully equipped men. Gen. Adams pointed out the C135s could take off and go to Europe without stopping.

"The airlift proved beyond any question of doubt that we can send a division anywhere in the world quickly and efficiently," said Gen. Adams.

The entire maneuver cost $6½ million and involved 70,000 men sent into the maneuver area of 5,500 square miles in North Carolina and South Carolina.

CAMDEN, S.C. (AP)—Gen. Paul D. Adams says that the ability of the United States to move entire divisions by air and have them in combat quickly was proved during Exercise Swift Strike II which closed Saturday.

Gen. Adams, the 55-year-old chief of the unified Army-Air Force Strike Command, said the airlifting of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division from Colorado to the war games here was nearly perfect.

The division, including 8,000 men and 6,000 tons of equipment, was moved by 210 planes of the Military Air Transport Service (Mats). It was the first time a force that size was moved over such a long distance in the United States and it was the first time that MATS C135 jet transports were used on such a problem within the continental United States.

"It took three and a half days for MATS to move the division the 1,800 miles," said Gen. Adams, a beribboned 1928 graduate of West Point. "Within 48 hours after the first plane took off, the first units of the division were being inserted into the maneuvers. In three days plus 20 hours the entire division was in the maneuvers.

"During World War II, we did pretty good to move an entire division overseas in a month," said Gen. Adams.

The planes flew 392 sorties from Colorado to Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C., Donaldson AFB, S.C., and Florence, S.C. The division was returned to its home base at Ft. Carson, Colo., on a similar schedule of return flights.

The C135s, the military version of the Boeing 707, flew the round trips in five hours and 35 minutes. Each plane carried 75 to 80 men, but in a real situation could have carried 126 fully equipped men. Gen. Adams pointed out the C135s could take off and go to Europe without stopping.

"The airlift proved beyond any question of doubt that we can send a division anywhere in the world quickly and efficiently," said Gen. Adams.

The entire maneuver cost $6½ million and involved 70,000 men sent into the maneuver area of 5,500 square miles in North Carolina and South Carolina.

DEAR HELOISE:
A dustpan and a whisk broom can be a girl's best friend. Why struggle with the long handle of a broom after you get the dirt on the floor swept in a little pile?

You have to stoop anyway to hold and pick up the dustpan, so use the whisk broom!

just grab the two together.

The whisk broom is wonderful for sweeping stairs and other small areas. And did you know that children can do these jobs much easier than we can?

I place all extra ice cubes in an aluminum foil pie pan and put it in the freezing compartment of my refrigerator. Then when I need just a few cubes of ice, I don't have to open a whole tray.

DEAR HELOISE:
Try this! Heat a ceramic tile in the oven when you bake or warm dinner rolls. Then place it on top of the napkin in your bread basket before putting in the rolls.

Not only does it keep the grease from soiling the napkin but it also keeps the rolls warm until the last one is eaten!

DEAR HELOISE:
For those who buy expensive carpets for their stairways . . . be sure to have the top step cut at least four inches longer than usual. Tuck it under or tack it down.

When the carpet begins to wear on the edges of the stairway and you cannot stand the worn spots any longer . . . remove all the tacks and slide the carpet down two inches, replace holding brackets or tacks. You will have a new carpet as the worn spots will not show because they will be underneath the edge of each stair!

Cut two inches off the bottom landing. But still save that two inches at the top landing. You will use it two years later to shift the carpet again and save another bill.

Stairway carpets can be

"shifted" this way at least twice. I work for a big hotel apartment and this is what we do. It never shows.

DEAR HELOISE:

If the tape won't come off, saturate it with the remover. This will loosen it. The fluid will remove any gum left.

DEAR HELOISE:
A plastic pill bottle, about two inches tall and one inch in diameter, is wonderful for storing round bobbins. Each bottle will hold four bobbins and it keeps the thread clean and orderly.

This is neat and saves going through the sewing-machine drawer or sewing box looking for that lost bobbin.

DEAR HELOISE:
If anyone has recently built a new home and is still waiting for the trees to grow enough to give shade and cool the house . . . line the inside of your south and west windows—the glass part—with aluminum foil. (If the foil isn't big enough to cover the window, it can be pieced.)

The foil may be sealed with tape to hold it so the window can still be opened. This will cut the temperature many degrees inside the house.

DEAR HELOISE:
Keep 3-ounce jars (that baby foods and spices come in) and measure the amount of coffee you require for your regular potful in one of them.

Mark where this amount is with red fingernail polish and from then on you can measure the correct amount quickly. Saves time and lots of messy spills too.

DEAR HELOISE:
With all the soft drink bottles we use, I have learned to buy small rolls of foil and use a piece to wrap around the bottom of each bottle.

Not only does this insulate the drink and keep it cold longer, but it eliminates any water marks on tables, and no napkins are needed.

DEAR HELOISE:
When a woman is trying to move a chest of drawers (and don't we all when we get bored) she should never attempt it while it is full. Remove all the drawers one by one and place them on the bed. The chest will then weigh less and slide easily. This also prevents marring floors.

PLUMB TACKS

I have finally found a way to keep pictures straight on the wall! Take a piece of tape and stick a thumb tack through the sticky side. Then press the tape on the back of your picture.

When the picture is hung on the wall, the little point of the thumb tack will keep the picture from shifting. I have never found any damage to my walls.
